Local aid cuts were expected

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

After weeks of budget deliberations, the legislature has targeted local aid cuts as one means of bringing the unwieldy state budget under control.

But local officials say Winchester may not fare as poorly as other cities and towns across the state due to conservative fiscal planning.

While solid figures are still unavailable, State Rep. Paul Casey said Winchester, like other communities, faces a 4 percent reduction in state aid from its $3.1 million allotment for the current fiscal year — totalling approximately $124,000.

However, town officials planned conservatively, and estimated a 10 percent reduction over last year's figures.

Approximately $775,000 was cut from Winchester's $3.8 million state aid payment when Governor Michael Dukakis froze local aid to cities and towns in the beginning of fiscal year 1990.

As a result of the $775,000 reduction, Winchester and other communities were forced to hold a special Town Meeting in the fall of 1989 to make the fiscal year 1990 budget

Oak Knoll proposal considered

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

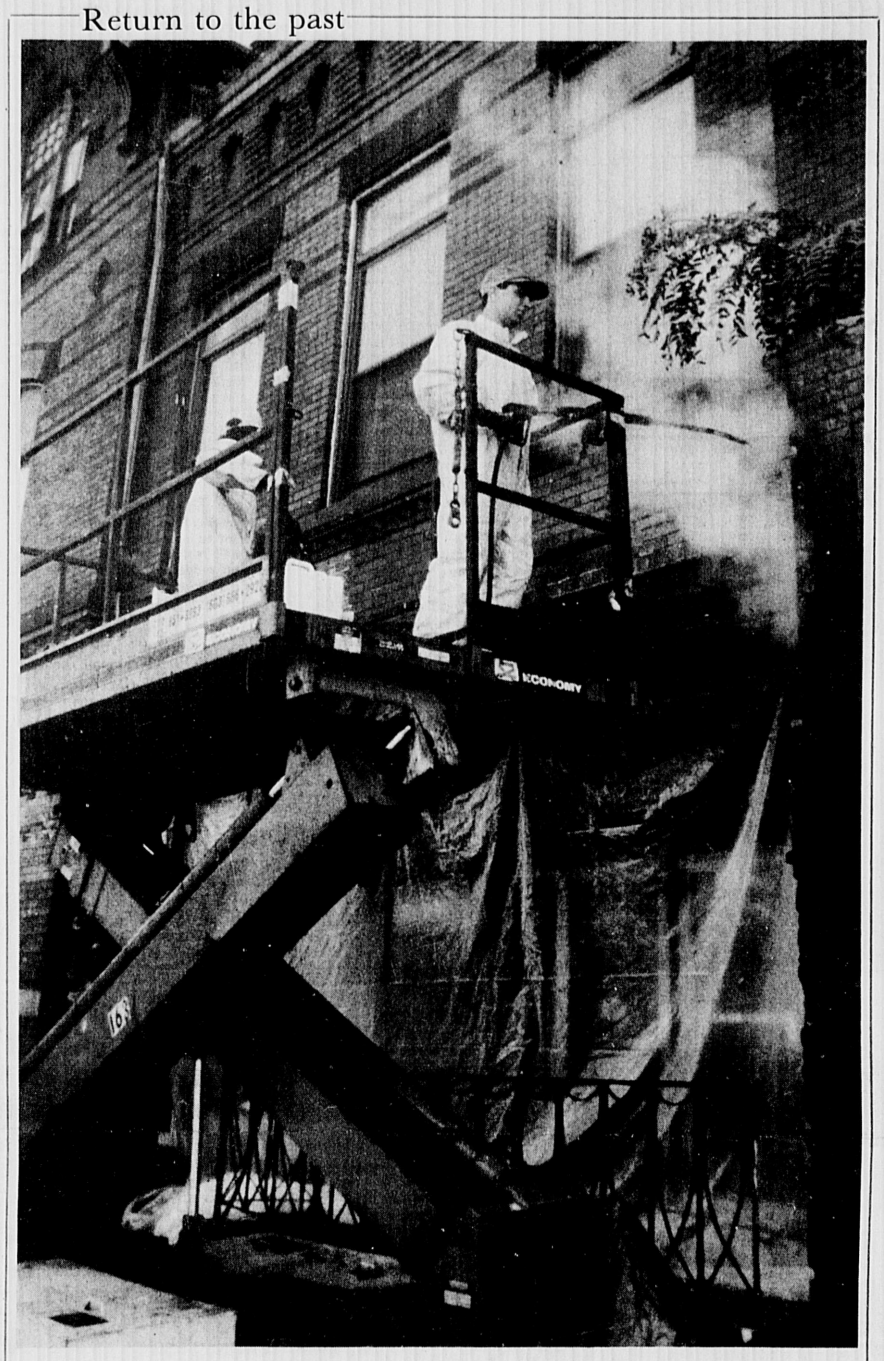

In order to preserve trees in the Oak Knoll section of town, Planning Board members granted property owner Steven Parkhurst waivers on a proposal to develop his land on Brooks Street.

The Planning Board reviewed a preliminary plan under the town's subdivision control law to build single family homes in the Oak Knoll area. The purpose of the board's Monday night discussion was to discuss waivers. Parkhurst requested five waivers, mainly to save trees in the area.

The waivers will allow the developer to forego constructing sidewalks, as required under the town's bylaws, to save existing trees on Brooks Street.

Return to the past

Ed Goyette uses Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) approved chemical cleaner on the Brown and Stanton block on Main Street. The cleaning is being done as part of a project to return the facade of the building to its original state. Shops in the area will remain open during restoration. The project is expected to be completed sometime in the fall.

Pool rules held back by legal opinion

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Swimming pool regulations drafted by Board of Health member Randall Swartz are now just barely afloat, after a series of setbacks that have struck at the core of the proposal.

Town Counsel Wade Welch submitted his second opinion on the pool regulations to the Board of Health at its Monday night meeting. The regulations were re-drafted after a March 15 opinion by Welch that raised questions regarding the town's liability when enforcing these regulations.

Even with the new draft, Welch remains unconvinced that the regulations would survive a legal challenge on the basis of constitutionality.

But Swartz, whose six-year-old daughter Patricia drowned in a swimming pool accident last June, is undaunted in his quest to put the regulations on the books and has requested time to review Welch's latest opinion, which arrived just hours before the Board of Health meeting.

Legal opinion on the regulations continues to be the stumbling block for Swartz, as Chairman Dorothea Sopper and member Dr. Warren Taylor have made clear their intent to follow the advise of legal counsel. Without at least one of these votes to make the regulations mandated, Swartz could be forced to follow the opinion of his colleagues and make the regulations simply voluntary.

One section of the regulations calls for constant eye contact of children under 15 years of age, enforcement of appropriate rules of behavior, knowing how to swim and familiarity with rescue procedure for children, as well as cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) or mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

This section, said Welch in his written opinion based on the Griswold vs. Connecticut case of 1984, "is unlikely to survive a constitutional challenge that it invades a protected area of privacy and unconstitutionally interferes with the family relationship."

Welch also indicated that the Board of Health's definition of a swimming pool goes beyond the state regulations, by including residential pools. This "creates a conflict" between the proposed Board of Health regulations pertaining to all swimming pools, and a previous state statute, which recognizes the grandfathering of pre-existing pools.

Also, Welch said the fencing regulation would be unlikely to survive a legal challenge because it may be in violation of the fire laws and it invades a protected area of privacy. This regulation would require that

Rock Ave. waiver causes concern

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

The disposition of the Rock Avenue landfill site has moved one step further, but neighbors and Board of Health members are not sure that step is in the right direction.

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) issued a waiver, which outlines a list of conditions of approval for the site, to landowner Charles Ferrari on July 13. But this waiver, according to Board of Health members and members of the neighborhood watch group, the North End Task Force (NETF), does not go far enough in safeguarding future testing of the potentially hazardous site.

After receiving a first proposal for the waiver application from the DEP in June, Board of Health members sent a correspondence back to the state agency that called for the inclusion of more in-depth testing of soil and vapors in the waiver.

Among the waivers approved by the Planning Board on Monday were: a variation in the geometric design of curbing; an easement on the width of the area for water drainage across property owned by Parkhurst on West Chardon Road; a 24-inch pavement width, rather than the required 26 inches; an off-center

School board says MCAD 'abused power'

1987 committee says it did not discriminate

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Members of the 1987 Winchester School Committee say they have been unjustly accused of sex discrimination in a case involving former high school assistant principal Karen Baker.

Members of that committee allege that the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) has "abused its power and the taxpayers' money" with its finding of probable cause in a discrimination complaint filed by Baker, who was with the Winchester school system for two and one-half years.

Baker filed her complaint less than two weeks after School Committee members voted 6-0 on March 24, 1987 to deny her tenure. After an investigation was conducted by the MCAD, that agency found there to be probable cause that sex discrimination was a factor in the case. A hearing will be held on that finding beginning Aug. 3.

On July 26 of this year, however, the 1987 School Committee members countered with a civil action complaint in State Superior Court against the MCAD. That action seeks to rectify the charges made against the committee by dismissing the case and awarding damages to the plaintiffs for "anxiety and emotional anguish and distress" brought on by the discrimination charges.

Baker has contended she was denied tenure by the School Committee on the basis of her sex — and that there were no female principals or assistant principals at the secondary level in Winchester previous to her employment. She also contends neither the School Committee nor the School Department, gave her any reason as to why she was denied tenure.

On July 26 of this year, however, the 1987 School Committee members countered with a civil action complaint in State Superior Court against the MCAD.

A six-member board at the time, members were: Donna Brandt Landry; Alice McCarter; Edward O'Connell; Dr. Michael Ronayne, Jr.; William Jervey; and Stephen Powers. These members maintain that the tenure policy of the board called for "excellency" and not "mere adequacy" in candidates who were considered to merit the award of tenure, which represents a lifetime commitment of a school department to an educator.

Documentation of the case by the School Committee's legal representative states there was "no single collective reason why the School Committee, as a unit, denied Baker reappointment." Also, at the time of the vote on March 24, 1987, members "did not discuss the vote or give reasons for the vote at that time ... and Baker did not request reasons for the vote at that time."

Baker had been recommended for tenure by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos.

School Committee counsel maintains that members exercised their First Amendment constitutional right to refrain from speech by not offering a reason for the denial. Also, only four of the 21 administrators in the Winchester school system were the focus of Baker's discrimination complaint, when the statistics for female administrators in Winchester rises to 33.3 percent when all 21 are considered.

New law makes registering easier

For residents who find it hard to make their way to the Winchester Town Clerk's office during regular business hours, a new state law makes registering to vote easier.

The law, enacted in February, allows citizens to register at any town clerk's office in the state in order to vote in their home town.

"It's going to make it much more convenient [to register] for people who work out of town and who are not able to get to Town Hall [during office hours]," said Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

Ward noted that the last day to register to vote or change party affiliation for the September primary is Tuesday, Aug. 21. The Town Clerk's office will be open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Aug. 21 for those last-minute registrants.

Citizens can also register during regular office hours, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Special registration hours will also be held Saturday, Aug. 19 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Ward said.

While identification is not required for residents to register, Ward said those who are registering to vote in another town will likely be asked for some sort of proof.

"Identification is not required by law because the person is going to swear under oath who they are," Ward said.

Registering to vote simply requires a citizen to provide their name, address, date of birth, occupation and political party.

"It's very painless, and I wish everyone would do it," she said.

The Exxon station at 586 Main St. will require clean-up of contaminated soil before it is sold or built on.

Exxon clean-up needs town push

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Without a push from Winchester officials to clean up contaminated soil at the Exxon station at 586 Main St., the building could remain boarded up for years.

The station has been tagged a hazardous waste site by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). However, the site is low priority for the state agency, and unless pushed by Winchester, some officials are afraid Exxon won't clean up the soil or fix up the lot for as many as four to five years.

The station had been leased by John Bossi since 1977, but Bossi was evicted in mid-July due to conflicts with Exxon. Bossi also operates Bossi's Service Center on Swanton Street.

Bossi said he signed a lease with Exxon in 1977, and has run a repair operation at the Main Street site ever since. Until 1986, Bossi said he ran the operation "very successfully," with no problems.

In 1986, Exxon apparently decided to move out of the Main Street location since expansion was limited, and offered to sell to Bossi. With two and one-half years left on his lease, Bossi said he was ready to buy.

However, when the underground tanks were removed (Bossi planned to install larger capacity tanks) and test borings on the area performed, the soil was found to be contaminated. Although Bossi had a purchase and sale agreement signed at the time, he said Exxon would not sell until the site was cleaned up due to environmental liabilities.

The DEP "put the brakes on things," Bossi said, by tagging it a low priority site. After a year with no action by Exxon, Bossi renegotiated a purchase and sale agree-

POLICE LOG

Monday, July 30
9:17 p.m.
Officer Daniel Perenick was called to the scene of a one-car motor vehicle accident at Lockeland Road.

The driver, a 17-year-old Woburn youth, was turning off the defroster in her vehicle when she veered off the roadway and struck a Boston Edison utility pole. Police noted that the pole is close to the road and that the area is dark.

The pole sustained minor damage, said police reports. The car sustained heavy front and right quarter panel damage and damage to the right front tire.

12:15 p.m.
Officer Peter Hersee followed up on an accident that occurred July 21 at 1:18 p.m. on Washington Street and Kenwin Road. At the time, the officer found the drivers of both vehicles to have their paperwork in order and no citations were issued.

The officer however, received a call from one of the drivers on this date, who informed him that the owner of the second vehicle was no longer insured. That owner told the first driver he was not insured and would not make restitution for the damages to the first driver's vehicle.

Hersee issued a citation to the driver of the second car, a 26-year-old Woburn woman, for operating an uninsured vehicle. Also, a citation was mailed to the owner of the second car, for allowing his uninsured vehicle to be operated.

2:36 p.m.
Officer William Wright responded to a three-car accident on Cambridge Street at Blossom Hill Road and Foxcroft Road.

The driver of the second car, a 43-year-old Stoneham woman, was travelling south on Cambridge Street when the first car, driven by a 44-year-old Stoneham woman, pulled out of Foxcroft Road and struck the second car on the left side forcing it into the third car. The third car, driven by a 24-year-old Tewksbury woman, was at a stop sign on Blossom Hill Road, said police reports.

The first car had damage to the right front, the second car sustained damage to the right and left front fender and right door and the third car had damage to the left front.

Beware of companies soliciting fire funds

Residents and merchants are cautioned to beware of businesses soliciting funds for a fire safety journal.

According to Kenneth Duffy, Winchester firefighters' union president, a for-profit company has been soliciting funds from local businesses to publish a fire safety book.

"They lead people to believe they are associated with the fire department and fire department activities," said Duffy. "We are not conducting any fundraising activities at this time."

Duffy said he believes the company is currently asking merchants to buy advertising space in a children's fire safety book. However, he added, no funds received from donations come back to the Winchester Fire Department. "They are not associated with the fire department or with the firefighters' union or Fireman's Relief Association," he said.

"They print a book and they might send a few out, but they don't deliver anywhere near what they say they will deliver," he added. "They don't get involved with the fire department at all."

Duffy said the company, based in Lawrence, is presently targeting businesses. In addition to soliciting funds for the fire department, Duffy said the company at times seeks funds for the police department. Anyone solicited should contact the police or fire department to determine the validity of the request.

FIRE LOG

Sunday, July 22
8:33 a.m.
Box 362 sounded for Westley Street residence. All apparatus responded. On arrival, found an electric range had malfunctioned causing the food in the oven to burn. There was light smoke in the apartment and no fire. Opened the windows and used a smoke ejector to remove the residue smoke. Advised the occupant not to use her range until it was repaired. All apparatus returned at 8:44 a.m.

12:42 p.m.
Engine 3 and Ambulance dispatched to the area behind the First Congregational Church for an injured man. On arrival we found man had slipped and fallen. The man had wedged himself underneath a large fallen tree. Fire crew had to dig a large amount of dirt and cut away underbrush to remove him. During this time, Engine 1 was sent to headquarters for coverage. After removing the man, suggested he go to the hospital and be checked out. The man refused treatment but was checked by Ambulance crew and vital signs appeared to be normal. Police officer gave the man a ride home. Ambulance and Engine 3 returned at 1:19 p.m.

12:48 p.m.
Fire alarm requested Engine 1 to cover at headquarters. Engine 1 and Ambulance emergency responded. Returned to West Side station at 1:21 p.m.

5:36 p.m.
Notified of a medical aid at Sandy Beach. Engine 3 responded. On arrival, found man had injured ankle. Assisted Ambulance crew. Engine 3 in quarters 5:52 p.m.

Lyme disease is cause of concern

By LAURA JOHNSON
Special to the Star

The increasing awareness of the dangers of Lyme disease have caused growing concern across the country and specifically in the Northeast, according to local health officials.

According to Dr. Sofya Itkis of Winchester Hospital, there were about 5,000 cases of Lyme disease reported in the United States in 1988. During 1989, 129 cases were reported in Massachusetts.

It has now been identified in 43 states, and has spread to other countries, including Germany, Scandanavia, the Soviet Union, and China. However, Dr. Lata Mundkur of the Winchester Hospital Emergency Group attests she has not come across any cases of Lyme disease in the Winchester area yet. In 1989 and 1990, there were no reported cases in Winchester, she added.

Lyme disease is a bacterial infection transferred to humans by the bite of an infected tick. First discovered in 1975 in Lyme, Conn., the disease is most prevalent in New England and the north-central region of the U.S.

The first symptom of Lyme disease is a red rash that appears anytime between three days to three months after the bite. If it is not treated, the infection progresses to a second stage that may cause critical problems with the heart or nervous system. A third stage of infection may cause arthritis.

The risk of acquiring Lyme disease grows with the increase in outdoor activity associated with warm weather. The following are precautions suggested by Itkis and Mundkur which can be taken to prevent tick bites:

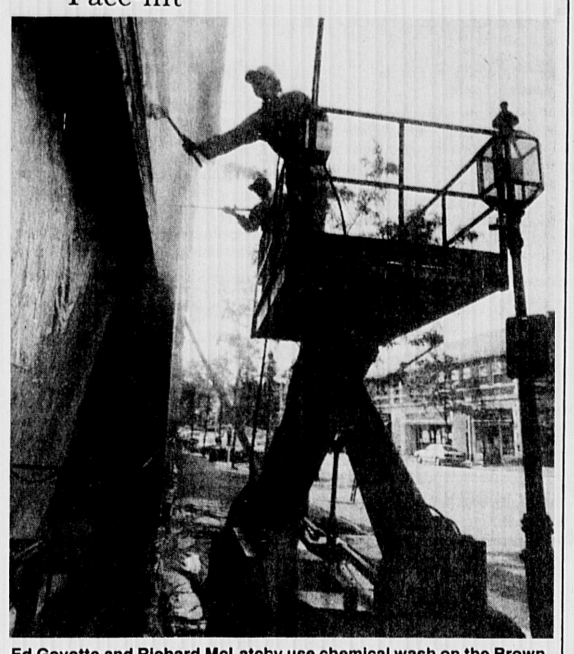

- Avoid areas where ticks are found, such as tall grass, woods, or dunes.
- Before entering such areas, try to cover as much exposed skin as possible by wearing long pants, a long-sleeved shirt, high socks and full shoes or sneakers.
- Wear light-colored clothing.
- Use a tick repellent on both skin and clothing. A product such as Cutter Tick Repellent is good for skin. Mundkur suggested a repellent called Deet made specifically for clothing.
- Check your body daily for ticks.

When a tick is found in the skin, it should be removed with tweezers. Grasp it near the skin and pull it straight out with gentle, steady pressure. Do not twist or rotate the tick.

Once it is removed the tick may be placed in a jar with a blade of grass for testing by a physician, or drowned in alcohol for disposal.

Itkis advises anyone who is concerned about the consequences of a tick bite to see a physician. For more information on Lyme disease, there is a public health fact sheet available in the health department at Town Hall.

School Committee looks at 'border houses'

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

In light of a recently decided court case on the matter, School Committee members have reexamined their policy of granting Winchester public school eligibility to students whose homes are on the town boundary.

School Committee members discussed the disposition of two particular homes in question, 14 Border Street and 45 Winfred Way at their July 24 session. Although at least four homes border both Winchester and a contiguous city or town, School Committee members opted to deal with the more pressing issues of deciding the fate of these two properties — one of which is occupied, the other is on the market.

The occupants of 14 Border Street had previously sent their children to Winchester schools. A June decision by the School Committee however, put the children at Woburn public schools because the door to their home is in Woburn.

But School Committee members reversed that decision to allow the two children (and any subsequent children) of Mr. and Mrs. David Doyle to attend Winchester schools. The next action of the committee will decide if the house itself, and therefore future occupants, will also be "grandfathered" to attend Winchester schools.

Members tabled action on the 45 Winfred Way property, however. The house is currently vacant, but is on the market and has drawn interested buyers. But according to Hunneman and Company Realtors representatives who attended the School Committee session, these prospective owners are hesitant to purchase the property without knowing whether their children will be allowed to attend Medford or Winchester schools.

Member Mark Lombardi noted that the decision should be based on the amount of property in Winchester and therefore the amount of property tax paid to the town. Chairman Donna Brandt Landry added that which town the residents would vote in should have bearing on the decision.

Members agreed however, to solicit a written opinion from Town Counsel on the matter, since several legal issues were unclear. School Committee members are expected to vote on the matter pending this opinion.

Austin named to high school post

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Susan Austin will begin her role as half-time assistant principal at Winchester High School this fall; but not all the School Committee members are pleased with the process that put her there.

At the July 24 session of the committee, member Mark Lombardi told his colleagues he would vote against the appointment of Austin on the grounds that the selection process could have been more detailed and could have drawn more participation.

"I'm against this [appointment] because we're not getting what we need in this position," said Lombardi. He added that he felt Austin gave a "wonderful interview" and that it was difficult to vote against an in-house candidate.

Lombardi noted that the board should look at filling the position should a possible "personnel shift" occur that would require an assistant principal to take on more responsibility.

School Committee member Edward O'Connell had raised concerns about the selection process at the School Committee's June 26 session. O'Connell however, favored the candidate's appointment, making a 4-1 vote.

Austin was previously a German and English teacher and also held the position of Director of Foreign Language study. Austin will work as a half-time administrator and a half-time teacher. She takes over the position since the transfer of Christine Burke to full-time assistant principal at McCall Middle School.

Planners hear Oak Knoll proposal

pavement area; and trees within the layout of the right of way.

Planning Board members agreed saving trees in the area was important, both for aesthetic and drainage reasons.

But while Engineer Jake Ciarcia said the plan was only in the preliminary stages and that Parkhurst would be required to submit a more definitive plan for approval, neighbors voiced concern regarding drainage in the area.

As a result of construction, neighbors are concerned about additional run off, since there would be fewer trees to help absorb the water.

"There's going to be more run-off in the area if trees are levelled," said one neighbor.

"A majority of the waivers improve the project because they allow the trees to stay there," with the exception of the drainage waiver, said McCall-Taylor.

Ciarcia said, however, the drainage easement is "something we can live with."

The Planning Board's approval of waivers allows developers to prepare a more definitive plan, Ciarcia said.

However, Ciarcia said it is the responsibility of the developer to design the plan in such a way that it does not have a detrimental affect on neighbors' property. If the plan resulted in harm to neighbors' property, the developer would be legally responsible for rectifying it, he added.

In addition, Ciarcia said the plan would route water into the existing drainage system — which would improve the area — rather than into the basin that currently catches runoff.

Neighbors were also concerned about the number of developments in the area. There are eleven lots in the Oak Knoll area, but two already contain structures.

"What you're looking at is a maximum development," said Ciarcia. "It has not been approved yet. It is a preliminary plan. This is only the second time the Planning Board has seen it."

Resident Candace Margles noted the Conservation Commission has tagged two areas as potential wetlands. If the areas were determined to be wetlands, they would be subject to the town's bylaws, which would restrict the number of buildable lots.

"The Conservation Commission hasn't decided what they're going to designate that [area]," Margles said. Ciarcia said the two boards will work together throughout the process.

"We're just trying to get some of the smaller points out of the way," said Ciarcia. He said when the more definitive plan is presented, it will make discussion easier. "The Planning Board is basically looking at the layout of the road and waviers so the definitive process can start," he added.

Parkhurst has proposed laying out the road along the back of portion of Brooks Street, currently an unapproved private way. Brooks Street is a u-shaped road, with both public and private ways contained within the one street. Ciarcia said the town plows and provides public safety to such private roads, but that all repairs are the responsibility of property owners.

Ciarcia noted no development on Parkhurst's land can begin until the roads are completed, and that then Parkhurst can go forward to obtain building permits.

Regarding additional input into the sewage system, Ciarcia said the developer will have to remove four times as much sewage from the system as will be added in the future.

"The system should have a reduced load when the project is done," agreed Planning Board member Maryann McCall-Taylor.

The board will schedule public hearings at a later date.

Fiscal planning lightened blow work. Angered by the governor's actions, the town of Brookline, with others, filed suit in State Supreme Judicial Court (SJC).

The SJC found Dukakis had acted illegally in impounding state aid. The court required the state to return monies, but offered no remedy. As a result, while local aid payments were returned, the legislature this year cut the funds from the state aid formula.

Thus, when the legislature level-funded local aid payments, Winchester's allottment was funded at the $3.1 million level. The 4 percent cut will come off that figure.

In May of this year, town officials anticipated a 10 percent reduction in fiscal year 1991 local aid payments — using the $3.1 million figure as a base. According to Casey, "Because of good fiscal management on the part of the Town Manager Chad Maurer and Assistant Town Manager Mark Twogood, we've prepared for the worst. We're certainly in a tailspin, but it's not as bad as it could be."

Casey said cuts to state highway funds and Chapter 653 funds could also impact Winchester, but said figures are unclear at this time.

Maurer said local officials will continue to be conservative, but refused to comment further until the town has the actual cherry sheet "in hand from the state."

Leslie Kirwan, Department of Revenue (DOR) director of program planning and analysis, said Winchester's cherry sheet figures will be available within about two weeks after the Governor signs the budget. He is expected to take that action this week.

Of a nearly $2.4 billion tagged for local aid in the current fiscal year's state budget, Kirwan said approximately $85.2 million has been cut across the boards. Kirwan noted that not all local aid accounts will be cut. Those that will be reduced include school improvement funds, Horace Mann grants, school transportation and tuition for state wards, as well as funds for public libraries.

However, accounts that will not be decreased include lottery funds, veterans' benefits, reimbursement for property tax exemptions for veterans, the elderly and the blind, and the police incentive program (Quinn bill).

Pool rules suffer setback

all points of access to the pool — including doors and windows in a wall of a building forming a portion of the barrier — be locked when the pool is not supervised.

The Board of Health must also conclude that the regulations are "necessary and not merely rationally related to the accomplishment of a permissible state policy," according to Welch.

And, enforcement problems continue to dog the proposal. Welch paraphrased the Griswold decision by asking rhetorically "are we to put a policeman in every pool owner's back yard?"

Board of Health members will discuss Welch's opinion at their Aug. 6 session. At that time, members are expected to decide whether additional legal counsel will be necessary, a request that must go before the Board of Selectmen.

Winchester Kernels

Classic 5 & 10 is a cherished landmark

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

A much-loved tradition in Winchester seems to improve with age, as each morning, Manager Walter Duffy throws open the doors of our classic F. W. Woolworth Co., 5 & 10 and begins to frame the storefront with an amazing variety of plants — drawing passers-by to window displays of a veritable bazaar.

All manner of goods are there, from Big Boy tomato plants to stationary, sewing needs, watches, VCR tapes, hardware, parakeets, clothes, household goods, foods, shoes and all manner of necessities — everything, as expected, reasonably priced.

Woolworth's occupies the site of the old Thompson Block on Main Street. The Thompson Block "just grew," like Topsy, when the 1841 B. F. Thompson house was raised into the air in 1909 and dropped unceremoniously (front porch and all) on top of a row of shops built on its site.

The Woolworth store itself has all the makings of a historic landmark with its nearly 60-year-old red and gold sign capped by a peaked gable framing the sacred "W". The original oak-framed glass entrance doors with brass kick plates are gone now — but the interior walls — again with a "W" set in each panel — are original. This is the classic F.W. Woolworth storefront — something once as ubiquitous across smalltown America and her big cities as the Model T Ford, penny candy and the five cent cigar.

Walter Duffy opened up his large office for a chat last Saturday, and a feeling of "having arrived" washed over the local observer as we passed into the area behind the curiously barred window at the rear of the store.

Mr. Duffy obviously likes people for as we talked he cited the advantages of working in the small personal operation. "I'm usually out working in the store and am able to talk with customers and sense their needs," he said. He mentioned that the Winchester Woolworth's has survived the closings and consolidations of the 1970's due to steady customer loyalty.

Loyalty is evident too in the friendliness and helpfulness of the staff — and you just can't beat the devotion of employee Sarah Cefalo who has stood by the store, and its customers, for over 40 years — truly a valued friend!

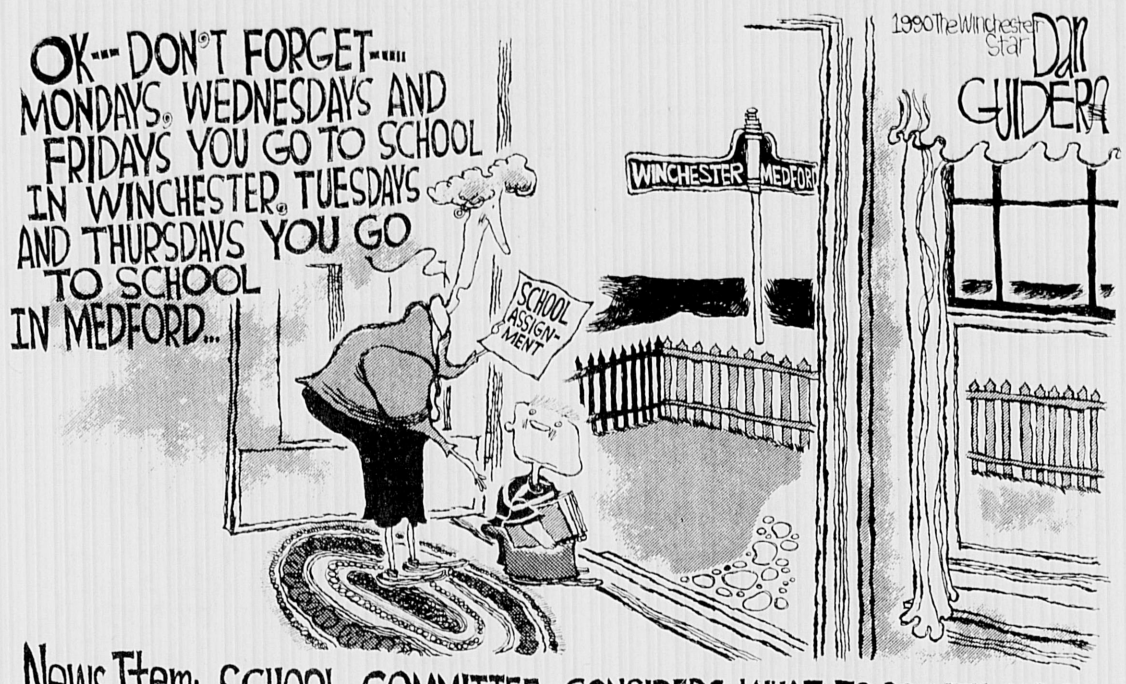

It seems the 5 & 10 has been on Main Street forever — but much has changed with the times. Gone is the wonderful scent of roasted peanuts, the bubbling goldfish tanks, the oiled floors, the turtles, the 10-cent lead soldiers, piles of gaudy ceramic ware "made in occupied Japan," and cash registers in each section of the store.

The record counter always lent an air of festivity as the "Blue Tango" or a seasonal "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus" whirled away on the 78 rpm turntable.

Walter Duffy mentioned Woolworth's will be open next Sunday as part of the annual July Dollar Days — but broke off to assist a worried little girl find something "to put doll's clothes in."

The observer — equipped with a new willow laundry basket — stepped onto a sunny Main Street confident that Frank Winfield Woolworth would be pleased his Winchester 5 & 10 still follows a favorite idea of his. "Make your customers feel at home," he once said.

Our old 5 & 10 has done that and more as for 60 years it has fostered a comfortable familiarity and usefulness that has earned it the key position in the healthy commercial life of Winchester Square.

Between the Lines:

McCall by any other name is still McCall, but School Committee members put the official stamp on the building with a vote to rename the school the McCall Middle School. In September, sixth-grade students will join the ranks of seventh- and eighth-graders at the facility in Winchester's first middle school concept.

Gabrielle Hersee of Medford was recently reinstated as a Winchester police officer when Officer Joseph O'Connor accepted a transfer to the MBTA police. Hersee's position was eliminated due to cuts in the fiscal year 1990 budget.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos and his family suffered the loss of their cat Tiger last week. Tiger not only provided love and comfort to the Mitsakos family but also an invaluable service to the town of Winchester. When deciding whether to call off school during snowstorms, Mitsakos used to open the door for Tiger to take a look outside — if the feline took the plunge into the outside world, well, the storm couldn't be that bad. But if Tiger refused to step outside, schoolchildren in Winchester got the day off. When asked how he'd know how to call a snowday without Tiger, Mitsakos quipped that school would have to be held every day.

Some legislators take a bit of R and R after budget deliberations. But Rep. Paul Casey was last seen bobbing through the Middlesex Fells on a highly classified, if not dangerous, mission. Casey, a highly vocal Stone Zoo proponent, was reportedly searching out a wallaby that escaped from the Stone Zoo.

LETTERS

Perenick challenges Rappaport campaign

TO THE EDITOR:

Given the furor created by U.S. Senate hopeful Jim Rappaport's negative advertisements, one would think that the campaign would be saying little about it. Amazingly, I recently received a letter from John Quinlan, the Rappaport campaign director, boasting of how Mr. Rappaport "is engaging John Kerry directly and is carrying the fight right to him" through these ads. Similar to his ads, the letter distorts reality.

The ad campaign failed as an engaging tactic, and was clearly a desperate scheme to distort and smear. Prior to the Republican Convention, Rappaport tried to deface Dan Daly's war record, and it backfired — Rappaport was soundly defeated at the convention.

It seems that when Rappaport is unable or unwilling to discuss true issues, he turns to smear tactics. Negative campaigning is an embarrassment, and has no place in this year's campaign when Republicans have an opportunity to capitalize on the inept management of Massachusetts Democrats.

I challenge Mr. Rappaport to lead his campaign based on his own merits and not on the distorted record of another. Furthermore, I challenge primary and general election voters to look beyond the rhetoric and examine each candidate's background and accomplishments.

Margaret A. Perenick

July 16 to 20, 1990

The House — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on three roll calls from the week of July 16-20.

Repeal Taxes (H 6115) — House 104-45, upheld the Speaker's ruling that a proposed amendment to the $362 million temporary state budget is beyond the scope of the budget and will not be allowed on the House floor for debate and a vote. The amendment would repeal the recently passed controversial sales tax on hundreds of services. Supporters of the Speaker's ruling said tax repeal is way beyond the scope of the budget which is designed to keep the state operating until a conference committee reports out a full budget. Opponents said the amendment simply provides that only the current sales tax on goods be used to fund the budgets and claimed the amendment should clearly be allowed for consideration. They said the pro-tax forces are using this ruling to stop the repeal of the new taxes.

A Yea vote supports the Speaker's ruling and prohibits consideration of the repeal. A Nay vote opposes the ruling and supports consideration of the repeal.

Representative Paul Casey voted yes.

Pickup Trucks (H 3404) — House 81-58, rejected an amendment striking the key section of a bill prohibiting children under 12 from riding in the back of a pickup truck except on farm vehicles or trucks in parades. Amendment supporters said this prohibition is another example of government interference and argued the decision shoud be left up to individual families. Opponents said the prohibition will save lives and prevent injuries.

A Yea vote is for allowing kids under 12 in the back of pickup trucks. A Nay vote is for prohibiting them.

Casey voted no.

Courthouses (H 6011) — House 136-3, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing Worcester county to borrow $1.3 million to finance costs of renovation and repair to courthouse facilities and other capital purchases of the county. Supporters said this is a responsible and necessary measure approved by the Worcester County Commissioners and advisory boards. Opponents said this will overburden Worcester County taxpayers and argued courthouses should be turned over to the state.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

This week in history

1955: 35 years ago

Plans for Winchester's Italian Colony celebration of the Feast of the Assumption moved ahead that week as final arrangements were made for a carnival, band concert and procession.

Six of 16 applicants from the Winchester Fire Department had passed a Civil Service examination for fire lieutenant.

Another no-hit, no-run game was behind Vandy French as he took the Little League All-Stars all the way for a 5-0 victory over the Melrose Americans on the Converse Rubber Field in Malden that week. French struck out 17 boys at bat and caught the only ball hit into fair territory for his 18th out. This was the second no-hitter French had tossed in the current Little League tournament.

About 90 percent of Winchester Center's stores were closed on Traders' Day, Aug. 3. Drug stores, stores owned by out-of-town corporations and a few service establishments were open, but most of the local merchants took the day off for a game of golf, a picnic with the family or a crack at the garden. A hanger-on from the 19th Century, Traders' Day used to be the one day a year on which merchants had an all-town picnic, but in 1955 it meant individual entertainment.

At Bonnell Motors a 1954 Ford 8 Custom Tudor sedan sold for about $1,545, a 1953 Ford Convertible Coupe was listed at $1,395 and a Winchester resident could drive away in a 1954 Mercury Monterey Coupe for $2,250.

Playing at the Medford Theater that week was "Love Me or Leave Me," starring Doris Day and James Cagney; Tony Curtis and Coleen Miller starred in "Purple Mask;" Glenn Ford and Eleanor Parker appeared in "Interrupted Melody" and John Derek and Diana Lynn were featured in the film, "Annipolis Story."

At the E.M. Loew's Route 128 Drive-In Theater in Burlington was the film "The Seven Little Foys" starring Bob Hope and Milly Vitale, also, "Jane's Got Jeff" starring Jane Russell and Jeff Chandler.

W. Allan Wilde and Son, an insurance company in Winchester advertised polio insurance that week in the Winchester Star.

The First National Store in Arlington offered Velveeta Cheese at 89 cents for a two-pound loaf, white tuna was priced at only 45 cents for two cans and grape jelly went for 21 cents a jar.

The Winchester Sport Shop at 41 Church Street offered swimming specials of masks for $2 to $8.95 and floats for $7.50 to $12.50.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

(See ROLLCALL, page 7A)

Casey voted yes.

The Senate — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on two roll calls from the week of July 16-20.

Juveniles as Adults (S 588) — Senate 28-4, refused to table a bill requiring an automatic hearing to determine whether juveniles aged 14-17 accused of murder should be tried as adults. The measure also creates a "rebuttable presumption" that the child presents a significant danger to the public, is not amenable to rehabilitation and should be tried as an adult. It also places the burden on the accused to prove otherwise. Bill supporters said current law places an almost impossible burden on prosecutors to prove a child should be tried as an adult and argued the bill creates a fairer system and increases the chances of a child being tried as an adult in murder cases. Opponents said the change is unfair and argued the current system protects the rights of the accused child.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Senator Salvatore Albano voted yes.

Mandatory Sentencing (H 5667) — Senate 23-10, refused to recommit to the Criminal Justice Committee the bill establishing a mandatory two year prison sentence for drug dealers convicted of operating within 1000 feet of parks, playgrounds, pool or recreational areas. Bill supporters said this expands the current law establishing mandatory sentences for dealers within 1000 feet of schools and will help stop the spread of drugs to kids. Opponents said mandatory sentencing takes flexibility away from judges and creates more space problems for already overcrowded prisons.

A Yea vote is for sending the bill back to committee. A Nay vote is for keeping the bill on the Senate floor for debate and a vote.

Albano voted yes.

Cable hosts anniversary show

TV-19 hosts the second anniversary of its local sports talk show on Thursday, Aug. 9. "Sportsview" examines local and national sports news in a live, call-in format.

The hosts of the show are Dick McCoy, Dale Smith and WMEX Radio's Jon London.

The show is scheduled live for Thursday, Aug. 9 from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Weather permitting, the setting for the special show will be outside of Continental Cablevision's studio facilities.

Some highlights of the show include a special segment from the New England Sports Museum and an inside look at how Domino's makes its pizzas so quickly.

The highlight of the special will come when WCVB-TV Channel 5 Sportscaster Mike Lynch appears live for a segment to talk sports and speak with the show's callers.

Each caller on the anniversary night receives one free admission pass to the New England Sports Museum in Boston. In addition, Domino's pan pizzas will be awarded to callers who can correctly guess the answer to the sports trivia question.

WINCHESTER PAST AND PRESENT

For Pittas, law and theater overlap

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

The world of the theater and that of the law are ones that often overlap and interact — the courtroom has been the scene for many television and movie stories, and theatricality is often part of courtroom proceedings. And, on occasion, the two worlds meet directly when a court case centers on a threatrical issue.

Each of these experiences is known to Winchester resident Sydelle Pittas, a litigation partner in the firm of Gaston & Snow. Pittas, a graduate of Harvard Law School, is an experienced lawyer in such diverse areas as anti-trust, bankruptcy, civil rights, securities fraud, toxic torts and all areas of business dispute. Her clients are in fields ranging from banking to biomedics to venture capital industries.

But she is also a graduate of the School of Performing Arts in New York (location of the movie, "Fame") and a trained actress and dancer, whose knowledge of both legal and threatrical professions came together in a recent court case. Pittas called various noted members of the Hollywood community, including Angie Dickinson, Ed Asner and Michael Landon, as witnesses for a trial in Boston.

"People have often asked me about the transition from actress to lawyer," says Pittas, "and I say, 'same skills.' " She adds, "A trial is like theater, except that your script is supposed to be the facts, so you have to present them with the truth. But you try to present the truth in a way that is interesting, entertaining, and even moving so that this jury, which is your audience, starting from absolute zero in their knowledge of the case will understand every aspect of it at the end.

"So you have to borrow from art a bit to hold the jury's attention and break down complicated material in a way that they will understand the subject matter and will, because they understand, come to the same conclusion you have — that your client deserves to win," she adds.

Pittas' recent case, Cool Light Co. Inc. v. GTE Products Corp., points up some of the overlap between theater and law. Representing the developer and manufacturer of a cool lighting system for movie and television sets, Pittas set out to prove this system was a significant improvement over former lights (which have been described by actors as having a "frying action on the skin") and already had a good market when a broken agreement by the manufacturer of an integral part put the company out of business.

In order to establish the harm caused, Pittas went to Hollywood to assemble her players — cameramen and directors who knew the lights and would testify about them. Learning that about 70 percent of prime-time television between 1975 and 1980 was shot using Cool Lights and that the stars who worked with them read like a Who's Who in television of the time, she realized the value of such actors' testimony as well.

"I wanted to bring to the jury the Hollywood magic these lights make," said Pittas, "and I thought it would make the greatest impact if they had the stars who had to perform before these lights."

Hollywood actors, however, are not easily approached. But a lucky break, combined with her theatrical background and her legal skills, came into play. The lucky break was Ed Asner's arrival in Boston for a pre-Broadway tryout of "Born Yesterday" and, during that time, appearing at a fundraiser to which Pittas was also invited. Having gone to school with Asner's co-star, Madeleine Kahn, Pittas was able to strike up a conversation and an acquaintance.

Sydelle Pittas and actor Ed Asner pause outside the courthouse.

Her friendship with Charles Durning (made while they both taught dance in the same New York studio), who shares the same agent with Asner, then helped her contact Asner in New York where he agreed to be a witness. On a trip to Los Angeles, Pittas again met Asner who got appointments for her with Dickinson and Landon, both of whom also agreed to testify.

In addition to the quality of the players in a courtroom drama, their order of presentation also is part of the theatrical approach to presenting a case. In this case, though the client would usually testify first, Pittas opened with a star (Dickinson) to get the jury's attention. She followed up with testimony from an experienced and distinguished expert in lighting effects — one who, in fact, sits on the Academy Awards technical committee — and then asked her client to take the stand. By the end of the trial, with expert testimony skillfully presented, Pittas had indeed made her case, and the jury verdict was for an award of $16 million to her client.

To viewers of fictional lawyers, such as Perry Mason or Rumpole of the Bailey, the theatricality of trial law is not a new concept, and like those lawyers, Pittas has commented on the position of the courtroom lawyer as being like an actor on a stage. In this also, particularly in the development of her courtroom character, she has relied upon her theater training since there have been few women role models in the legal profession.

Increasingly, women lawyers are being seen on television and in the movies, and this, according to Pittas, helps prepare people for women lawyers in the real world. Commenting further on cinematic lawyers, she notes that among legal shows, "the modern ones — "L.A. Law" and "Equal Justice" — actually come pretty close to the truth except that they have to enhance reality to make it interesting and they shorten everything."

Pittas' background in theater has not only kept her in good stead in her practice but also on the Winchester stage. A New York native, Pittas has resided in Winchester since 1977. Most of that time she has been active with the Winchester Players, most recently performing in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "All My Sons." Her theatricality has been a double asset — to her clients and career and to her audiences in the community.

SENIOR NEWS

Talk on hearing loss set for Aug. 8 at Jenks

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to the Star

As they grow older, many seniors experience hearing loss or impairment. Deafness is the inability or reduced ability to hear and can affect one or both ears; the onset may be slow or sudden. It can result from a wide variety of causes, and many forms of treatment and devices are available to remove or alleviate the symptoms.

Dr. Thomas J. Mulvaney who is a specialist in audiology, the science of hearing, will discuss hearing impairment, its evaluation, rehabilitation, and other matters of interest to those with such impairment or who may be concerned about future hearing difficulties. Mulvaney's presentation will take place at the Jenks Center on Wednesday, Aug. 8, at 10:30 a.m.

Mulvaney completed his residencies at St. Elizabeth's Hospital and at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. He teaches at Harvard Medical School and is affiliated with the Winchester Hospital. Although this discussion will focus on hearing impairment, Mulvaney also treats diseases of the nose, throat and neck.

All seniors are welcome to attend this enlightening discussion of a problem that affects, or will affect, many.

Reminder: WSA quarterly meeting

Seniors are reminded that, immediately following Dr. Mulvaney's discussion on hearing impairment, which is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 8 at 10:30 a.m., there will be a quarterly meeting of the Winchester Seniors Association, at the Jenks Center.

Officers and committee chairpersons will report on various accomplishments of the past three months, present problems and future plans will be discussed. All WSA members are encouraged to attend this quarterly meeting and to participate with questions and suggestions.

If you wish to stay for the Eating Together lunch following the meeting, please be sure to sign up with the desk volunteer by 11 a.m. the day before.

Northshore Music Theater

At this writing there are still a few tickets available for the trip to the Northshore Music Theater to enjoy the musical comedy "Carousel" on Aug. 15. The bus will leave the Center at 1 p.m. and return at 5 p.m. The cost is $26.50 for the ticket and transportation. Mary DeCourcy is in charge of arrangements. Take advantage of this opportunity to enjoy this wonderful musical with its great show tunes, without the worry and hassle of parking your car!

Upcoming events

Thursday, Aug. 2 — informal Crafts, 9:30 a.m.; Bridge, 12:30 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 3 — Newsletter Committee meeting, 9:30 a.m.; exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon.

Monday, Aug. 6 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; Group Experience, 11:30 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon; Line and Ballroom Dancing, 12:40 to 2:40 p.m.

Tuesday, Aug. 7 — Yoga and Creativity, 9:45 a.m., note change of date, Aug. 7 instead of Aug. 14; informal Recorder group, 2 p.m.

Wednesday, Aug. 8 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; informal Art group, 9:30 a.m.; Dr. Mulvaney's presentation on "Hearing Impairment," 10:30 a.m.; WSA Quarterly Meeting, following Dr. Mulvaney's discussion; Eating Together, 12 noon; Games Day (cribbage, cards, scrabble, chess, pool), 1 to 4 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 9 — Keep Well Clinic, 9:30 to 11:30 p.m., with Health Benefits Counselors in attendance — this will be the only Clinic in August; twice-monthly clinics will be resumed in September.

Reminder: The monthly dances continue through the summer. Join your friends in our comfortable, air-conditioned Pond Room at 8 p.m. on Saturday evening, Aug. 11.

Come join the Book Club

A dedicated and devoted group of readers will be meeting at the Jenks Center this fall. The Book Club, for those book lovers who want to read, discuss, criticize, review, and share with others, will hold its first meeting Thursday, Sept. 13, and thereafter meetings will be held once a month to start, on the second Thursday of the month, from 10:30 a.m. to about 12 noon.

So plan now to come in September, with your current favorite book under your arm.

Eating Together menu

Please remember to sign up the day before the meal, by 11 a.m., and let the desk volunteer know if you need transportation. The meal is served at 12 noon. Newcomers are always welcome.

Friday, Aug. 3 — baked lemon fish, au gratin potato, zucchini and tomato, rye bread, gingerbread with topping.

Monday, Aug. 6 — turkey chow mein, chow mein vegetables, rice, chow mein noodles, dinner roll, fresh fruit.

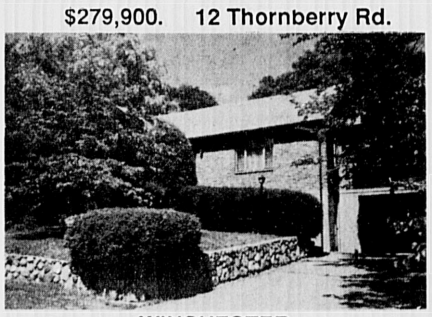

Wednesday, Aug. 8 — baked chicken legs, cranberry sauce, whipped potato, beets, raisin bread, chilled fruit.

Domino's hosts safety talk

Domino's Pizza of Boston brought Lt. Pete Collins, a Mississippi state trooper, to Wellesley Middle School auditorium on Saturday, July 14, to speak to more than 300 drivers, managers, franchise owners and local public safety officials. The presentation was part of the Boston area Domino's franchisees on-going efforts to stress the importance of safety. The lieutenant's topic was safe driving, whenever one takes the wheel whether it be to deliver a pizza or to go to and from work.

In a compelling hour-long speech, Lt. Collins kept the audience alternating between laughter and tears as he re-counted his experiences in both law enforcement and in dealing with traffic fatalities.

"I've been a Mississippi state trooper for 18 years and I've walked up to 168 doors and I've knocked," said Collins. "I can tell you how your mother will scream, how your daddy will beat his fist against the wall, how he'll take your picture and sink to the floor," he said. "Because you're looking at the world's expert on heartache and dying."

Stressing the importance of driving defensively, and never under the influence of drugs or alcohol, Lt. Collins left the audience with the challenge to continue the Domino's Pizza safe driving record in Massachusetts.

RECREATION

Mill Pond concerts

On Aug. 8, Eastwind will entertain us with Oldies to Contemporary outdoors at the Mill Pond. Admission is free but donations during the concert will be accepted to help defray expenses.

In case of inclement weather, the concert will be held in the Town Hall Auditorium. Bring a chair, blanket, picnic and friend. Takeout picnic suppers are available at the Pari's (721-1554). Call in advance to order. Relax and enjoy the music. The concert will begin at 7 p.m.

Recreation moves to Lynch

After more than nine years at the McCall Jr. High School, the Recreation Department will have a new home in the Administrative Office side of the Lynch School beginning Aug. 22.

The arrival of sixth graders at the McCall this Fall requires the existing Recreation Office space to be returned to its original classroom use. The Youth Center will remain in its present location at McCall and will continue its previous programs.

Youth tennis preparatory clinic

This is a one-week intense clinic designed for those who intend to enter Winchester Town Jr. Tennis Tournament, Aug. 13 to 17.

The clinic's goal is to prepare participants for tournament competition. It runs from Aug. 6 to 10, from 10 a.m. to noon. The fee is $29. A current tennis pass is also necessary. Please register at the Recreation Department.

Camp programs

The Recreation Day Camps are located at the McCall Junior High and at the Lincoln School. Session IV runs from Aug. 6 to 17. There will be no swimming available during this session. The following programs have some openings available:

Camp Sunshine: 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. This is a special program for those age 3 by Jan. 1 through age 5. The camp features arts, crafts, music, gymnastics, nature study, and sports activities. An out-of-camp field trip is scheduled. The fee is $79.

LIBRARY LINES

Wings and Things

The Winchester Public Library's Wings and Things Summer Reading Program for children will present the Poobley Greegy Puppet Theater on Wednesday, Aug. 8 at 3:30 p.m. The program, entitled, "On the Air: The First Flyers," will portray the history of attempts at flying from a pigeon's point of view.

The Poobley Greegy Puppeteers are former teachers Janice and Stephen Babcock. The Babcocks research material, write scripts, make the puppets and stage, and compose music for each show. They are members of the Puppeteers of America and Associates of the Puppet Showplace Theater in Brookline. "Poobley Greegy" comes from the name of one of their early puppets.

This program is recommended for children aged 6 and up. Free tickets for this event can be picked up in the Children's Room. To pick up tickets, children must be registered in the Wings and Things Summer Reading Program.

Storyline

Do you know about the Winchester Public Library's Story Line? When the Children's Room is closed, call 721-7140 and listen. There is a new story every week.

The next Evening Family Story Time for two to six year-olds and their families will be held on Monday, Aug. 6 at 6:30 p.m. in the Children's Room. No registration is required. This will be the last story time with Margaret Adams until October. Please call the Children's Room for information about future Evening Family Story Times.

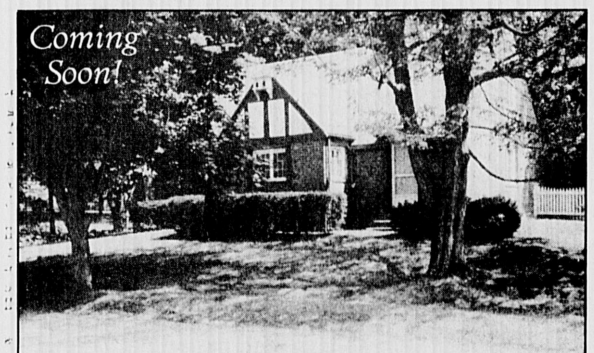

For information on any of these children's activities at the Winchester Public Library, please call the Children's Room at 721-7140.

Awards party

Invitations to the Awards and Celebration Party on Thursday, Aug. 16 at 3:30 p.m. are available in the Children's Room. Independent readers need to have read 10 books, and pre-reader teams should have read 15 books. Invitations can be picked up at the Children's Reference Desk. Over 400 children joined the club this year!

IF YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND, ASK!

Dick Murphy, Bixby & Porter

Sometimes, looking for a home can feel like one of those total submersion foreign language programs. You feel like you need to run out and buy a Berlitz Real Estate / English phrase book.

If your agent gets carried away talking about wraps, SAM's, ARM's, points, deeds of trust, assessments, escrows, or anything else that sounds even slightly out of context, stop and ask for a translation. Real estate, like many other professions, has a language all its own. Sometimes we catch ourselves, noticing that our buyers or sellers may be glazing over and becoming disoriented or confused. If your Realtor is trying to explain some aspect of the sale or purchase of a home and leaves you confused, it's OK to request a plain English version of whatever he or she is trying to say. It's important to us and to you that you understand clearly the information we provide so you can make informed decisions about your property.

The conditions of approval in the waiver granted to Ferrari on July 13 however, mandate additional "field investigations" and a public involvement plan that must be implemented by Ferrari.

NETF members questioned the response of the DEP and the probability of these conditions being properly overseen. Also, neighbors say "field investigations" could be defined as simply sniffing the air, and also wonder if Ferrari will follow the strict mandate of the public involvement plan.

"Clearly, [the DEP] didn't go the whole nine yards," agreed board member Dr. Warren Taylor.

"The DEP will wash their hands of [the Rock Ave. site], unless the Board of Health makes them step up to the mark," added NETF member Peggy Schleicher.

Schleicher charged the conditions of approval for the waiver had "no teeth" and questioned how the Board of Health planned to proceed.

"The person who is the polluter in the beginning will be overseeing [the conditions for approval]," said Schleicher. "You must remain involved. The site is still in the town of Winchester and it's no good to have a cover-up of an already bad situation. It's a Winchester Board of Health problem as well."

Board member Taylor added however, that when the Board of Health assigned the site to the DEP in December, 1989, members by no means washed their hands of the situation.

Board Chairman Dorothea Sopper said that while she was aware that NETF members had relatively little faith in the DEP, she saw turning jursidiction of the site over to the agency as the best route available.

Said Board of Health member Randall Swartz, "I am deeply concerned about the apparent difficulty in relying upon staff persons at the DEP for any level of consistency or responsiveness to their prior commitments." Swartz also made a motion, which was supported by the board, to draft a letter to the DEP expressing the concerns of the board and to reaffirm the board's position on the waiver.

Clean-up needs push ment. However, as part of that agreement, Bossi said he wanted a specific time as to when Exxon would perform the work.

"I got nothing in writing from Exxon," he said. "I had every intention of buying it up and starting up a business again."

Bossi's lease expired in mid-1988, and Exxon brought suit against Bossi to force him to vacate the premises. Bossi countered with his own suit to make Exxon specify a clean-up date.

"I had a lot of money and time invested in there," he said. "I wanted to make it a first-rate [business] in town."

But when the courts decided in Exxon's favor, Bossi was forced to move out, and the plywood went up on the windows. "The court decided we were in violation because we didn't have a lease," Bossi said.

As for DEP tagging the site "low priority," Bossi said, "It's too bad, but it is a problem down in the center ... [DEP says it] has more pressing problems. The only place it's going to end up is in the water table," he added.

At present, Bossi has no plans to pursue further action with Exxon.

"I took the blow and signed off," he said. "I'd love to have it. It would put me back in perspective and maybe get back some lost money."

Planning Board

While Planning Board members said the site is not in their purview, they agreed they would like to see it cleaned up and revitalized.

Saying the property was "at a very pivotal place in town," Member Edward Rodriguez suggested the property could be sold and developed, or even possibly donated to the town as park land.

At the Planning Board's Monday night meeting, Rodriguez suggested the board contact State Rep. Paul Casey to get the ball rolling. "The right call to the right person [in DEP] would get the wheels in motion," said Rodriguez.

When contacted by the Star, Casey said he would be happy to pursue the matter with DEP if asked to do so by the town.

Bambinos split two

The Newpro Allstars reopened play in the Bay State League July 24 after a week-long absence. The team enjoyed a week off after the disappointing trip to the state Bambino tournament.

The second round of Bay State opened at home with Belmont as the opponent. It turned out to be a pitchers duel between Winchester's Andy Sullivan and a duo from Belmont. Winchester opened the scoring in the home half of the second. With two outs, Greg Miles legged out an infield hit. Bill Shields followed with a line triple down the left field line scoring Miles.

Belmont answered in the top of the third with a single, a stolen base, and two ground outs scoring the run. Winchester immediately answered in the bottom of the third when Steven Cucinatti walked and Andy Sullivan doubled. Jarrod Galante doubled scoring both runners and giving Winchester a 3-1 lead. Belmont came right back in the top of the fourth and tallied one run on a double and an error to make the score 3-2. The remainder of the game was very quiet with both pitchers throwing extremely well.

Sullivan finished the game with 7 K's, 2 walks, and surrendered 4 hits. On the home side, Sullivan had two hits, Greg Miles, Galante, Brian Caruso, and Shields each had one.

The Newpro team seemed rusty after the week layoff. Timely hits by Bill Shields and Jarrod Galante along with solid pitching from Andy Sullivan saved the day. Brian Caruso played extremely well at shortstop.

On Thursday night the team traveled to Belmont for the return match. This game turned out to be completely different from the prior match. Winchester opened the top of the first with a Richie Guilderson hit and an Andy Sullivan walk. Bob Marrone followed with a towering home run deep to centerfield and a 3-0 lead.

In the top of the second, Winchester added to the lead. Bill Shields lined a single to left and Steven Cucinatti followed with a long home run and a 5-0 lead. Belmont tallied three times in the third on a series of errors to close the gap to 5-3.

Winchester pitcher Jarrod Galante was definitely the victim of poor defense. In the fourth, again Winchester mistakes lead to a six run Belmont rally giving the home squad a 9-5 lead over our locals. Winchester tallied in the fifth when Guilderson singled, Marrone walked, and Galante followed with an RBI single. Belmont added an insurance run in the fifth to lead 10-6.

In the final inning, Winchester loaded the bases with nobody out and could only bring one run and that when Bob Marrone was hit by a pitch. Final score Belmont 10 Winchester 7.

Once again, defense turned out to be the thorn in the Newpro side. The team committed several errors both mentally and physically. On the bright side, Richie Guilderson came off the bench and chipped in three hits. Bill Shields stayed hot and added two more. Brian Caruso once again had an outstanding defensive game at shortstop.

All-stars win three straight

The Carroll Insurance 10-year-old all-star team won three straight games last week to earn a seed in the first round tournament of the Bay State summer league.

The first game of the streak, reported on last week, was the game Carroll Insurance won 8-5 on July 21.

Winchester stayed on the winning track July 23, defeating Everett by the same score — 8-5.

The team was led by Mark "Magic" Sullivan who pitched a complete game for the victory. He also made several fine defensive plays.

This was a total team defensive effort highlighted by a Notar-to-Davis-to-Lang cut-down of a runner at home plate.

The defense was led by Joe Lang who made two tags at the plate and Mark "Scoop" Shannon who continues to play a solid first base.

The offense was led by Chris DeSimone, with two hits, and Mike Notartomaso, who continues to hit the ball hard and run the bases intelligently and aggressively. Once again, Dan "Don't Call Me Danny" White had a key hit.

Winchester travelled to Everett July 26.

With a tournament bid on the line, Winchester was trailing 9-4 heading into the fifth inning. The team proceeded to send 10 batters to the plate for six runs in the fifth. Then in the sixth, they sent 13 batters up for another eight runs. The final score was 18-12, Winchester.

The offensive leader for this game was Brad Murphy who was two-for-four with four RBIs. Murphy had the big hit in the fifth inning when he doubled with the bases loaded for three runs and the lead. Chris DeSimone contributed with two more hits. Mike Notar had a double and a steal home.

Brian Russo pitched in relief and picked up his first victory of the summer.

The defensive play of hte game was made by Mike Roscillo, who made a bare-handed stab at a bad-hop grounder in the second inning.

Winchester med Needham July 28 in the first round medal tournament.

In the first inning, Winchester scored three runs to take an early lead. Unfortunately, that is all the team was able to score.

With the pitching of Brian Russo and a flawless defense, the team still led 3-1 after 3½ innings. But everything fell apart for Winchester in the bottom of the fourth as Needham sent 13 batters to the plate and scored nine runs.

Winchester was unable to recover and lost, 12-3.

Brian Russo played a fine all-around game with solid pitching and offense. The offensive leaders were Mark Shannon and Chris DeSimone, each with two hits.

Second round play begins this Saturday.

She has a driving ambition

By CHRIS ALEXANDER
Special to the Star

At first glance, the Matignon High School boys golf team seems like just another boy's varsity team. Take a closer look, though, and a rather radical difference becomes apparent; one of the golfers on the team is a girl.

Christine Albiani, a 17-year-old Winchester resident, is the only girl playing golf for the Matignon boys golf team, and has more than earned that privilege.

This year Albiani boasted a personal record of 8-2-1, and played such an important part in bringing the team's season to an impressive 7-5 that she was voted Most Valuable Player.

Entering her senior year at Matignon, Albiani has just completed her third year of golf for the team. She began playing only six years ago, and now averages an impressive mid-to upper-40 total for the first nine holes.

Albiani first became interested in golf due to her father's frequent playing. "My father plays a lot, and I thought maybe it would be fun. After I tried it, my father said I had natural talent, so I stuck with it," she said.

"I've taken lessons, but the best way to become a good golfer is just to play. I'm lucky enough to live right near the fifth hole at the Winchester Country Club, so after dinner in the summer I'm able to go over and play," Albiani added.

Recently, Albiani and her father won overall in the Winchester Country Club's Father/Daughter Competition. Golf is not the only sport in which Albiani excels however. A natural athlete, she also plays varsity soccer and junior varsity basketball for Matignon High School. For fun, Albiani confesses that she plays "just about everything."

Regardless of her own athletic prowess, Albiani maintains that one does not have to be athletic to be a strong golfer.

"I know a lot of athletes who can't play the sport. Everybody can learn though. To be good, being athletic isn't necessarily all that important. It takes a combination of strength and finesse," Albiani said.

Albiani has played many different courses, but is partial to the Winchester and Woburn Country Clubs and a course near her family's condominium in West Palm Beach, Florida.

She admits that it is not always easy finding people her age to play with. "Not too many kids my age play golf," Albiani commented. "Of those that do, most are boys."

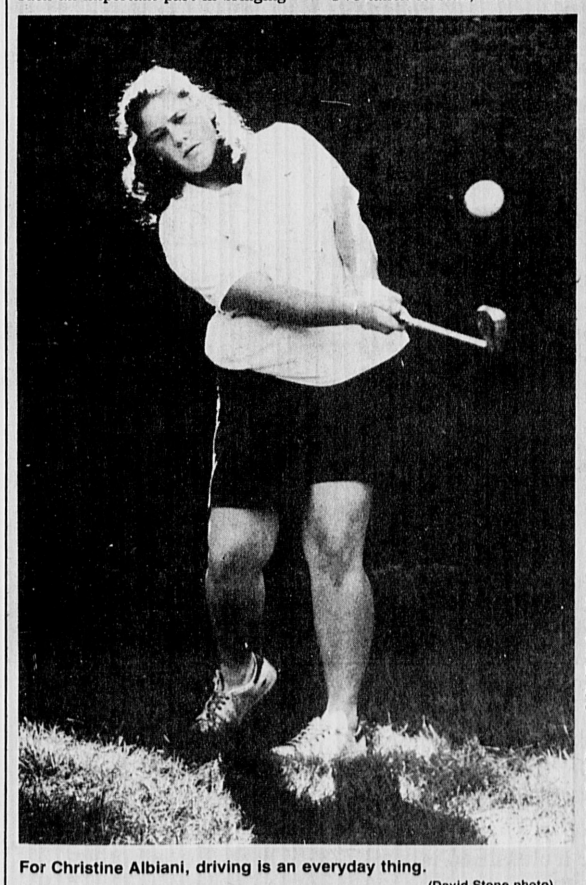

Albiani is used to playing with members of the opposite sex from her experience on the boy's golf team at Matignon, which she says has been entirely positive.

"It's good. It keeps me on my toes," she said. "I try to outdrive them, so I'm constantly pushing myself harder than I would on a girl's team."

Albiani said that she is treated like "one of the guys", which she prefers to being treated as if she were different or special.

After her last season of golf for the team, Albiani plans to attend college. She is currently interviewing at the University of Vermont and the University of Rhode Island. She hopes to pursue her interest in zoology and perhaps eventually find a career working with animals.

She would like to continue playing golf in college, but stresses that she is going for purely academic reasons. With sports, she said, "You can only go so far. And it's hard to be as good as the golf pros down south because they can play every day of the year. And then there's all the pressure of professional sports. I'd much rather play for fun."

Newpro all-stars split series

The Newpro All Stars just can't seem to put two wins together these days. The team split with Westford over the weekend, winning Saturday 9-0 and losing on Sunday 9-8.

On Saturday, Newpro opened the scoring in the bottom of the second. Mike McGreenery and Steven Cucinatti followed with an RBI base hit. Paul McGowan followed with a two run double and a 3-0 Winchester lead. Winchester pitcher, Mike McGreenery, cruised through the first three innings.

In the bottom of the third Winchester added to the lead on a triple by Bob Marrone and a base hit by McGreenery. Winchester added another in the fourth when Eric Grant got a base hit and moved around on wild pitches and eventually scored on the mound for Winchester, cruising through the fifth. Winchester ended any Westford hope of a comeback in the bottom of the fifth.

Hits by Bill Shields, Tim Zue, Rich Guilderson, and Paul McGowan along with several walks lead Winchester to 4 runs and a 9-0 lead. McGreenery set visiting Westford down in order in the sixth to earn the victory.

Mike McGreenery pitched an exceptional game this day. He scattered four hits, walked one and struck out three. The team played it's best defense of the year, which has been a thorn in the side for the entire season. The hitting was timely.

One Sunday night, in the team's first night game, Westford turned the tables on the Newpro All Stars. Westford took a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the second off starting pitcher Bill Shields. Westford mustered two hits, a walk, and several errors of omission and commission. Winchester answered with a run in the top of the third. Steven Cucinatti lead with a hit followed by Bob Marrone and Jarrod Galante. Winchester tallied seven times in the top of the fourth on nine hits. Winchester got seven hits in a row. Bill Shields and Mike Pacheco had two each in the inning.

The big blow was a towering double by Bob Marrone to cavernous centerfield. Bill Shields had a strong inning in the bottom of the fourth to preserve the 8-3 lead. Unfortunately, Shields ran out of gas in the fifth. Westford tallied five times to tie the game and Shields was replaced by Paul McGowan. Winchester could not score in the sixth. Westford put the lead runner on in the sixth. He went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a base hit to give Westford the 9-0 victory.

Girls' soccer takes Bay State title

A group of Winchester players recently captured the six versus six soccer championship at the Bay State Games. The team included Renee Bussell, Jenny Gilpatric, Liz Kelley, Jessica Lanzo, Melissa Mandracchia, Sara Noonan, Dauren Nowell, Jen Russo, Julie Struthers and coach Jim Noonan.

The Bay State Games is an Olympic-style sports festival which is held once each summer. This year, for the first time, six vs. six soccer was added to the schedule. This variation of the game is played on a field about half the size of a normal field.

Playing in the high school age group, the Winchester team qualified for the semi-finals by edging Wellesley 3-2, defeating Quincy 3-0 and tying Pembroke 2-2. During these preliminary games, the team was becoming accustomed to the subtleties of the small-sided game.

In the semi-final round, Winchester rallied three times from one-goal deficits to edge a team from Brockton by a 4-3 score.

The final, a rematch between Winchester and Pembroke, was decided quickly as the Winchester players scored early and often and rolled to a 7-1 win.

The Winchester team was led by the scoring of Jenny Gilpatric, Liz Kelley, Renee Bussell and Jessica Lanzo. Defending their goal and starting the attack were Sara Noonan, Dauren Nowell, Julie Struthers and Melissa Mandracchia. Jen Russo had an excellent tournament in goal and was outstanding in the final game. Each player received a Bay State Games gold medal for capturing the championship.

Physicals needed for high school athletes

In order to participate in fall sports at Winchester High School, all students must have a physical examination by their own physician, dated no earlier than May 1, 1990.

Copy of the exam must be given to the coach on the first day of practice.

Husband/wife tourney is Aug. 8

Applications are due Wednesday, Aug. 8 for the annual E. Whitney Gray husband/wife tennis tournament. Applications must be received by 6 p.m. at the home of Helen and Richard Campobasso, tournament organizers, 60 Emerson Road.

The spousal tennis event, to be played at Packer Courts Aug. 11 and 12, is geared for couples of all abilities. A party Saturday night at the Jenks Center from 7:30 p.m to midnight includes a dinner dance with entertainment by The Ultimate Sound.

Coquille Caterers will provide the chicken divan. The party is open to those who are unable to play but who still would like to join the fun. The cost oof the event is $32/couple or $16/person, with or without the tennis.

The tournament, which is in its 18th year, is sponsored by the Winchester Tennis Association. Those on the committee this year include Linda and Alex Popp, Mary Dewhurst, Janice and Frank Frisoli, Cynthia and Scott Randall, Joe Palumbo and Phil Cooney.

SCHOOL NEWS

Student spends spring at veterinary hospital

Emily Sprong, a senior at the Buckingham, Browne and Nichols School in Cambridge and an aspiring veterinarian, spent her spring semester at the Winchester Veterinary Group on Cross Street. As her senior project, Sprong came to the hospital daily to observe Drs. Jed Diehl and Steve Zanotti in their veterinary practice.

During the course of the semester, she had an opportunity to see firsthand the workings of a full service veterinary hospital as the doctors examined and treated patients, performed surgery, took radiographs and interpreted various diagnostic tests.

The Winchester Veterinary Group has also been very active with local school groups this spring. Diehl and Zanotti sponsored four Winchester students with projects in the mentor program. They have also conducted numerous tours of the hospital and talked about veterinary medicine with over 200 students from the Neighborhood Coop Nursery School, St. Mary's School, Lincoln School, Ambrose School and Muraco School.

Diehl was recently a guest speaker at McCall Jr. High School as part of Career Awareness Day. He spoke on his decision to go into veterinary medicine, his training as a marine biologist and his experiences as a high school biology teacher. He also discussed the capabilities of today's state-of-art veterinary medicine and the opportunities that will exist for the veterinarians of the future.

Diehl and Zanotti look forward to increased involvement with Winchester's students of all ages.

Landry graduates from Beaver Day

The Class of 1990, parents, friends and faculty gathered recently to celebrate the 66th graduation ceremony of Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill.

Students received diplomas from Headmaster Jerome Martin, Chairman of the Board of Trustees Ed Eskandarian and Dean of the Faculty Jane Moulding.

Jason Landry, the son of Mr. Rudy Landry of Winchester, received his diploma as well as the Most Valuable Player Award for boys' varsity baseball. He will attend Macalaster College in the fall.

Societe inducts 12 new members

The Winchester High School chapter of the Societe honoraire de francais recently inducted 12 new members. The Societe is sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French, and its local advisors are French teachers Alfred Duhamel and Leslie Hastings.

In order to be selected, students need to maintain an A- average in their French courses over the last several years, and a B- average in all other courses.

The newly inducted members are all students in French IV or V. They include Brittanny Boulanger, Yu-Harn Chen, Arup De, Campbell Foster, Jeffrey Foster, Aram Goudsouzian, Elizabeth Holt, Christopher Jervey, Elisabeth Kenerson, Thomas Moore, Rosa Palacios, and Sarah Power.

Kidder graduates from Middlesex School

Robert Todd Kidder, Jr., graduated from Middlesex School in June.

Kidder was president of the Class of 1990 and played varsity baseball during his senior year. He is the son of Jean C. Kidder of Winchester, and Robert T. Kidder of Boston. He will attend Boston College in the fall.

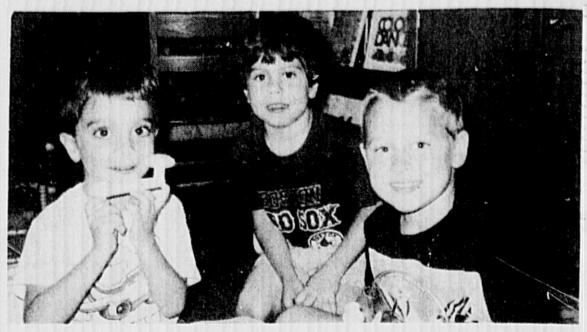

Middlesex School, in Concord, MA, is an independent boarding and day school of 300 girls and boys in grades nine through 12.

WCNS opens new class this fall

In response to an expressed community need, the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School has opened a new class for prekindergarten children. The class begins in September and meets four afternoons each week.

The Winchester Cooperative Nursery is a non-profit school with a tradition of strong parent participation. Nearly 100 children attend the various classes for three- and four-year-old children during the school year. Located in the Unitarian Church, the school has provided a stimulating experienced based curriculum for 22 years.

According to Director Jean Mortensen, there is one space available in the class. If parents of four year olds are interested, they may call the enrollment chair at 721-2341 or the president at 729-5671.

Sullivan receives Fenn diploma

Peter Sullivan of Winchester was among the 34 boys who received diplomas at the 61st set of graduation exercises held at The Fenn School on June 6.

He was also the recipient of the arts department prize for his contributions in the designing of sets for Fenn plays and for his work in the art studio while at Fenn. Sullivan will attend the Pingree School in the fall.

Also recognized at graduation was Tyson Phipps of Winchester for winning honorable mention in the upper school Travers writing contest.

OBITUARIES

Arthur Rogers Jr.

Arthur Verne Rogers, Jr., 74, of Scituate and Hebron, N.H. died recently in Concord, N.H. of complications following emergency surgery.

He was born in Winchester, graduated from Belmont Hill School and furthered his studies at Oxford University. An avid golfer and longtime member of the Winchester Country Club, he won the club championship there four times. He was also active in the Scituate Country Club.

Mr. Rogers is survived by his wife, Barbara (Erickson) Rogers; a son, Arthur Verne "Terry" Rogers III of Darien, Conn.; and four grandchildren, John W. Thompson III and Sara Erickson Coulter, both of Syracuse, Christopher Erickson Rogers of Darien, Ct.; and Heather Rogers of Boston. He was the father of the late Stephanie Coulter.

Mildred Green

Mildred E. Green of Winchester died July 30 at Mediplex Nursing Center in Lexington. She was 77.

Born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia on Aug. 11, 1912, Mrs. Green was the daughter of Archibald and Esther (Walton) Woods.

Mrs. Green lived in Winchester for 25 years, previously residing in Lynn. She was employed as a home health care companion, working with the elderly in their homes.

She was the wife of the late Elliot J. Green, and was devoted to her grandchildren and family.

Mrs. Green leaves a daughter, Barbara V. Lystad of Woburn; a sister, Gertrude Sadler of Sandown, N.H.; two grandchildren, Scott E. Lystad of Chapel Hill, N.C. and Kristin Lystad of Woburn; and a son-in-law, Knute Lystad of Woburn.

A funeral was held from the Graham Funeral Home in Woburn Thursday, Aug. 2 at 11 a.m., followed by interment at Pine Grove Cemetery in Lynn. Arrangements were handled by the Arthur Graham Funeral Home of Woburn.

Rev. William Flug of the United Methodist Church in Woburn officiated.

This month alone, 8000 cars in Massachusetts will be fixed with FAKE PARTS!

DON'T LET YOURS BE ONE OF THEM!

Today's insurance regulations are so loose insurance companies can authorize repairs done with imitation parts - they say it will save you money, but in-fact may be putting you in danger! At Holton Street Auto we ONLY use genuine parts, we always have! If you're in an accident, need repairs & want your car to be as safe as it was before the accident give us a call & ask for Carl. We'll look out for your rights!

Langley appears in 'Hello Dolly'

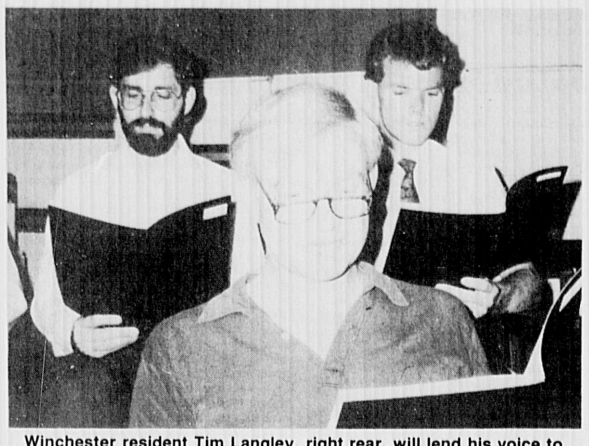

"Hello, Dolly!" America's most popular musical up to the time it ran 2,844 performances in New York, will breeze happily into the Reagle Players' theatre for seven performances beginning July 31, with Adele Keohan of Wakefield as Dolly Gallagher Levi, the bustling, meddlesome matchmaker who stirs up a storm in the colorful New York of the Gay Nineties.

Based on Thornton Wilder's farce, "The Matchmaker," the show recounts how a spirited marriage broker in New York in the 1890's has nearly concluded a match between one Horace Vandergelder, a tight-fisted "half-a-millionaire" of Yonkers, and Mrs. Molloy, a milliner in New York, when Dolly sets out to snag the groom for herself.

Tim Langley of Winchester will appear in the all-male chorus in the show-stopping back-to-back numbers, "Waiters' Gallop" and "Hello, Dolly" — 15 minutes of straight razzmatazz that brings the house down night after night.

Robert Eagle is directing this dazzling concoction, with sets from the national tour, Gower Champion's original choreography recreated by Susan Chebookjian, and Arthur Finstein conducting the orchestra.

Performances are at the air-conditioned Robinson Auditorium, 617 Lexington St., Waltham, on Aug. 3, 4, 9, 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 to $14, depending on time and seating. They may be purchased at the box office from 9 to 4:30 weekdays, or from noon to showtime on performance weekends. They may also be ordered by calling the box office at 891-5600 or Theatre Charge at 497-1118.

Winchester resident Tim Langley, right rear, will lend his voice to "Hello, Dolly!" in the Waltham production by the Reagle Players. The show will be held in the Robinson Auditorium, 617 Lexington St., Waltham, from July 31 through Aug. 11. For tickets, call 891-5600.

Bless the Children fundraiser set

Bless the Children of Haiti, Inc., sponsors the first anniversary buffet fundraiser, hosted by Charles Austin of WBZ-TV Channel 4 on Saturday, Sept. 22 at 10 a.m.

Boy Scouts bike through Nova Scotia

Six senior Boy Scouts of Troop 503 sponsored by the First Congregational Church in Winchester spent a week June 22-28 on a 200 mile camping and bicycle tour of Nova Scotia.

In addition to the usual summer camp program, each year Troop 503 plans a special high adventure trip for its senior scouts. In past years these have included, 100 mile canoe trips, 50 mile mountain hiking and white water rafting.

The Senior Scouts were Mike McDonough, Mark McCaul, Jeff Sullivan, Neil Doxon, Alec Ward and Scott Dieter. The adult leaders were Tom Raphael and Carl Rowe.

On Friday, June 22, the bicycles ranging from 12 to 18 speed were packed into a 15 passenger van (three seats removed) along with camping gear and the boys with two adult leaders and a second car headed for Portland, ME.

That evening they boarded the M.V Scotia Prince ferry for the overnight trip to Yarmouth, N.S. Even though they had cabins with bunks there was little sleeping due to the many activities on this ferry which is a full scale cruise ship with dining, movies and live entertainment.

On arrival Saturday at Yarmouth, the bicycles were unloaded from the van and the boys started the first leg of their trip cycling 42 miles along Route 1 on the Evangeline Trail on the west coast of Nova Scotia to Church Point for the first camp ground.

The general daily routine was to awake, make breakfast, pack tents and start bicycling. The van would proceed ahead to major check points, usually about 5 to 10 miles. Frequent stops were made to view fishing docks, coves and historic spots. Lunch was at picnic grounds or Provincial Parks of sandwiches. By late afternoon we would arrive at the previously reserved camp ground and pitch tents. The one luxury of the trip was eating supper out.

From Church Point the boys cycled 60 miles through Digby to Bridgetown, stopping to see the tidal hydoelectric station at Annapolis Royal.

The third day took them from Bridgetown 48 miles to Kentville. The fourth day was 53 miles via Wolfeville to Grande Pre where we took a side trip to see Grande Pre or great meadow which was diked out by the tidal flats of the Bay of Fundy where there are 40 foot tides and to visit the memorial to the Arcadians made famous by Longfellow's poem Evangeline. Then on through Windsor and Uniack Mountain to Halifax making a total of 203 miles.

This ended the bicycle tour and the bicycles were packed into the van for the return trip down the east coast or Lighthouse Trail back to Yarmouth and some fun and sightseeing.

The fifth night we camped south of Halifax near Peggy's Cove where we had dinner. The next day we started out by breaking camp and going to Halifax's renovated waterfront for breakfast and a tour of the Historic Properties. Then on to the Citadel to review military history. From there we went along the coast through Mahone Bay to Lunenburg where the famous "Bluenose" schooner was built and there visited the Fisheries Museum.

Finally arriving back at Yarmouth we camped overnight and took the ferry for a day trip back to Portland, ME, and then home.

For their part in this trip the boys will receive the Bicycle Merit Badge, the High Adventure Patch and the International Tour Patch.

Acknowledgement is made that the Winchester Rotary contributed to the expenses of this trip.

Scerra receives national appointment

Joseph A. Scerra of Winchester, a member of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 905, has been appointed as vice chairman of the Committee on National By-Laws, Manual of Procedure and Ritual by VFW Commander-in-Chief Walter G. Hogan.

The committee will convene during the VFW's 91st National Convention in Baltimore, Maryland between Aug. 17 and 24. Members will meet with national leaders and review the by-laws governing veterans eligibility for membership, establishment of new Posts and a variety of procedures effecting the 2.1 million member veterans organization.

In announcing the appointment, Commander-in-Chief Hogan reflected: "People who have helped preserve their country through military service in time of war best understand the importance of maintaining the freedom and liberty we all enjoy and sometimes take for granted."

Scerra, himself a former VFW Commander-in-Chief, has been active in veterans affairs for many years.

Albano holds district hours

State Senator Salvatore R. Albano (D-Somerville) will hold his monthly Winchester district hours in Town Hall on Friday Aug. 3 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Albano said, "I urge people who want to discuss a legislative issue or a personal matter with me to stop by and talk. If you can't make it at this time, feel free to schedule an appointment with me in my office."

For more information on district hours or any issue, please call the Senator's office at 722-1578 or visit State House, Room 423, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Amigos help Latin Americans

High school and college volunteers from Greater Boston Communities have joined over 500 youth volunteers from across the nation as summer public health workers with Amigos de las Americas in Brazil, Ecuador, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Paraguay and Mexico. The Amigos, living often quite primitively with rural families, become an integral part of the communities they are serving under the auspices of local ministries of health.

In preparation for their weeks of volunteering to help meet basic public health needs, the youth, starting in November, committed one evening a week and several weekends to training and fundraising, assisted by adult volunteers who manage the Greater Boston Chapter and give the instruction. Lily Palacios, Winchester High student, originally from Venezuela, was one of the Greator Boston Chapter Spanish instructors this past year. Palacios hopes to be an Amigo herself in 1990-91.

Amigos will show slides and share their experiences as public health volunteeers in Latin America at an annual recognition and recruiting supper Sept. 9. For more information and reservations call (617) 484-6310 or answering service (617) 861-6398j

New Horizons names two new directors

New Horizons at Choate today announced the appointments of Winchester residents Dr. James E. McDonough and Ms. Janet M. Pavliska to the organization's board of directors. With the conversion of the former Choate Hospital in Woburn nearing completion, New Horizons Executive Director Mary Ann Outwater sees these appointments as " ... timely additions to New Horizons. The level of expertise which both Dr. McDonough and Ms. Pavliska offer, combined with their leadership abilities and backgrounds, greatly enhances an already impressive board of directors."

McDonough is a recently retired obstetrician and gynecologist who has practiced in the Woburn/Winchester area, including Choate Hospital, for many decades. McDonough is a director of Winchester Hospital and the former Chief of the Medical Staff. In addition, his many honors include serving as president of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

Pavliska is the president of Bank Five for Savings and is also Chairman of the National Council of Savings Institutions. Ms. Pavliska is also a director of both Winchester Hospital and Woburn Boys Club, and presently is a member of the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Authority. She has been consistently recognized for her leadership roles in both the Woburn area and nationally.

According to Mrs. Outwater, "The whole purpose of New Horizons is to create an affordable living alternative for seniors who enjoy an independent lifestyle yet appreciate the benefits of a community environment. We are extremely gratified that these two professionals accepted our invitation to join our board and expect their contributions and endorsements to greatly impact the success of New Horizons."

Also on the site of the former Choate Hospital is the new Medical Center at Choate, with two affiliates of nearby Winchester Hospital already fully operational in the adjacent facility at 23 Warren Avenue. The Woburn Walk-In Center is staffed on a full-time basis with physicians, nurses, and X-ray technicians from the Winchester Hospital emergency room.

In addition, the Caulfield Center remains in full operation on the second floor.

Business Spotlight

Gallagher & Carr Contracting

Did you know that 65 - 90 percent of home remodeling costs are recovered in added resale value? Gallagher & Carr Contracting are in their fifth year of building improvements. Specializing in custom remodeling for homeowners, the company attends to the personal attention required to more than satisfy the needs of the project. Using a combination of modern equipment and age-old techniques, each job is flavored appropriately and continued individually. "We recently finished the interior of a private library with custom mahogany millwork", says Roger Gallagher. All work is guaranteed and finished within an estimated time frame. For more information contact Roger at 643-1876 or Jay at 254-3366.

New Classified Service

Starting this week we opened our new telemarketing center designed to make placing your classified advertising faster when you call 617-729-SOLD.

Our Harte-Hanks Community Newspaper classified staff will help you place your ad and offer suggestions for making the ad even more effective.

This new service is part of our commitment to work more effectively for you.

Please bear with us should you experience any delays or inconveniences while trying to get through during our first week. We want to serve you and are intent on making the system work.

INFORMATION

OFFICE HOURS
Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DEADLINES
- For placing classified line ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing help wanted display ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays

BEST BUYS
Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 4 line ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES
To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. Four lines for $13.00; $2.00 for each additional line. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT
Most classified line ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE
The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS
Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

Heading into the '90s, health clubs are aiming for broader appeal

By Maureen McLellan
STAFF WRITER

"Feel the burn'' was the fitness anthem of the 1980s that attracted the young and firm, but health clubs are maturing with their clients and have moderated their tune, aiming to serve everyone from exercise fanatics to reformed couch potatoes.

Club owners say their industry, which grew briskly during the '80s, has surpassed the fad stage when their facilities were seen as havens for ''the beautiful people.''

The clubs are now just as concerned with retaining old clients as they are with signing up new customers. they retain their veterans by providing the services and programs they want and promoting moderate, but regular, exercise.

''This club has been here 10 years and our existence is based on renewals. Our retention rate is what pays the bills,'' said Andrea D'Amadio, manager of Aerobics Connection Fitness Center. The all-women's facility in Waltham offers free babysitting, special payment plans and membership freezes during people's vacations to accommodate members' changing needs.

And most facilities are finding that while the state's economic troubles have made it tougher to sign up new members, renewals have remained constant because committed exercisers are reluctant to give up workouts that have become integral to their lifestyles.

''In the early 1980s, it was the trendy, glitzy thing to do. It was a no pain, no gain type of approach,'' said Bruce Buckbee, president of Health Development Corp., which manages the Bay Colony Corporate Center's health club in Waltham and several other facilities.

But he said many clients who started going to clubs 10 years ago are older and married and have a different fitness philosophy.

''Health and fitness is a different type of purchase now. People do it because they want to reduce stress, lose a few pounds and improve their job performance.''

He said that at most clubs, only a small percentage of members are serious or competitive athletes and that owners have had to extend their reach beyond this small market segment for long-term success.

''Fifty percent of the market has never belonged to a club before. In our organization, we work real hard putting our feet in the other man's moccasins — for those people who might be a little shy about coming in,'' said Buckbee.

Unhappy in your work?

Take a job test to see where your aptitude lies

By Helen Huntley

ST. PETERSBURG TIMES

After 10 years in the field, Remington Brown knew he was not cut out to be an engineer. He was ready to try law school when his boss recommended aptitude testing to reveal his real talents.

Brown took a lot of tests last fall and discovered that he didn't have the right aptitudes for engineering, just as he thought. But he found out he didn't have the right aptitudes for law either. The tests suggested he was more suited for management.

"The testing confirmed some things that I knew about myself but didn't want to admit," he said.

"I went into engineering because I wanted something that was challenging, and engineering seemed to be the kind of thing that you really had to study," said Brown, whose father was an engineering professor. Once he got into it, however, he did not find the work satisfying.

"I just got frustrated," he said. "I really didn't want to be doing it. I don't completely hate it, but I don't like doing it for eight or 10 hours a day."

The place Brown went to discover his talents is a branch office of the Johnson O'Connor Research Foundation Inc., a non-profit organization that combines research on aptitudes with testing to help people make career decisions.

The foundation has headquarters in New York and 12 other offices nationwide.

Its approach is based on the idea that people are happiest and most successful doing work that uses their aptitudes or natural, inborn abilities.

The foundation logo is a square peg in a square hole.

When he was tested, Brown scored lowest on three-dimensional thinking, something in which most engineers excel. He also scored relatively low on inductive reasoning, an aptitude used in law.

"I still think if I really wanted to, I could do it (succeed in law)," Brown said. "But it wasn't so much that I really wanted to be a lawyer as it was that I didn't want to be doing engineering."

He found out through the testing that he has a strong objective personality, which means he is good at seeing another person's point of view — an asset in management. Brown, 35, took the test results to heart and accepted a promotion to regional manager at Alpine Engineered Products Inc., the company where he worked as an engineer.

He says he's a lot happier.

Like Brown, people can be trained to do work for which they really do not have the aptitude, but they are not likely to be as good at it as those who have both the aptitude and the training.

"Why put yourself in that situation when there might be something else that would be easier for you to do and more enjoyable?" asked Lore Eargle, director of the foundation's office in Tampa, Fla.

However, she said, most career unhappiness results not from lack of aptitudes, but from the presence of strong aptitudes that aren't being used.

People who come to Johnson O'Connor spend $450 and about seven and a half hours getting their aptitudes challenged and measured. The results are explained, and career suggestions are offered in a follow-up session.

"I was pretty frustrated to put it mildly," said Margie Altman, who was teaching retarded adults in Miami Beach when she decided to take the tests. "It was a relief to discover that there wasn't something wrong with me because I wasn't happy in my job. The tests showed my approach is a problem-solving kind of approach, but social work jobs don't lend themselves to neat solutions."

Altman, 33, decided she would like to use her problem-solving skills in making medical diagnoses. She is now working on a degree in microbiology at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton and hopes to go to medical school.

Most of the 300,000 people who have gone through the testing program across the country are adults interested in career change, but the foundation also tests high school and college students.

The foundation is the outgrowth of work its founder, the late Johnson O'Connor, did in the 1920s for General Electric Co. He devised tests for finger dexterity and tweezer dexterity (ability to manipulate small objects with tweezers) to find out which workers had the aptitudes for work on the assembly line.

People who go through the foundation's testing program today still take those two tests. They also take about 20 other tests covering types of memory, inductive and analytical reasoning, use of numbers, flow of ideas, clerical speed, visualization of three-dimensional objects, music aptitudes, color vision and laterality (whether you are right-sided or left-sided.)

All those aptitudes are considered to be inborn. The foundation also tests vocabulary size and reading speed and comprehension, both of which can be improved through study.

The results show how the test taker's score in each area compares with scores of others of the same sex and similar age. The two tests for three-dimensional thinking are an exception to this pattern — only men's scores are used as a basis for comparison. The test takers are compared to male norms because the occupations in which this aptitude is used are male-dominated, Eargle said.

"Practically speaking, that's who they would have to compete with on the job," she said. "When we have a female who scores high on that ability, we're certainly going to talk to her about those careers."

While men score higher on average on three-dimensional thinking, women score higher on clerical speed, flow of ideas and ability to stick to long-term goals.

Everyone who takes the tests is given a variety of occupational options to explore.

Eargle said aptitudes alone don't determine destiny.

"Aptitudes are your raw materials," she said. "They point you in a direction, but it's what you know that determines how you can use your aptitudes."

The same aptitude may be an asset in one occupation and a detriment in another. For example, an aptitude for generating ideas is helpful in sales, advertising, teaching and writing, but distracting in accounting, banking or other fields requiring a high level of concentration.

"Aptitudes can be thought of as tools," Eargle said. "If you have the right tool, you can do the job more easily, but if you have that special tool all the time and it's not really needed, it can cause frustration. It gets in the way."

Fitness for the masses

Heading into the '90s, health clubs are aiming for broader appeal

Fitness, From 1

Rick Devereux, director of operations for the 1,700-member Association of Quality Clubs, a Boston-based national trade organization, said the $5-billion to $6-billion-a-year health club industry will not see phenomenal growth in the 1990s, but is expected to expand at a respectable rate of about 5 to 10 percent a year.

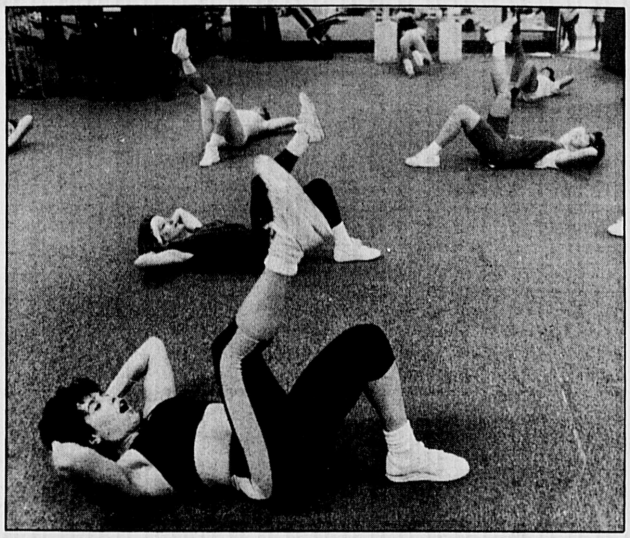

"The biggest thing right now is the whole category of electronic equipment. It has really improved in the last two or three years."

Larry Cronin,
FITNESS FIRST NAUTILUS AND AEROBICS

He said statistical information points to significant market opportunities for health and fitness clubs but also indicates these facilities face challenges in realizing this sales potential.

For instance, surveys show at least 93 percent of Americans believe exercise is important to their health and well-being, but no more than about 20 percent exercise at least two to three times a week.

"We're a tremendously lazy society," said Devereux.

This is why most club owners say home exercise equipment and tapes do not cut into their business significantly. As one owner put it, most of this paraphernalia ends up "collecting dust within six months."

Buckbee said the motivation and comaraderie offered in clubs is crucial for most people to stick to a fitness program.

As a result, Devereux said it is becoming increasingly important for clubs seeking broad appeal to have certified, experienced fitness specialists who give members lots of personal attention in a pleasant, non-competitive atmosphere.

Club owners also report, however, that health and fitness-related information is continually evolving and that they must keep up with advances to keep their members. Stair climbers and other high tech exercise equipment are currently most in demand at health clubs.

"The biggest thing right now is the whole category of electronic equipment. It has really improved in the last two or three years," said Larry Cronin, owner of Fitness First Nautilus and Aerobics in Arlington.

He noted that the humble Lifecycle has been replaced with biocycles that measure heart rates and fitness levels, the Stairmaster and computerized rowing machines.

Cronin also said families are becoming more interested in clubs with a wide range of exercise options because they want to sign up at one place together, but may be interested in different activities.

John Atwood, sales director for the Longfellow Clubs, which owns the Natick Sports Club as well as tennis and fitness facilities in Wayland, said clubs with pools seem to have an edge over those that don't.

He cited his own organization as an example, saying the Wayland club has a pool while the Natick facility does not.

"The trend seems to be moving toward more recreational activity," said Atwood.

Take a job test to see where your aptitude lies

have the greatest difficulty finding job satisfaction, she said. In a case like that, the foundation suggests which aptitudes should be given priority in choosing a job.

Some aptitudes can be used in hobbies or volunteer work. Other aptitudes can be used quite easily in day-to-day life. Clerical speed, for example, can be put to use handling the routine paper work of modern life, so someone who has that aptitude should consider other aptitudes first in choosing an occupation, Eargle said.

Eargle said the best managers often turn out to be people who have few strong aptitudes. They can delegate work because they don't feel a need to do it themselves, she said. The one aptitude that is considered particularly useful for management is an objective personality.

Susan Eckel discovered through testing four years ago that her personality is better suited to managing people than to doing statistical marketing research the work she had been doing for seven years at Ryder System Inc. in Miami. She also found out she had strong aptitudes for music and for generation of ideas.

"I did well in literature courses in college, but in my family it was perceived that hard-core computer stuff and math stuff was much more marketable than writing stuff, so I was steered in a different direction," she said. "I thought of myself as an introverted person because the kind of work I was doing was fairly solitary."

After her testing, Eckel decided to look for a job raising funds for the arts — one of the career suggestions the foundation offered and an area in which she had volunteer experience.

She landed a job as director of development for the Gusman Center for the Performing Arts in Miami. After six months, the center's managing director left, and she got the job. She also started singing with a choral group to use her music aptitudes.

Finding work that fits your aptitudes doesn't always mean changing occupations.

Engineer Early Sorenson stayed in the same profession but changed jobs after taking the aptitude tests a year and a half ago. He said the work he was doing in land development, design and permitting required an objective personality, which he does not have.

"Civil engineering is mostly persuasion and dealing with government, big companies, banks, developers and many, many people, trying to find a political solution more than an engineering mathematical solution," he said. "I was suited to do the technical, creative part, but not the other."

He now works for the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation as a district storm water engineer.

"I try to protect wetlands," he said. "It's less stressful for me than my previous job."

The testing also showed he has music aptitudes, so he bought himself a set of drums and practices every night.

While the foundation provides a list of career suggestions, it does not provide detailed job and salary information or give advice on conducting a job search.

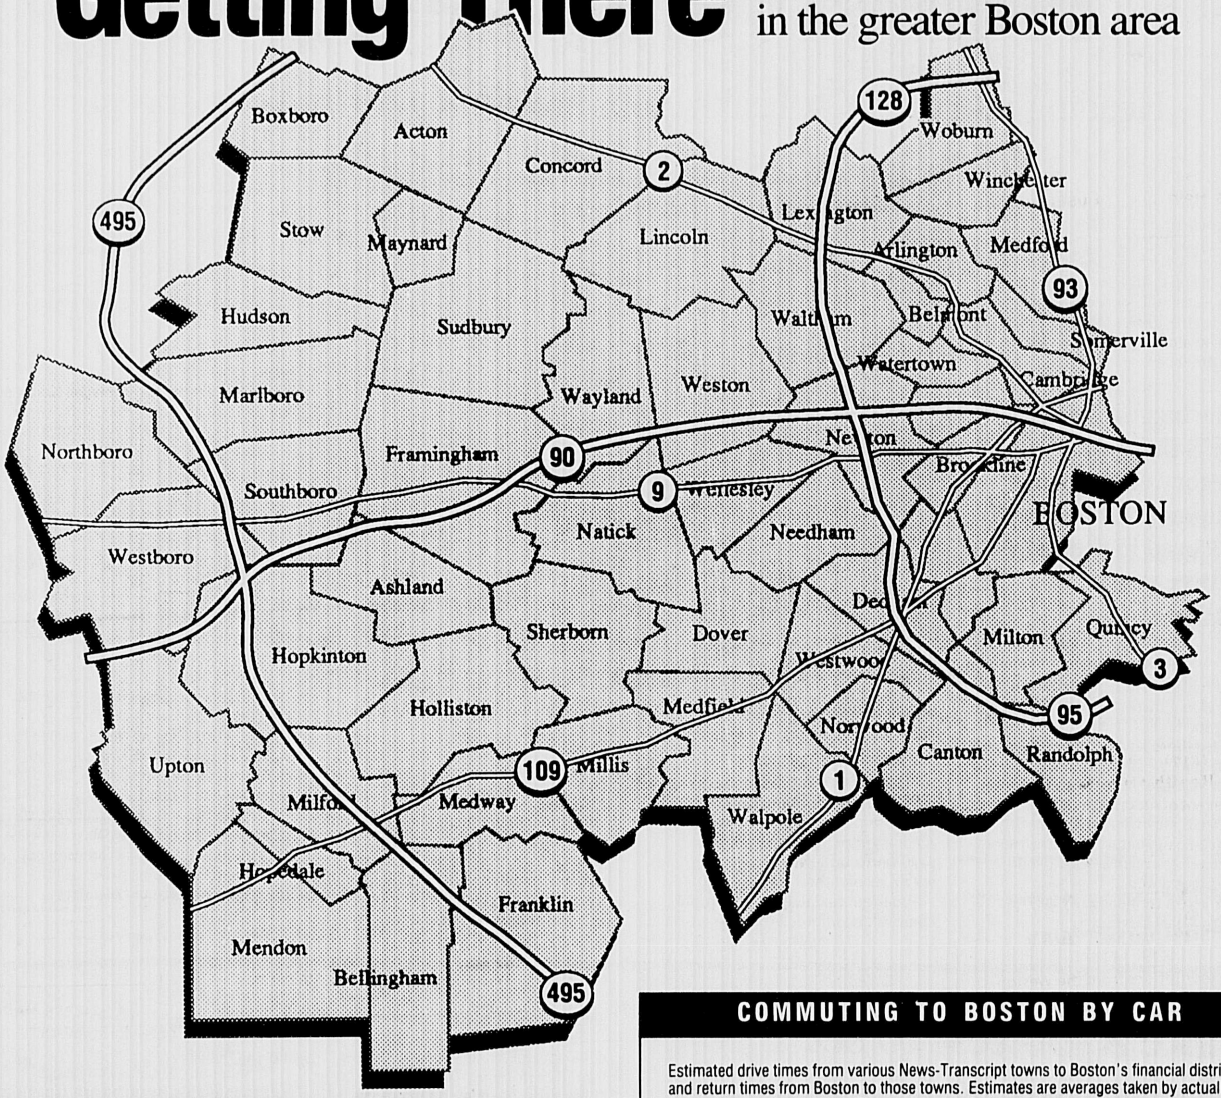

Eargle said some people decide they cannot afford to make a mid-career change, but they are able to change some aspects of their work to make it more satisfying. Others go for major change in spite of the financial cost.

"I'm not making as much money as I did in real estate, but I'm enjoying life more," said Bob Grytten, who switched from real estate to a photography career after taking the Johnson O'Connor tests four years ago. In addition to selling his photographs, he gives nature photography workshops and slide presentations and leads photo-oriented tour groups.

"I keep the results from the tests in mind whenever I decide what to do," he said.

Priviteras Celebrate Graduation & 30th Anniversary

June 16, 1990 was quite a celebration for the Privitera family of Arlington. Frank and Jean celebrated their 30th Wedding Anniversary, their son Philip graduated from Dartmouth College; and their daughter Jeannine passed her bar exam and was sworn in as an attorney. Over 650 invited guests filled the grand ballroom of the Park Plaza Hotel in Boston to take part in the festivities. As with all Privitera parties, every detail was carefully planned and executed to perfection!

The black tie affair started at 5 o'clock in the afternoon as search lights combed the skies of Boston and led guests to the Park Plaza Hotel. Huge banners posted on the search lights trailer, which read "Privitera Anniversary/Graduation Party, June 16, 1990", told partiers that they had reached their destination. Once inside the hotel, guests were graciously received by the Privitera family, Frank, Jean, Frank Jr., Philip, Jeannine, and Mrs. Gaetano Privitera (Frank's mother) and had the opportunity to congratulate the honorees and pose for a photo.

The cocktail party, held in the foyer of the Grand Ballroom, was an extravagant display of the best the Park Plaza had to offer. Director of Catering, David Mediano and his white-gloved staff did an excellent job preparing and serving the multi-coursed feast.

Over 650 Attend Park Plaza Gala

Gorgeous ice sculptures, one a heart with 30 in the center and, a bust of a graduate, centered the buffet tables, while another, a boat, was filled to the brim with jumbo shrimp. The Continental Quintet played favorite tunes while guests helped themselves to an array of beverages and hors d'oeuvres. No detail was overlooked - right down to the souvenir stirrers, and the elegant caligraphy on the place cards. The cocktail party lasted for 2 hours and was more satisfying than most banquets ... and this was only the beginning. Once you've attended a party hosted by Frank and Jean Privitera, it's unlikely your experience will be matched! One guest commented that it was "the party of the century" and it will retain that standing only until they plan their next "bash".

Dramatically, the doors to the Grand Ballroom were opened to reveal a breathtaking vision. A 15-foot 10-tier cake, created by George Montilio, had a replica of the main building of Dartmouth College on one side, congratulating Philip; and 30th Anniversary wishes to Frank and Jean on the other side. On either side of the cake were full sized, life-like replicas of Frank and Jean welcoming guests to the festivities. Four archways, each containing 1,000 balloons of silver and black, crowned the ballroom as banners congratulating Philip on his graduation and Frank and Jean on their Anniversary, graced the balconies. The tables were elegantly decorated with centerpieces, especially designed for the Priviteras, consisting of exotic flowers artfully arranged in mirrored tubes of various shapes.

The Al Vega Orchestra filled the dance floor with their big band sound and Richard DeLuca did an excellent job entertaining with popular vocals. The ballroom came alive with color and fashion as tuxedoed men escorted beautifully gowned women to the dance floor. Many of the women were elegantly dressed in Yolanda fashions. The guest of honor, Jean Privitera, looked too young to be celebrating her 30th Wedding Anniversary. She was stunning in her full length midnight blue, white and silver, all bugle beaded gown with illusion bodice, crystal beaded mandarin collared neckline with rhinestones, beads and sequins, by world famous designer of the stars, Stephen Yearick. Jeannine Privitera looked gorgeous in a shiny silver star sequined silhouette sheath by Jeran. Mrs. Gaetano Privitera, was a vision in her ice blue satin V-neck full length gown with diamond design appliques on the shoulders and waist by Couture. Yolanda wore a dramatic Bob Mackie lightening bolt black, hot orange, hot red, Mitzi Gaynor dress.

Words of Welcome

Jeannine and Frank, Jr. opened the ceremonies by welcoming the many in attendance to yet another elaborate and lavish Privitera party. Frank, Jr. eloquently answered the question few have asked, regarding the "reason" for such an exquisite event. "Mr. and Mrs. Privitera look to the future. As days go by and time passes and we look back," he said, "we probably won't regret not having made one more buck, striking one more deal or closing one more case. Rather, what we will regret is time not spent with fathers and mothers, sons and daughters, friends and family, moments never enjoyed and laughter never shared. And this is the primary reason we are here today!" He went on to congratulate his parents on their 30 solid years of matrimony and fidelity and praised them for being the "best examples of life's deepest treasure... love". Frank, Jr. congratulated his brother Philip on his graduation from Dartmouth College and looks forward to their years together at Columbia University. Another reason for celebration on this evening was the recent passing of the bar by his sister Jeannine and being sworn in as one of Boston's newest attorneys. It was a very special day for the Privitera's as they celebrate success and anniversary and as with previous Privitera parties, the guests not only share in the festivities, they are treated like the "recipients". Frank Jr. closed his remarks by offering a moment of silence for his grandfather Gaetano Privitera, who is ill and unable to attend.

Dinner

The multi-coursed menu served with ease and perfect timing, fit the elegance of the occasion and consisted of: Escarole Soup with Meatballs and Romano Cheese; Ziti Marinara; Salad Italiano with creamy Italian Dressing; Filet Mignon with Sauce Perigourdine; Jumbo Asparagus; Tomato Provencale; and Twice Baked Potato. Dessert was Praline Truffle with Caramel Sauce and Fresh Fruits. Wines chosen to compliment this feast were Santa Sofia, Valpocelli and Saove.

Variety Performers Opera Star

The hallmark of a Privitera party is the entertainment. Usually it is a headliner like Pat Cooper or Sergio Franchi, and each party progresses upward so it shouldn't have surprised us that Red Buttons and Tony Bennett would perform at the Park Plaza in Boston for Frank Privitera! Joe Alessandro introduced the opening act, Christina Fontinelli, Metropolitan Opera star who recently appeared in La Scala in Italy. Christina's crystal clear voice filled the room with arias selected especially for the Privitera family, which included LaBoheme and "Un Beldi" from Madame Butterfly.

The husband/wife team of Tony Darrow and Donna Cellini gave a dynamic performance mixing vocals with comedy. Darrow and Cellini, headliners in Las Vegas, Atlantic City, the Catskills and the Villa Roma Resort, are a versatile team whose repertoire ranged from Broadway hits to a special Italian medley.

Comedian Red Buttons

Next, Red Buttons took control of the audience for over a half hour. Movie star and Oscar winner, Buttons gave an exceptionally funny performance tailor-made for the occasion. He is a legend in the art of comedy and few have mastered his perfect timing and delivery. The audience barely had time to catch their breath before he tickled the funny bone again and again jumping from one subject to another. He noted that Custer had invented the Arrow shirt and Jacques Cousteau was really the last man to see Jimmy Hoffa!

Superstar Tony Bennett

Tony Bennett, direct from his tour in Japan, Frank Sinatra's favorite singer waited in the wings to top the ticket of this entertainment extravaganza. Tony Bennett took center stage and delivered one of his most memorable performances. He thrilled the audience with his renditions of "The Shadow of Your Smile", "Rags to Riches" and Frank and Jean's favorite, "Because of You". He proved his vocal strength when after performing for an hour, dropped the mike, and belted out the words to "San Francisco". The entire show was unannounced and after each surprise performer you could feel the anticipation growing for what was yet to come. The crowd was ready and eagerly accepted Tony Bennett with open arms and he didn't disappoint them with his performance.

Red Buttons then joined Bennett on the stage with the Privitera family as they took part in presenting Jean with "30" long stemmed red roses, one for each year of marriage, a symbol of love from her husband Frank. The stars also joined the Privitera family during the cake cutting ceremony.

Guests did not go home empty handed, along with boxed cake, onyx and brass letter openers were gifted to the men and the women received gorgeous gold candelabra.

Sweet Table

The foyer of the Ballroom was then transformed into "Dessert Heaven" as Italian pastries, cakes, chocolate truffles, petit fours and assorted chocolates were served with coffee and cordials.

Midnight Supper with Stars

The entertainers mingled and took photos with guests as the Privitera's hosted a private reception in the Stanborow Room with 300 survivors who survived the massive event. Guests went home with unforgettable memories of an evening full of the best of everything! "It was indeed a night to remember."

Massive searchlights brighten the sky in front of the Park Plaza to lead partygoers to their destination.

Pool rules are simply suggestions

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Board of Health member Randall Swartz has opted to side with his fellow board members and present Winchester pool owners with suggestions — not regulations — for safe pool use.

This decision brings to an end a debate that began several months ago, and hinged on the question of legal liability, for the town and for the individual pool owner, should swimming pool regulations be mandated and enforced.

Swartz, whose six-year-old daughter Patricia drowned in a swimming pool accident in June, 1989, has led a one-man crusade to put the regulations on the books.

But Town Counsel Wade Welch has remained unconvinced that the regulations would survive a legal challenge on the basis of constitutionality or that the town could walk away from liability if the regulations weren't properly enforced. In two written opinions delivered to the Board of Health, Welch has not supported the measure.

Chairman Dorothea Sopper and Dr. Warren Taylor have also made clear their intent to stick with the decision of legal counsel, and have steadfastly advised that suggestions instead of regulations for safe pool use could be a positive step for the board.

"I remain convinced that the regulations would have been more in the interest of the citizenry of Winchester," said Swartz, "but in the interest of moving forward and doing something positive ... at some point you have to listen to what others have to say and move on."

Swartz reworked his original proposal and submitted the draft of suggestions to the board at its August 6 session. Although Sopper and Taylor found some of the wording too strict, members hammered out a final draft in short order.

Board members are hopeful, too, that the Board of Selectmen "will sign on to" the proposal, giving the suggestions added weight. The Board of Selectmen is expected to review the draft proposal at its Aug. 13 session.

> "At some point you have to listen to what others have to say and move on."
> Health Board's Randall Swartz

"We've certainly heightened awareness with these suggestions," said member Taylor.

Swartz added, however, that he hoped the suggestions could be reviewed within a year to check their effectiveness. He suggested polling pool owners to find if they'd taken the recommendations to heart.

"Since we've agreed [the suggestions] are what [poolowners] should be doing, let's see if they are," said Swartz.

The suggestions are a close adaption of the proposed regulations. Each of the proposed regulations has been included in the recommendations to pool owners for safe pool use.

The suggestions call for: constant eye contact of all children; ensuring all persons who are entrusted with supervision of the pool can swim; availability of safety and rescue equipment such as a throwing ring with a line attached, a shepherd's crook and ready access to a telephone; and properly installed barriers surrounding the pool. Members also suggest that pool owners become knowledgeable in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) or mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

These suggestions will be distributed by mail in the form of a safety notice next spring to the 348 pool owners in Winchester. The notice will also be available at the Board of Health office in Town Hall.

Health Board tries to quell odor problem

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Board of Health members have been playing the mediators in an odor complaint, which has one group of neighbors on Swanton Street holding their noses each time the west wind blows.

Angelo and Antoinette Tranfaglia of 58 Swanton Street and Laura Kerrigan of 60 Swanton Street have been besieged with odors eminating from Nochella and Sons, an antique restoration and furniture refinishing shop, which is adjacent to their homes.

When the owner, David Nochella uses a lacquer spray in the restoration process, the fumes travel up through a vent in the shop and if the wind is blowing north or west, or if the weather is especially humid the fumes head right into the neighbors' duplex.

Nochella's venting system has been approved by Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and meets state standards, yet since the odors have been adversely affecting neighbors, Nochella has vowed to rectify the situation.

And neighbors are equally willing to search out the best solution to the problem — without putting Nochella out of business.

Unfortunately, the height of the vent is even with the Tranfaglia's bedroom window and a good breeze fills the whole house with the fumes, they say.

The Tranfaglias and Nochella came before the Board of Health at its July 27 session. Members discussed possible solutions to the venting problem, but in the end opted to await the decision of an air consultant who has been contracted by Nochella.

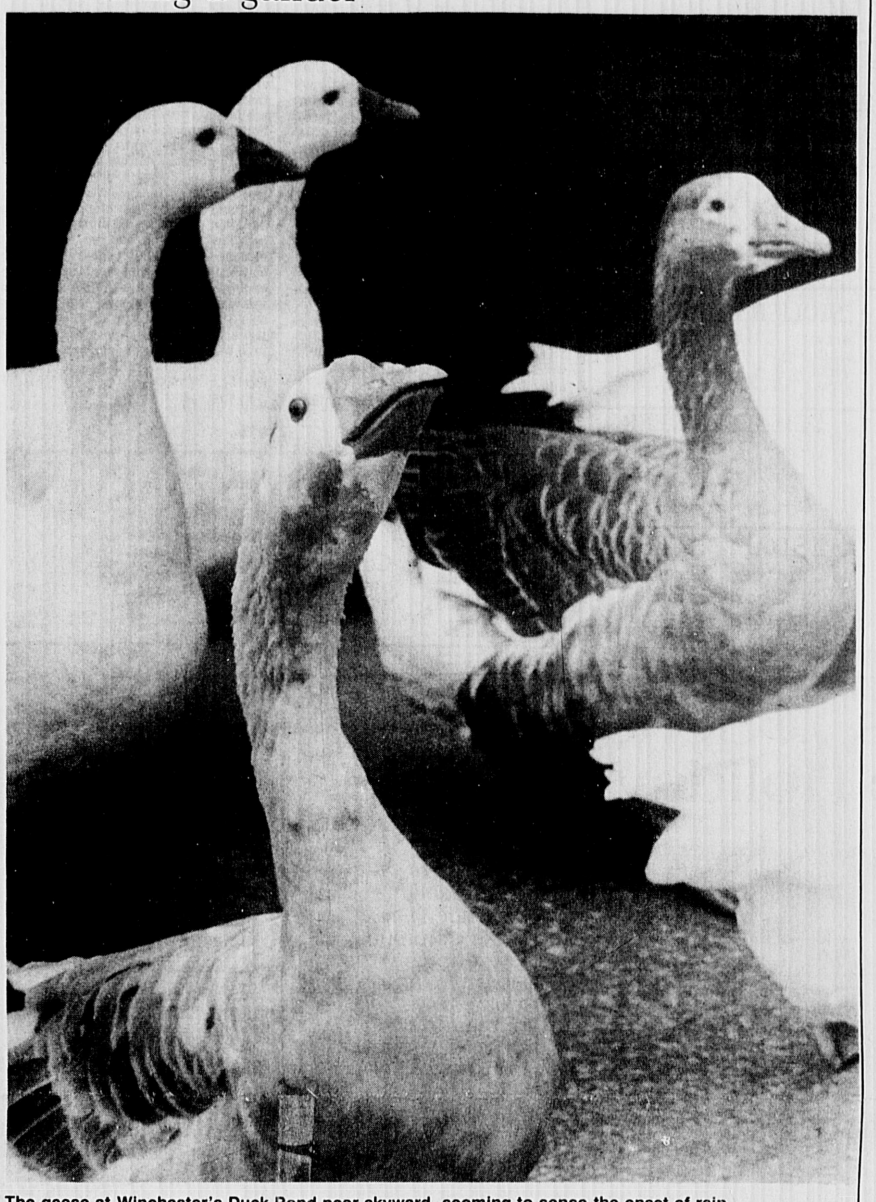

Pending the advice of the air consultant, Nochella has been asked by the Board of Health to restrict his spraying hours to accommodate his neighbors.

Search on for new library director

By LAURA JOHNSON
Special to the Star

The Library Selection Committee is working long hours throughout the summer to find the best person to replace Matthew Sperber as Library Director.

Sperber had made the announcement in May that he would step down as Winchester's director to take a post as director of the Hudson Valley Library system in upstate New York.

According to Chairman Constance D. Papas, a library director in Winchester has "very high visibility" and must be able to reach out to the public as well as take care of technical services. In a recent meeting the committee narrowed the list of candidates being considered for the position.

The opening was advertised widely in the eastern Massachusetts region as well as through library journals and job lines in New York and Chicago. As a result, the committee had a wide range of candidates from across the country to choose from.

The committee began by carefully inspecting the resumes of 20 applicants. Of those applicants, the least impressive were eliminated and it was decided that the best would be interviewed.

The number of candidates that are interviewed may depend on whether funds are available to pay for the travel expenses of those coming long distances, said selection committee members. However, it was stressed that equal opportunity would be given to all candidates, whether they could pay their way or not.

Committee members are: Chairman Constance D. Papas; Vice Chairman Ronald B. Hertel; trustees Anne K. Nevins and Ernest A. Phillips, Jr.; along with residents John M. Harrington III; Stephen Parkhurst and Nancy Schrock.

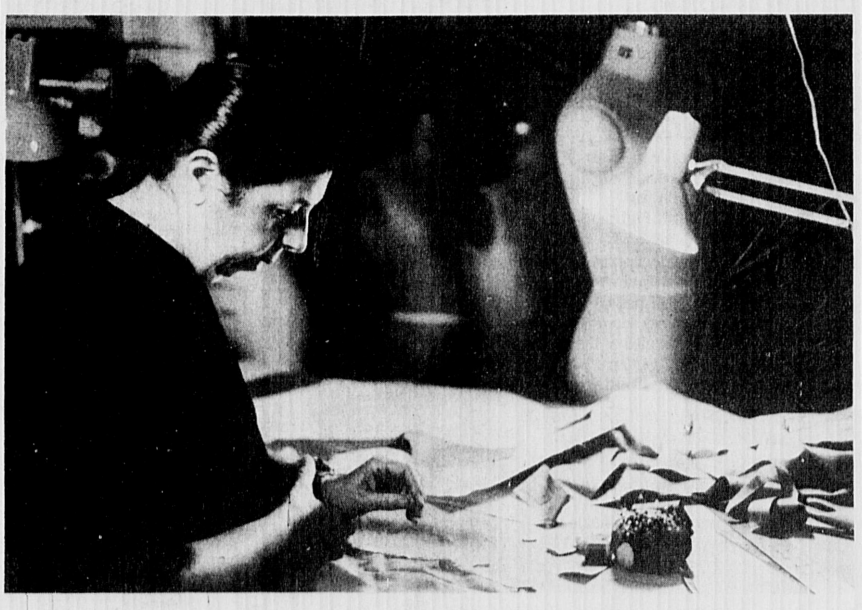

Committee members said they are looking for someone with vision, experience, technical knowledge of the library program and political acumen. The new director must be capable of good budgeting, personnel relations and processing, they added. Personality, creativity, leadership and professionalism will all be taken into account.

Six of the applicants will be scheduled for interviews and 10 are awaiting more extensive review by the committee. Six recently recieved applications have yet to be screened.

The Board of Trustees will choose the new director from the candidates the committee has deemed the best. It is expected that a director will be chosen by the end of September.

The next meeting of the committee is scheduled for Monday August 13 and is open to the public.

Red Cross building up for sale

Services continue

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Although the American Red Cross has put its Winchester building on the selling block, services provided to Winchester residents will be as strong as ever, say Red Cross representatives.

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay recently announced it would put its building at 39 Church Street up for sale. Proceeds from the sale will be invested and the interest will be used to continue Red Cross programs and services in the Winchester area.

"The services will continue as they have been," says Marlene Cohen, associate director of the North Area office of the Red Cross, "it's really not going to change."

Blood pressure screening, safety programs at the Winchester schools and the disaster action team services, will still be available to residents, said Cohen. She added that the Red Cross has not staffed the building in Winchester for two years now, so residents may not even notice the change.

"We will stay in touch with our volunteers in Winchester through the use of churches and public buildings for meetings and special events," added Cohen.

The Red Cross will continue to provide disaster relief, health and safety courses and other community services from its offices located in Melrose and Peabody. Also, some Winchester residents receive transportation to medical appointments and others receive a small amount of food assistance that is distributed by the Red Cross. Both those programs will continue uninterrupted, said Cohen.

Dedicated volunteers with paid staff support as needed make all these services possible, said Cohen.

"Due to the centralization of resources and personnel throughout our area, this building has not been staffed by Red Cross since 1988," said Lloyd Franke, a Red Cross volunteer in Winchester. "The need for this facility has changed and we believe our community can be better served by providing new and ongoing Red Cross programs at other available locations in Winchester."

Cohen added the Red Cross has been consolidating its chapters across eastern Massachusetts and now has four regions with headquarters in each. The Melrose facility is the base for the north region, which handles Winchester services.

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay serves more than 2,600,000 people in 73 communities. Red Cross is a non-profit, humanitarian organization that helps people avoid, prepare for and cope with emergencies.

For more information concerning the building sale or current Red Cross services in Winchester, contact Marlene Cohen at the North Area Office at (508)531-2280.

Letter leads to Europe

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

For both Sean Ducey and Christina Manzo, a month-long trip to Europe all started with an unexpected letter in the mail.

The letter came from the High School Student Ambassador Program, and offered them the opportunity to apply to a program that would take them across the ocean and into new cultures. The purpose of the program is to give high school students an opportunity to expand their knowledge of different cultures and strengthen ties of friendship between the United States and other countries.

The program allows students to broaden their knowledge of economic, political, educational and cultural facets of different societies. In addition, students learn their responsibility as future adults to implement ideas for improving international relations, and promote understanding and communication between people.

"The program essentially is to get students from America and take them to Europe to give them a chance to experience first-hand what it's like to live in a different culture," said Ducey. Students are orientated to the cultures of the countries they will visit, and in some cases, have homestays with families.

Neither Ducey nor Manzo are quite sure how they happened to receive the letter. Ducey said stu-

POLICE LOG

Monday, August 6
12:18 p.m.
Officer Thomas Groux was at the intersection of Main and Thompson streets when he spotted the driver of a truck he knew to have outstanding warrants from the Winchester Police Department. A computer check showed the man's license was also suspended, said police reports.

Officer James Cogan arrived for back-up and the driver, a 23-year-old Swanton Street, was placed under arrest for operating with a suspended license. Also, several default warrants were confirmed from Winchester Police Department.

9:02 a.m.
Officer Theodore Yeanacopolis was called to the Sunoco Gas Station on Main Street for reported damage to the gasoline pumps. The proprietor told police the pumps had been struck and lifted six inches from their bases. Police found specks of white/gray residue on one of the pumps.

The owner estimates the damage occurred sometime around 5 p.m. the previous day. According to police reports, the owner estimated the damage at thousands of dollars. A suspect is being investigated in the case.

Sunday, August 5
2:25 a.m.
Officer Kurt Ellis was called to a Hollywood Road residence on a report of an intoxicated female attempting to operate a motor vehicle. On arrival, police observed several youths.

According to police reports, the female in question, a 19-year-old Medford girl, was disorderly and unwilling to comply with police. Officer Paul Austin arrived as back-up and the girl was placed under arrest for disturbing the peace.

At this time, another youth, a 19-year-old Medford boy, became disorderly and was also placed under arrest for disturbing the peace, according to police.

10:05 a.m.
Officer Kenneth Green was called to Highland Avenue on a report of motor vehicle vandalism. The owner reported that at midnight the previous night, several youths were outside the home. When the owner left the house the next morning she found a tree limb on her porch. The limb had apparently punctured a screen window and also dented the trunk of her car. An investigation continues.

9:34 a.m.
Officer Steven Fields stopped a vehicle on Main Street by Skillings Road for operating with an expired registration sticker dated 7/90. A registration check confirmed that the registration was expired and also that the driver license was suspended. The driver was identified as a 31-year-old Allston man. With assistance from Officer Kenneth Green the man was placed under arrest.

7:33 p.m.
Officer Kurt Ellis was operating radar on Johnson Road and Wildwood Street when he picked up a car traveling at 45 mph in a 30 mph zone. The car was pulled over and the driver identified as a 21-year-old Harvard man. The driver was found to have an expired license dated 6/90 and was cited for operating without a license and speeding.

7:02 p.m.
Officer Jonathan Dean was called to Harvard Street on a report of a water line break. On arrival, the officer observed a geyser from a punctured temporary water pipe. The officer contacted the proper authorities, and returned to check the scene several hours later. The problem had then been rectified, according to police reports.

7:30 a.m.
Officer Paul Austin was called to the scene of a past breaking and entering on Fletcher Street. The police were called in by a neighbor who noticed a storm window on the ground and the window open.

Officer Austin secured the scene and awaited the arrival of Detective Lieutenant James Pierce. The neighbor told police he saw the window on the ground the previous night at around 6 p.m. and related this information to the owners.

Another neighbor told police he saw a van in the driveway of the home at approximately 9:15 p.m. that evening. Upon entrance, police found the phone lines had been cut and the clocks were flashing 9 p.m. A list of missing items is to be organized by the owners.

An investigation continues.

Thursday, August 2
1:26 p.m.
Officer Kenneth Green was dispatched to a Winchester Place address for a reported larceny. A worker in one of the buildings told police she had left to go to lunch and had left her pocketbook on her desk. In her absence, several items were taken from the pocketbook. A suspect is being checked by police.

8:13 a.m.
Officer William Wright was called to an Arlington Street address on a report of a broken window. The landscaper had reported seeing the broken window near the rear door to the basement. A check of the house was conducted and everything seemed to be in order. Police were unsure whether a break had occurred. Inspectors Daniel McGee and Paul Deluca investigated the scene.

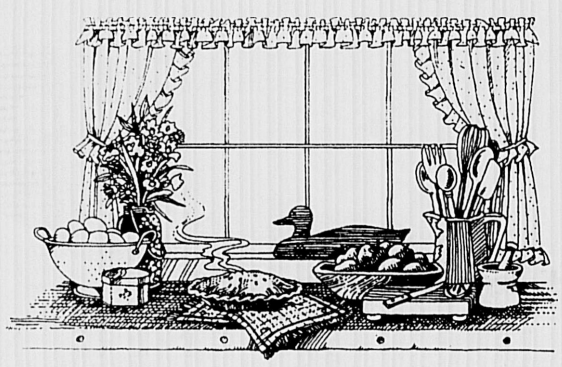

Wednesday, August 1
6:02 p.m.
Officer Lawrence Hill was called to Pond Street and Woodside Drive for a reported one-car accident. The car had struck a group of trees in the driveway of a Woodside Drive home. The operator, a 43-year-old Middlesex Street man, told police he had been traveling at 40 mph when he attempted to negotiate the turn onto Woodside.

Winchester Kernels

Watch hand a true survivor

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

Along our placid Aberjona River, beyond the Washington Street bridge at Winchester Highlands, sits the ancient brick Winn "Watch hand Factory" — sailing confidently toward the 21st century.

Now called "McCord-Winn-Textron," the "Watch hand" in its prosaic setting gives small hint that it is the second largest employer in Winchester involving nearly 300 people split across three shifts.

Its site, off Washington Street, has been used almost continuously for manufacturing since 1787 when the Commonwealth granted water rights to Deacon Jeduthan Richardson for his grist mill.

Recently one of the company Employee Participation Teams led by Dylis Riga and Sue DiFranco hosted town and state officials on the 200th anniversary of manufacturing on this site — as a rock garden highlighting one of the old Richardson millstones was dedicated.

At McCord-Winn-Textron, tradition is not taken lightly and long-time employees like Robert J. Hawley, David F. Choate, Leo Meuse and Creighton Horn have served upwards of 40 years each. Olive R. Barry, one of Winn's first female employees, started in 1926 ultimately winding up her career in a managerial position some 43 years later!

President, William H. Walsh said this week, "It is important that we maintain some tradition. Our precision skills — offshoots of the watch hand business — are vital to us now. Our early products were good products — and we've been able to keep pace with the changing needs of our customers still using the fine skills of our employees."

Maintaining the present base while developing new markets has made "The Watch hand" a true survivor — for it alone remains from the moderate Winchester industrial boom of the last century.

It has always been a good neighbor. In the early years, James H. Winn served multiple terms on our Board of Selectmen. In the 1930's the Winn family donated land to create the public parks along the northern reaches of the Aberjona — and recently the company offered its parking lot as a staging area for Winchester's massive 350th Anniversary parade.

The watch and clock hands are gone now and McCord-Winn-Textron looks to the future as a major international supplier of small motors to the automotive industry.

Winchester resident James F. Catudal, Quality Assurance Manager, currently heads a "Cross-functional Product Quality Team" addressing ways to become more efficient in today's demanding economic climate.

Said Jim from his desk recently, "Quality has become a major focus of the automotive industry in its selection and retainage of suppliers. McCord-Winn believes the best way to improve its quality is to involve everybody in the process."

Frank R. Janeczko, Quality Systems Co-ordinator — prime mover in educating McCord-Winn suppliers as to standards required to assure high final product quality — completes the chain to the customer. Frank, a 25 year employee, will also bring his Q.C. inspectors up to speed on modern statistical data methods.

Timely solutions to long-term problems have kept Winchester's "Watch hand" a source of livelihood for countless local families, and have — since 1872 — assured it permanent pride of place in the area economic picture — and in our hearts!

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 17 — Report No. 29
Massachusetts House
July 23 to 27, 1990

The House — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on ten roll calls from the week of July 23-27.

Repeal Tax (H 6137, H 6146) — On 5 roll calls, the House 107-38, 84-64, 77-66, 73-65, and 92-52, upheld the Speaker's ruling that amendments to two budget bills went beyond the scope of the bills and should not be allowed on the House floor for debate and a vote. The amendments would repeal or modify the recently expanded sales tax on services. Supporters of the Speakers's ruling said allowing the amendments sets a bad precedent and noted the Speaker's promise that there will be a separate vote on the proposed tax repeal before September 1. Opponents said the amendment is related to the bills and charged the ruling is simply a move to deny an opportunity to repeal the outrageous taxes which will hurt businesses and the economy.

All 5 roll calls are listed. A Yea vote is against allowing the amendments onto the floor for consideration. A Nay vote is for allowing the amendments onto the floor for consideration.

Representative Paul Casey voted yes on 1, 2, 3 and 5, and no on 4.

More CLT (H 6146) — House 126-3, approved a $1.45 billion bond issue amendment providing that nothing in the package be construed to conflict with any reduction in taxes which may result from passage of the CLT tax rollback petition. Supporters said this amendment will insure that nothing in the bill will override any tax rollback if voters approve the petition. Opponents offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for the amendment.

Keeping little ones in line

By TERRY MAROTTA

Kids don't like things neat. Grownups don't like 'em messy. Now is this my own discovery or have some of you others made it too? Hands? Anyone?

I know it's true because I'm a grownup. I hate things messy. I like to come down in the morning and face a peaceful vista. What I don't like is to find popsicle sticks jabbed in the dirt of the potted plants, and large dirty shoes yawning footless upon brass-and-glass coffee tables. It isn't funny to us old people to find stuff like this, because we are dull and serious and we like to see things in their proper places: all 52 cards in the pack, for example instead of 37; a shard or splinter even of ice in the otherwise empty ice cube trays.

What happened to us two around here, see, is we were young once and carefree and had parties where we played records too loud and on the wrong speed and sometimes even backwards just for fun and once one of us gave magic markers to all the guests of his same gender and invited them to write on the just-painted white walls which they did, all stupid sophomoric bathroom-joke kind of things even though they were all in graduate school if you please, but that's another story.

Finally we got a little older and began actually using cocktail napkins instead of one another's sleeves, and coasters for more than indoor games of sudden-death frisbee. Then all that old hilarity seemed to sort of brim over somehow, resulting in some neo-creatures, or to use the vernacular, babies: scads of 'em, which is to say more than two, who came to live with us and never went away and then suddenly EVERYTHING CHANGED.

Here were these naked furless creatures rolling around on the rugs in a sea of Playskool and Fisher Price toys and French kissing the electrical outlets and trying to eat their own toes. We thought, well they sleep a lot, right? Babies are meant to sleep? So then we spent the next eight years thinking of ways to get them tired.

They sell this thing made in Canada, under the table probably and I think it's in violation of several of the rules of torture laid down by Amnesty International, but it's a dandy little device nonetheless where you hang your baby by its crotch from a little swing which is in turn suspended by a powerful coiled spring from a doorframe. The child touches its little sleepered foot the floor — SPROING! — it bounces eight inches into the air. Touches it again and it's another sproing. Pretty soon the child gets the hang of it and is sproinging uncontrollably by the seat of his pants while the parents, humming a little tuneless air, can turn and serenely mop, scrape and/or sand the pate made up of chewed Cheerios and strained bananas off the various surfaces of the house.

We had one. It was great. Man, those babies got tired. And they went to bed and we did the laundry and picked up the toys and fell asleep paying the bills — pretty wild stuff! — and only sometimes played our old albums and wiped our mouths on one another's clothing, by then more of a ragout experience since the sleeves bore portions of all the baby meals served in the course of that day.

And then it, well, I don't know, it all seemed to change again. The babies grew tall. We couldn't hang 'em high. They fed themselves, where and when they wanted. And worst of all, they NEVER WENT TO BED.

It reminds me of the Nam, Doc, I tell ya, but this time we're the Cong, see, and they're the foreign invaders. Only in a way we're the GI's too, 'cause in the daytime we're OK. They go out, we don't know where, we don't ask, they give us noogies when we ask. But in the nighttime, well, they OWN the night. They play their music and take our money and order pizza after midnight and then they won't give us any!

And if you could do an airlift off the roof maybe like in Saigon in '75, it would be great. We're up here, see? See us waving from the window? We never leave our room, to tell the truth, and they're knocking, well they're knocking pretty loud now and the door just fell in and here they are with this giant device made in Canada, a sort of sling and oh boy it looks like it's gonna hurt and all I can say is don't be young and brim up with juice 'cause it ends in, in ....AAARRRGHH! Quick, call 911!

Clean up day was a success, say Village trustees

The following was received by The Star for publication.

Dear Elaine: The Trustees and all of us who live at The Village in Winchester on Swanton Street want to thank you, Josh Alper, and Steve Lewis for your help in our River Cleanup Day on Saturday, July 28.

Without your rowboat, canoe, and enthusiastic hard work, we would never have been able to get at and retrieve the truck tires, bicycles, logs, and considerable quantities of cans, bottles, and plastic trash that have been clogging this section of the Aberjona River for several years.

We all feel fortunate to live in this area of great natural beauty, and we look forward to further cooperative efforts to preserve and protect the river. Thanks to the guidance and participation of the Conservation Commission, this cleanup day was a great success.

Barrons thank fire department

The following was received by The Star for publication.

TO THE WINCHESTER FIRE DEPARTMENT:

We want to thank all the men who responded to the fire at 67-69 Irving St. Your prompt and efficient efforts prevented us from losing everything.

With the fire and heat of the day, we are happy no one was seriously hurt. Again your bravery was appreciated.

Stephen and Maryanne Barron

Fire department efforts appreciated

Dear Fire Chief McNutt:

The family of Nicolina Capone wishes to publicly thank you and your brave men of the Winchester Fire Department for their immediate response and heroic efforts in fighting the two-alarm fire at 67-69 Irving St. Your men reacted and fought the fire as if it was their own property.

We know these times of budget constraints and less personnel are very difficult to cope with. Your department surely found the way.

Happy to give

TO THE EDITOR:

In these days of increasing cost of living, sharply higher state taxes, rising town taxes and the certainty of increased Federal taxes — it is difficult for any of us to be pleased about receiving a letter requesting a donation no matter how worthy the cause.

About two weeks ago, however, I received a general letter of solicitation which pleased me greatly. It pleased me for two reasons — first because I am enthusiastic about the cause involved.

The letter in essence was a request from the Winchester Trails for a donation to help defray the cost of rebuilding the boardwalk at Smith Pond — a modest request. Because of my interest and background in youngsters I reacted very favorably almost immediately.

The letter pleased me particularly, however, because it indicated an approach by the Winchester Trails organization to the financial problems of a Town activity which has great possibilities — an increased use of individual personal donations to projects in Town which need help and deserve help and in which we have an enthusiastic personal interest.

The approach is not new in Town. It has been the backbone of our strong Winchester Hospital from the very beginning. It is an idea which was suggested again by Mike Saracco at a Selectmen's Meeting a year or more ago in regard to some costs involved in completing the Town Hall rehabilitation.

A donation can be in the form of a contribution of one's time or expertise — as in the case of the Friends of the Winchester Hospital and the great volunteer staff of the Jenks Senior Center and the Investment Committee of the Winchester Hospital.

For those of us who are not in a position or able to contribute our time a cash contribution to encourage those enthusiasts who are doing good work, as in the instance of the Winchester Trails letter which was not sent out widely will once again be sent, this time more broadly throughout the Town as a reminder of the idea.

Warning on coal plants

TO THE EDITOR:

Two hundred years ago a New England resident was kind enough to alert his countrymen to an impending invasion. Had he remained silent, our way of life would now be drastically different. I'd like to return the favor. Paul Revere was prepared for danger that came by land or by sea. The invasion faced by Massachusetts and Vermont will come by air.

On the border New York State shares with Massachusetts and Vermont, Inter-Power of New York wants to build one of the nation's largest coal burning co-generating power plants. It will be the largest polluter in this part of the country. They will build it on the Hudson River, with prevailing winds taking its smoke and ash into the Berkshires of Massachusetts and the Work on the new High Street school, now called Ambrose School, was being completed. The school featured open classrooms and was headed by principal Robert G. Forest.

A 19-year-old man was arrested and charged with receiving and concealing imported marijuana in his Washington Street home. The marijuana was reportedly smuggled in from Vietnam.

Diana Donahoe of Glen Road held a neihgborhood carnival to help fight muscular dystrophy. Another carnival on Oak Street led by Bobby Noel was also in the planning stages. All proceeds from the carnivals were to go towards aiding the fight against muscular dystrophy and related diseases. Activities at the carnival were to include a penny pitch, fortune telling and a beanbag toss.

The "CONCERN line" was available from 6 p.m. until midnight for all those in need of help. The hotline offered a "listening ear," drug information and emergency service, as well as a medical and psychological referral service.

Winchester's Big League All-Stars became second in New England when the Connecticut All-Stars edged them out by a score of 2-1 after seven innings of play. The game was held in Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

The Winchester Elks Lodge prepared to host "lobster night," an all-out affair to which both members and non-members were invited. The menu featured baked stuffed quohogs and fresh chicken lobster, and the announcement in the Winchester Star boasted air-conditioned quarters.

Scoutmaster Frank Lawton was among those returning from a trip to the Boy Scouts' Philmont Ranch in New Mexico. The journey included 10 days of travelling on foot and horseback through the Cimarron country and was highlighted by a trek to the top of Baldy Mountain.

Renton's Market at 32 Church Street offered fresh green beans at 19 cents per pound and cantaloupes for 33 cents each. Fresh swordfish went for $1.09 per pound.

A car holding seven passengers slammed into a tree on Cross Street that week. Six of the passengers were injured and one was badly shaken up during the late-night crash.

The Winchester Rotary Club visited Winning Home Farm for their annual luncheon. The facility gave kids from the South End House in Boston the opportunity to have a summer vacation in a rural setting. The Rotarians had been actively involved in transforming the home, and had made great progress with the improvements.

A new bakery, Dorothy Muriel's Market, opened at Converse Market. There was also much excitement about the grand opening of a new, air-conditioned Zayre in Woburn.

Green Mountains of Vermont.

How bad can one power plant affect neighboring states, you ask? Bad enough to obscure scenic vistas in Vermont's Lye Brook Wilderness area, bad enough to prohibit economic development in western Massachusetts by using up all allowable federal air emissions, bad enough that every bordering town, city and village have officially opposed it and bad enough that Vermont and Massachusetts have sent their attorney generals to Albany to fight it.

The area where Inter-Power wants to build this coal plant is already out of compliance with federal air standards. The federal government can't clamp down on polluters though, until Governor Cuomo asks them to. Governor Cuomo has asked midwestern states to stop burning coal that is harming New York's Adirondack Mountains. He has asked the Chinese to stop burning coal because it is putting a hole in our atmosphere. And he is allowing his own state to do to New England what he is asking others to stop. While Governor Cuomo was quite willing to make sure the Shoreham Nuclear Plant remained closed, he has refused to block this onslaught of coal burning behemoths.

It isn't just this one plant. Governor Cuomo's Energy Master Plan calls for 18 more coal plants to meet New York's future energy needs. Coal plants need a big river to cool them and New York State only has one. It sits on the border of Vermont and Massachusetts. We get the power — you get the smoke.

Worse yet is the fact that the Inter-Power plant is only a test case. If this huge plant, that will annually burn one million tons of the worst grade of coal is built, others will follow. They will be built on the Charles, the Connecticut, the Winooski and the White Rivers as New England seeks to meet its own energy needs.

The effects of coal burning are well known. The forests of Europe have been destroyed by burning coal. The lakes of New England are without life from burning coal. My home already has an average of cancer and respiratory illness far above the national rate. Don't let it happen to you. Write to your federal representatives. Let them know the Inter-Power plant is an affront to our health and encourage them to contact the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The Eastern States must heed this alarm with the swiftness and resolve of our ancestors that fateful night two centuries ago. For just as surely as the enemy that crept into our midst that night, these environmental hazards are threatening our health and our way of life.

Aardu's capture brings relief

TO THE EDITOR:

The imagination of local people was aroused by the recent leap to "freedom" by the male wallaby, Aardu, over a five-foot fence at Stoneham's Stone Zoo. As people worried about him, were on the lookout for him and fervently hoped he would not become a highway casualty — he became and instant celebrity. His story was written up in local papers, he made the noon and 6 p.m. news on television and a hunting posse was rounded up to find him and return him safely to the zoo. His story contrasted with that of the New England economy and problems in the Middle East, but we probably needed something like this to take our minds off local and national problems. After several days of searching, he was sighted and lured inside a "trap" — an enclosure that protected him and did not hurt him in any way. The lure used was not French perfume, but it worked. The expertise of the zoo personnel worked successfully and he is now back in the fold — inside a 12-foot enclosure that should keep him happily inside with his little harem. So we are all relieved and life goes on, with this little item of satisfaction and joy to buoy us all up. Have a good life, Aardu!

Letter leads students to Europe

dents are often recommended for the program by a teacher or former participant in the program.

Both will be juniors in the fall, Ducey at Winchester High School and Manzo at Lawrence Academy in Groton.

Being accepted to the program was an involved process, including lengthy applications and an interview by a screening committee. Once they were accepted, both attended orientation sessions at Merrimack College, and then in Washington, D.C. before heading off to Europe.

According to Manzo, groups in the program travel to different areas of Europe as student ambassadors. Ducey and Manzo were in a group with 30 other students from California and New York who travelled to Vienna, Austria; Budapest, Hungary; Zagreb, Yugoslavia; Venice, Florence and Rome, Italy; and Athens and Lamia, Greece. Overall, the program included approximately 300 students from around the country.

Both Ducey and Manzo agreed there were both differences and similarities at home and abroad.

Manzo added that due to the proximity of countries, many students know at least one other language, often English. "I was very impressed with the children over there," she said. "My 15-year-old host sister [in Greece] asked a lot of questions I had trouble answering. I never realized how much people really wanted to know about America."

In some countries, Manzo said Christians celebrate "name days," the day on which their patron saint was born.

Activities in the countries ranged from planned visits to various sites, including embassies and consulates' offices, to free time with homestay families.

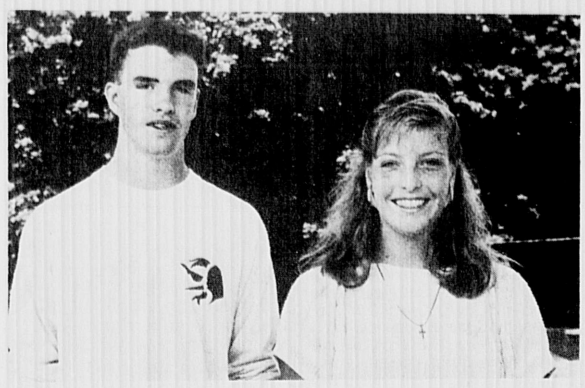

In the beginning of the trip, Manzo said there was little contact with government officials.

But once the group hit Italy, Ducey said visits were scheduled "left and right."

"Government is not as different as you think," said Ducey. Noting that Italy has as one political party, a Communist party, Ducey said his perception of that form of government changed. "You think of Russia. The Communist party is not against America.

"The way Americans are brought up, [especially] through t.v., Americans are good, Russians are bad and Communism is wrong," he added. "It opened my eyes to see [different groups] could work together."

For both, homestays offered the best view of what life was really like abroad. "I wish I had more experience in learning in that type of situation," said Manzo. She added the program made sure the child closest in age to the visiting student spoke "at least a little English."

Sean Ducey and Christina Manzo, back from a month-long trip to Europe

"You really got involved with the internal aspects of the country," she said. "You got involved with families in their own home. I had a wonderful time experiencing new things, new foods." And in Greece, she added "new bedtime hours ... They stay up really late."

"You're forced to accept a culture because you live with them day in and day out," Ducey said. He added that one of his best experiences was with a homestay family in Greece. "The father made wine [for a living]. Even though I couldn't speak any Greek, we still could communicate. He owned acres and acres of vineyards ... He was really open, and showed me his whole house," Ducey said.

"It really opened my eyes to how he accepted me so quickly and opened his house and his interests," he said. While at a homestay in Greece, Ducey said he was included in an engagement party for one of the sons. "I've never seen so much food and drink and fun in my life," he said. "They brought me right into it ... To experience something that close, that family-oriented, shows they willingness to accept you and what you do. That openness is really where the program works best."

"They were willing to accept you and share everything with you. They were very open and wanted to know everything about you," Manzo said. In Greece, Manzo said her homestay family was particularly interested in the fact she was from Massachusetts, a state with a Greek governor.

Manzo said leaving homestay families was tough. "It was very impressive to me and very heartwarming that after four nights and five days, you became so close," she said.

Being an American was also something Ducey hadn't thought would be obvious. While he knew his language and accent would give him away, "I didn't think the way I dressed [would make that apparent.] I walked into my Greek homestay and the father looked at my shoes and collapsed on the floor laughing," he said. Florescent colors, he said, marked him an American in Austria, as well. "Austrians are more subdued [in what they wear]," he said.

As for their responsibilities as future adults, both feel what they learned from the program will help in the future. "Kids are the ones who are going to have to shoulder most of the burden," said Ducey.

"Things are going to happen that nobody ever expected," said Manzo. "In Europe, when these kids grow up, they're going to have to do a lot of supporting [of fellow Europeans] These nations are going through changes, and Americans have to support them, too."

"If we work together and get to know each other through programs like this, I feel there will be an easier pathway for us to follow ... I think these people are willing to meet us halfway," added Ducey.

"We're the next adults of this world ... This experience is what we're going to need for the future," Manzo said. "Understanding, instead of wars, is what's going to have to happen."

Stone Zoo officials capture escaped wallaby

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

The Stone Zoo's wallaby Aardu may reminisce about his two weeks on the run, but zoo officials have made sure his free-wheeling exploits won't be repeated by making his new cage "Aardu-proof."

Aardu had his 15 minutes in the limelight — which he stretched to two weeks — when he escaped from his cage at Stoneham's Stone Zoo. Last Friday, Aardu was captured with a combination of hard work by zoo personnel and local residents and some wildlife ingenuity.

Representative Paul Casey (D-Winchester), who also joined the possee hunt for Aardu, said zoo officials put hay from the female wallabies' area in a cage to lure Aardu home. According to Casey, that did the trick.

"We're estatic," said Casey, "we're really tickled that he's back."

But from now on, Aardu will be living in a stricter environment, surrounded by a 12-foot enclosure instead of his former cage with a 4-foot fence.

Casey said the wallaby, which is a smaller member of the kangaroo family, was visibly excited upon his return to Stone Zoo, but otherwise healthy. And after the hubbub surrounding his return died down, the rambunctious Aardu promptly fell asleep, said Casey.

Casey added that his office received an outpouring of phone calls from residents and volunteers to join the search for Aardu. Many people called with ideas on how to trap the wayward wallaby, said Casey.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

Profile of artist Edmund Garrett

By Ellen Knight
Special to The Star

The second artist to be profiled in this summer's homage to Winchester's artistic heritage is Edmund H. Garrett. Garrett lived in Winchester about 14 years, during which time he was able, in a manner of speaking, to set his seal upon the town.

Garrett was born in Albany in 1853 but came to Boston while still an infant. After finishing school, he chose woodcarving as a vocation. At age twenty he turned to painting and illustration, and he drew for newspapers and magazines. In 1879 he produced his first painting which, according to his obituary, "excited comment when he sent it to the museum of fine arts." He won a medal for painting in Boston in 1890.

To pursue his art studies, Garrett went to Paris, where he studied at the Academie Julien and was a pupil of Jean Paul Laurens, Boulanger, and Lefebvre. While abroad, he traveled extensively and painted in England, Italy, and Spain. He exhibited at the Paris Salon, as well as principal exhibitions in America.

When he returned to America, he settled in Winchester for a time with his wife, Marietta Goldsmith of Roxbury, and his two sons, Edmund and Julian. They lived at 10 Lagrange Street from about 1893 to 1907.

While continuing to paint, Garrett also devoted time to writing. He was the author of "Elizabethan Songs," "Three Heroines of New England," "Carmen, the translation from Prosper Merimee," "The Romance and Reality of the Puritan Coast," and "The Pilgrim Shore." He also toured the country on the lecture platform.

In Winchester Garrett served as a Park Commissioner from 1902 to 1907. His interest in parks and natural beauty was evidenced not only in the landscapes he painted but also his design for the Winchester Town Seal.

The Town Seal, adopted by Town Meeting in 1896, combines images of the fields and the water that were then two outstanding elements of Winchester's environment. The outer circle is set against green, the color of the fields. The names of Waterfield and Winchester are set against a blue background representing water and are surrounded by a wreath of field daisies and water lilies. "The indigenous lily," reads the gloss accompanying the seal, "stands for the new world. The daisy, imported from England, marks its settlement by the Puritans."

Garrett died in April 1929 at his home in Needham. He is permanently represented in the art collection of the Winchester Public Library by the Town Seal, which hangs in the Smith Room.

RELIGION

Shir Tikvah has summer programs

As the month of August begins, Temple Shir Tikvah has a wide range of activities planned for anyone staying in the area. The first August event is the Havdallah service scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 18. It will be held at the home of Ely and Carol Bortman in Winchester, beginning at 6 p.m. This is a service for the whole family and will be followed by a pot luck supper. Please bring a salad or dessert to share. Call 729-0625 for directions.

There is also a Friday evening service planned on Aug. 24 beginning at 7:45 p.m. Rabbi David Kudan will be leading the service which will be held at the First Congregational Church in Winchester. The next Friday night service of Temple Shir Tikvah will be on Sept. 7, also beginning at 7:45 p.m.

For those interested in learning or playing bridge, Temple Shir Tikvah is planning an evening of bridge and fun. Diane and Steve Boettcher will be hosting the event at their home in Winchester on Saturday evening, Aug. 25, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Partners are not needed, but it is important to RSVP at 729-1459. Plan to bring a dessert to share.

As with all of Temple events, the services and bridge evening are open to all persons who are interested.

Alzheimer's group meets

St. Eulalia's Alzheimer's Support Group will meet Tuesday, Aug. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the garage room at 50 Ridge St., Winchester.

Meetings are open to families, friends and caregivers. Questions and concerns are invited. The topic for discussion will be family dynamics for the Alzheimer's patient.

For further information, call Roberta at 938-6844.

OBITUARIES

Irville H. Spear

Irville H. Spear of Main Street died July 31 at Massachusetts General Hospital. He was 83.

Mr. Spear was born in Warren, Maine, the son of Wilbur and Rebecca (Hupper) Spear.

He was employed as a manager at Gorins/Almy's for 45 years and was the deacon of the First Baptist Church in Winchester. An avid gardener, Mr. Spear kept a large garden at his home in Winchester.

Mr. Spear leaves his wife, L. Blanche (Johnson) of Winchester. He is also survived by his daughters Helen Elaine Spear of Phoenix, Ariz. and Charlotte Ruth Norris of Chelmsford.

Mr. Spear also leaves his brother Lloyd Spear of Rockport and his sisters Erma Chicolne of Warren, Maine and Kathleen Hiffner of Dearton, Mich. He is also survived by five grandchildren.

The funeral was held at First Baptist Church on August 3. Services were concluded with burial at Post-Sunny View Cemetery in Warren, Me.

Arrangements were made by Lane Funeral Home of Winchester.

H. Kimball Archibald

H. Kimball Archibald, a retired sales engineer, vice president and treasurer of Hayes Pump and Machinery Company of West Concord, died Friday, August 3 at Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford. He had lived in Winchester with his wife Grace for 57 years.

Mr. Archibald was born on a farm in Manganese Mines (near Truro), Nova Scotia, the fifth child (of 10) of John Henry Archibald and Wilhelmina Sutherland Archibald. He emigrated to the United States in 1927 and became a U.S. citizen in 1941. During his early years in this country, he worked in a paper mill, sold magazines, and was an outstanding salesman for John P. Squire Company of Somerville. In 1935 he began his long career with the Hayes Pump Company, a family business founded by his wife's grandfather. He worked first as a pump mechanic, then as a sales engineer and office manager. Later he became vice president and treasurer.

After retiring in 1980, Mr. Archibald took part in several programs at the Jenks Senior Center of Winchester and as late as June of this year was a driver for the Meals on Wheels program. He was a Life Deacon of the First Congregational Church and held many other church positions over the years. In addition to his community life in Winchester, Mr. Archibald enjoyed summers at the family cottage on Narrows Pond in Winthrop, Maine.

Mr. Archibald is survived by his wife of 58 years, Grace (Hayes), by daughters Janet Louise Levin of Washington, D.C., Margaret Elizabeth Anderson of Rockport and by sons David Kimball of Gloucester and Lawrence Ian of Santa Fe, New Mexico. Also, he is survived by sisters Margaret Archibald, Jean Chard, Edith Killawee, and Alice McCrindle, all of Truro, Nova Scotia and by grandchildren; Pamela, James and Katherine Levin, Meredith and Nicholas Anderson and Rachel Archibald.

A memorial service was held at the First Congregational Church in Winchester on Monday, Aug. 6. Burial will be at Mount Auburn Cemetery in Cambridge.

ELECTION '90

Alberts named coordinator for Rideout campaign

The committee to elect Ed Rideout has named John Alberts as the coordinator for his State Senate Campaign in Winchester.

In announcing the appointment, Rideout said, "John is a person who has always cared about the people of Winchester. He possesses the family values and integrity that is the hallmark of our campaign. John is concerned about the current fiscal mess and believes we should have answers relative to where our tax dollars are being misappropriated."

In accepting the position, Alberts said, "Ed Rideout exemplifies the qualities of hard work and relentless curiosity as to why we are not efficient and effective in our governmental matters. He is the type of individual Winchester needs to reexamine our priorities and bring us back to economic sanity."

"In relation to this, I will do all that is humanly possible to have Ed Rideout as our next State Senator," he said.

Alberts said he will be working out of the recently opened Winchester campaign office located at 585A Main St.

Albano endorsed by two groups

The 400,000 member-strong Massachusetts AFL-CIO recently endorsed state Senator Sal Albano (D-Somerville) in his bid for reelection.

Announcing its endorsement, the voice of organized labor cited the Senator's "superior labor record" and "advocacy on behalf of the working women and men of the Commonwealth." According to the group, Senator Albano's voting record indicates his "commitment to the cause of bettering the lives of laboring people."

The Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) and the Boston Teachers Union also endorsed Senator Sal Albano (D-Somerville) for re-election to the State Senate. The MTA praised Albano's legislative record and strong support for public education in Massachusetts.

Albano, Senate Chairman of the Legislature's Committee on Education, pledged: "I promise to continue making education issues my top priority. As budget cuts imperil the quality of public education programs, now more than ever we need a voice on Beacon Hill to represent the interests of our children and our grandchildren."

Langone announces re-election bid

Sixth District Governor's Councillor Joseph A. Langone, III (Dem.-Boston) announced his candidacy for another term at a reception attended by more than two hundred friends and supporters.

Citing his vast experience in Government as a civic leader, former State Representative, and current member of the Governor's Council, Langone said "In these fiscally troubled times, the citizens of the Commonwealth want assurances that their hard-earned money which they pay in taxes will be used rationally, efficiently, and compassionately."

As a member of the Governor's Council, Langone has dealt with the issues of judicial appointments, court staffing problems, monetary grants to cities and towns, and to the proposed construction of new prison sites.

As a fomer member of the House of Representatives, Joe Langone led the fight to make Columbus Day a full, legal holiday, supported progressive, and compassionate legislation, and was a key figure in legislation for improved education programs in the State.

"Now, more than ever," Langone continued, "Our State needs elected officials who have the experience to deal with the problems which face us, and who will have the dedication and courage to deal with those problems effectively. Throughout my career as a public servant, the citizens of the Commonwealth have come to know that they can depend on Joe Langone to make the truthful and honest decisions when voting on matters concerning the quality of life of all the Commonwealth's citizens."

A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

CLT Petition (H 6146) — House 75-69, rejected an amendment to a $1.45 billion deficit bond package to pay outstanding fiscal 1990 bils. The bill also dedicates 15 percent of income tax revenue to a Fiscal Recovery Fund which shall be used to pay off principle and interest on the bonds. The amendment would strike a language which prohibits taxes available to be credited to the fund from being "repealed or reduced unless equivalent revenues similarly pledged are provided."

Amendment supporters said this langauage would circumvent the Citizens for Limited Taxation (CLT) November ballot question rolling back taxes and require the income tax hike to be in effect for as long as the bonds are outstanding. Amendment opponents said the language will not affect the CLT petition and claimed the language is only included to reassure purchasers of bonds.

A Yea vote is for striking the language. A Nay vote is for keeping it.

Casey voted yes.

Central Artery (H 6146) — House 113-39, sustained the Speaker's ruling that an amendment to the $1.45 billion bond issue goes beyond the scope of the bill and should not be allowed for debate and a vote. The amendment would prohibit any money from being spent on the central artery depression project after December 30, 1990 unless the Secretary of Transportation presents a financing plan and recives legislative approval on a roll call vote. Supporters of the ruling said the amendment clearly goes beyond the scope of the bill and should not be allowed. Opponents said the bill and amendment both deal with finances and argued the project should be halted until more accurate costs are submitted and approved.

A Yea vote is against allowing the amendment onto the floor for consideration. A Nay vote is for allowing it.

Casey voted yes.

Parcel 18 (H 6094) — House 116-23, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate a bill allowing the state to sign a 15 year lease for rental of Parcel 18 in Roxbury. Supporters said this will set things in motion for a $200 million office and retail project which will revitalize the Roxbury area. Some opponents said the bill may violate state bidding procedures. Others, noting they support the Massachusetts Water and Resources Authority (MWRA) moving to Quincy, said this bill may pave the way for the MWRA to move to Roxbury.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

Conference Committee Budget (H 5701) — House 149-1, rejected the House-Senate conference committee version of a $13.7 billion fiscal 1991 state budget. Supporters offered no arguments. Some opponents said the budget is full of waste and unnecessary spending and claimed more cuts can easily be made. Many said that even with the recent tax hikes the budget is still some $300 million or more out of balance and must be cut to solve the state's fiscal crisis. Others noted that cuts are the only answer since there is little support for additional taxes.

A Yea vote is for the budget. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

The Senate — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on four roll calls from the week of July 23-27.

More Juveniles (S 782) — Senate 15-10, refused to table a bill requiring any child between 14 and 17, charged with violation of any law for which a state prison sentence can be imposed, to be charged as an adult unless the court finds that the child does not present a danger to the public and is amenable to rehabilitation. Bill supporters said this is aimed at violent juveniles who repeatedly commit serious crimes and should be treated as adults. Opponents said the bill goes too far and will result in too many kids being tried as adults.

A Yea vote is for tabling the bill. A Nay vote is against tabling.

Albano voted yes.

SENIORS

Bridge group continues through summer

By MARY KELLY
Special to the Star

Another of the popular programs continuing at the Jenks Center through the summer is the Thursdsay afternoon Bridge group. Organized by Mal Masters and Randy Kazazian, this group meets all year round and newcomers are always welcome. During the past year Mal Masters has remained at the Center after the bridge playing is completed and instructed a group of seniors on some of the fine points and techniques of bridge.

This is a very friendly group, the bridge sessions are held in air conditioned comfort, and seniors are welcome to bring their lunches and have an informal get-together before play begins at 12:30 p.m. A very modest fee is charged and all bridge lovers in town are cordially invited. In preparation for the fall season, why not plan to come down now and enjoy a pleasant afternoon in the cool and quiet Jenks Room?

Keep Well Clinic serves many seniors

The Keep Well Clinic at the Jenks Center is a busy place on the first and third Thursdays of each month (except for July and August when the Clinic meets only on the second Thursday). A loyal group of nurses and clerical staff checks on Winchester seniors' blood pressure, weight and nutritional changes.

Over the course of a year hundreds of townspeople avail themselves of this service. As many as 60 to 70 people are seen in a morning. The session scheduled for today, Aug. 9, has 61 people signed up in advance, and there are always a number of others who walk in without an appointment. Seniors are asked to call the Center ahead of time for an appointment in order to expedite matters for everyone.

In addition to Clinic personnel, the Health Benefits Counselors attend these sessions once a month, on the third Thursday, and are available to answer any questions or advise on problems concerning insurance benefits and coverage.

Center thanks donors of medical equipment

A recent call for donations to the Center's medical equipment loan program has resulted in a most gratifying response: wheelchairs and canes have been coming in, and the Center is most appreciative.

It is hoped, however, that these items will continue to come, as well as commodes and walkers; crutches are not needed. Remember, if you have any of this medical equipment, in working condition, which you would like to loan out to seniors who are temporarily in need of these services, please get in touch with the Center immediately at 721-7136.

Please claim your coats!

There are four raincoats and two women's jackets hanging in the hallway open closet at the Jenks Senior Center. Seniors, please stop and look them over and claim any that belong to you.

Search continues for ceramics instructor

It was announced recently that the Center would sponsor a ceramics class in the fall with a new kiln donated by the family of the late Sam MacCarthy. An instructor is needed for the class and anyone having skills and talents in this area is asked to call the Center.

Applications available for tuition free courses

Following the recent announcement that a tuition-free education program would be available to Winchester residents over 65 years of age, seniors have been requesting applications for these senior scholarships. The courses in liberal arts and business administration are being offered by University College, a part-time undergraduate division of Northeastern University and classes will be held at Winchester High School starting in September. You may be making your plans for the fall now, so come in to the Center and get your application.

New director needed for glee club

The Jenks Center is seeking a Director of its Glee Club, to succeed Ann Perrault who resigned last spring. The Glee Club is a talented and enthusiastic group, both men and women, who sing in ensemble.

They entertain at Winchester Senior Association parties, participate with high-schoolers in intergenerational music programs, and visit nursing homes and the Mt. Vernon House with a repertoire of songs on special occasions.

If you are interested in conducting the group, or if you know of someone who will handle the responsibilities of directorship, leave word at the Jenks Senior Center Reception Desk at 721-7136.

Upcoming Events

Thursday, Aug. 9 — Keep Well Clinic, 9:30 to 11:30 p.m., with Health Benefits Counselors in attendance — this will be the only Clinic in August; twice monthly Clinics will be resumed in September.

Tuesday, Aug. 14 — No Yoga and Creativity session today; informal Recorder group, 2 p.m.

Wednesday, Aug. 15 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; informal Art group, 9:30 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon; North Shore Music Theatre trip, bus leaves Center at 1 p.m., returns at 5 p.m.; Games Day (cribbage, cards, scrabble, chess, pool), 1 to 4 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 16 — Deadline for Newsletter material, 12 noon; Bridge, 12:30 p.m.

Eating Together menu

Please remember to sign up the day before the meal, by 11 a.m., and let the desk volunteer know if you need transportation. The meal is served at 12 noon. Newcomers are always welcome.

Friday, Aug. 10 — meatball sub, peas, whipped potato, grated cheese, sub roll, chocolate pudding.

Monday, Aug. 13 — meatloaf with onion gravy, corn souffle, broccoli, white bread, chilled fruit.

Wednesday, Aug. 15 — stuffed pepper, rice and ground beef, tomato sauce, carrots, oatmeal bread, fresh melon.

Senior citizens' law project

The Senior Citizens' Law Project (SCLP) provides legal assistance to eligible seniors at no charge. Legal assistance is available in the following areas: Social Security and SSI; Medicaid; Public Benefits (such as Food Stamps and General Relief); Evictions (from public and private housing); opposition to guardianship; and Nursing Home Care. In other areas of the law, they offer referrals as necessary. If you live in the Minuteman Service area, which includes Winchester, please call (617) 646-6000, ext. 4739.

Upon receiving a gift from my daughter

By Bill Gould

When I opened your package what did I see?
An exquisite coin purse. A present for me
Of fine crafted leather with elegant line
Refined by a culture mellowed by time.

When I opened the purse which I thought empty
The more I searched the more I did see.
For compressed in what I thought just empty space
I found love that gives life to our human race.

Real Estate & You... "EFFECTIVE MARKETING"

You're hysterical. Your home has been listed for a month, and you've had only two newspaper ads. Your house is being shown fairly regularly, but in the back of your mind, you wonder if the agent is doing enough.

Sellers often equate effective marketing with classified ads in the Sunday real estate section every weekend. In practice, however, these ads generate relatively few sales of the properties they feature. The most talented Realtors know their market well enough to know where buyers for your home are likely to come from. They will then look for the best ways to reach those people; with direct mail, telephone contact or specialized ads in neighborhood publications. They will also work to get their colleagues excited about your house, especially agents who tend to have many listings or sales in your neighborhood. Finally, it's important for you and your agent to communicate often so you'll know exactly what he or she is doing and what you might be doing to get your home sold.

Board tackles odor woes

noise from a fan located inside the roof of the apartment-turned-condominium complex.

Previous testing by Health Director Joseph Tabbi in that apartment showed that the noise in the apartment was below state standards of allowable "background noise." Citron, however, says the noise has gotten louder since the owners of the complex attempted to fix the fan, and he would like his apartment retested.

Citron added that he resided at Parkview for 18 years prior to purchasing his unit when the complex went condo. Until recently, the fan had not been a noise problem, he added.

She has a pattern of achievement

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Four years ago, Winchester resident Linda Faiola spent a total of eight months in Bolivia, South America helping the natives. Helping them do what, you might ask? Why, knit a better sweater, of course.

Faiola, whose artistic flair is evident from the haphazard decor of her High Street workshop/studio all the way down to her handcrafted watchband, used her knitting and pattern-making talents to aid a flailing knitwear manufacturer in Bolivia iron out problems at the company's cooperative plant.

And her latest undertakings are equally compelling. Faiola now divides her time between teaching knitting and pattern-making courses to students of the Cambridge Center for Adult Learning and writing articles for "Threads," a national bimonthly publication.

She recently had a piece published in the August/September issue called, "Making Great Strides," which details how to put a perfect pleat into a straight skirt.

Though her days may be less hectic than when coordinating the efforts of 1,500 South American knitting workers, Faiola is still knee-deep in artistic endeavors including her latest project for "Threads."

Faiola's newest article will focus on openings and closings in garments, like buttons, zippers and pockets. She also coordinates the graphics that accompany the articles she writes. That usually means producing a garment that best illustrates a certain technique, and photocopying her paper patterns to be reproduced in the magazine.

Writing, Faiola finds, is an artistic avenue she'd like to continue with. "I seem to be able to put down in words the technique," she says. While Faiola is working on the drawings, she's also jotting down the bulk of the text, so her readers get a comprehensive view of the topic.

At the Cambridge Learning Center, Faiola teaches pattern-making to both the amateur and the budding professional. Faiola says people who sew can become frustrated with the fit of their finished product when they regularly use commercial patterns. When a pattern is designed by the sewer, it tends to have a better fit, says Faiola. "I always know what I'll end up with," says Faiola, "I'm not guessing anymore."

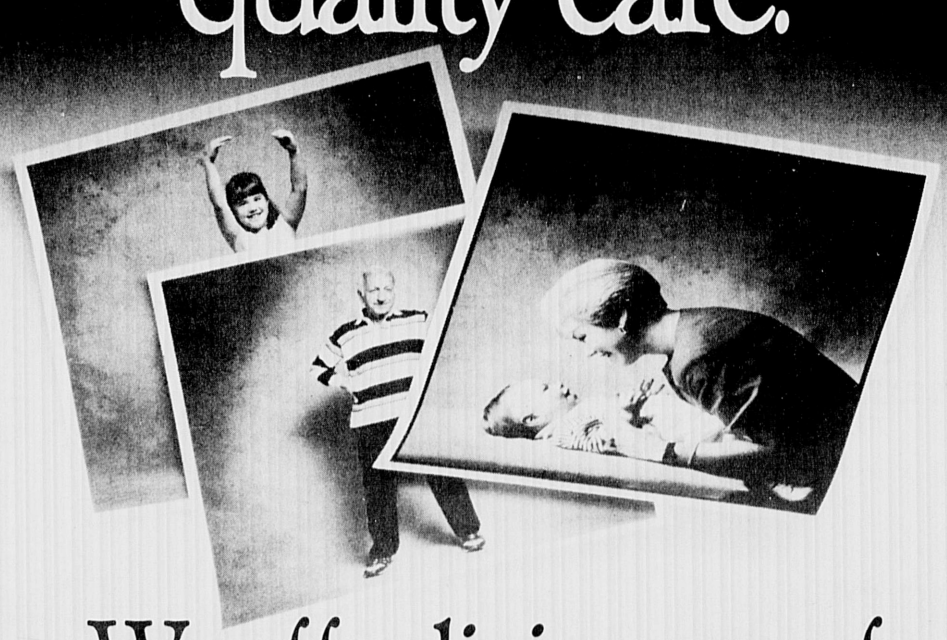

After years in the garment business, Faiola has certainly gained experience and honed her creative talents. She's covered the gamut of handcrafts including teaching patchwork quilting, working in the garment industry and professionally weaving and knitting.

When asked if she'd ever return to Bolivia as a career move, Faiola seemed torn between her fascination with the country and the pure logistical nightmare an impoverished country can present. "It's not easy to go to a Third World country and to know what high style fashion is at that time," said Faiola. She added that while Bolivia is an intriguing country, it's difficult to base a fashion-oriented business in a non-fashion oriented environment like South America.

Faiola remembers that finding a box of tissues to buy was an impossible task in Bolivia and wandering through a fresh meat market, a sickening one. The jet that brought her back to the United States she likened to a time capsule, bringing her back to the modern day world.

For now, Faiola is satisfied juggling her latest interests, writing and teaching — but who knows what creative impulse will strike next.

A lot of hospitals promise quality care.

We offer living proof.

It's the smile on the face of a young girl. The look of confidence in a mother's eyes. It's a visible sense of well-being. The look of renewed health. It's living proof. And at New England Memorial, we believe it's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer—the stories of people like yourself who have made the right choice for so many reasons.

It's the quality of our staff. In every department of our modern facility, it's the superior nursing and physician care we provide. It's the quality of caring that touches our patients' lives in such significant ways. It's the genuine compassion that's an integral part of our approach to psychiatric care. It's the warmth and hope that enhance our fertility center. It's the hand and heart working together making our staff the right choice for so many families.

We're right where you need us most—close to home in a convenient, suburban location that eliminates the problems of parking and traffic jams.

Add to this our commitment to providing state-of-the-art medical equipment, and you start to see the whole picture. It's the picture of a mother's joy. A family's reunion. It's the picture of health. And at New England Memorial, we think that's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer. Newpro wins gold medals

The Winchester Newpro All Stars competed in the Bay State tournament of champions over the weekend and came out with the gold medals. On Saturday the team made a dramatic comeback to beat Waltham 12-11 and on Sunday they topped a pesky West Cambridge team 12-9.

On Saturday, the Newpro All Stars played against a favored Waltham squad. This was definitely a "Murphy's Law" game. Just when you thought that Winchester could play no worse, they did. Through the first four innings, Winchester committed 9 errors and fell behind 11-2. Also, Walthams pitcher had thrown a one-hitter at the locals. That hit was a home run with one aboard by Jarrod Galante. So going in to the last inning, Winchester trailed 11-2 and had only one hit for the game. The sixth inning was something to behold. Andy Sullivan grounded out, Bob Marrone doubled, Jarrod Galante doubled (11-3), Bill Shields walked, Mike McGreenery singled (11-4), Mike Pacheco walked, Steven Cucinatti walked (11-5), Paul McGowan grounded out (11-6), Rich Guilderson singled, Sullivan tripled (11-9), Marrone singled (11-10).

With the tying run at first base, two outs, Winchester down one run and a softball field in Bedford with 270' fences (standard fences are 175-200'), Jarrod Galante came up. Jarrod was 2-3 so far with a homerun and a double. Galante then took the first pitch deep to left field. It cleared the left field fence by a solid 20 feet for a 12-11 lead. Shields and McGreenery followed with base hits before Mike Pacheco popped to second. Relief pitcher Paul McGowan retired Waltham in order in the bottom of the sixth to earn Winchester a shot at the gold medal.

On Sunday, Winchester faced West Cambridge for the gold medal. This game went considerably different than the previous day. Eric Grant was the starting pitcher for the locals. Cambridge went scoreless in the first. Winchester rallied twice and threatened to break it open early. Brian Caruso singled, Andy Sullivan reached on an error, Bob Marrone walked, Bill Shields and Mike McGreenery each followed with RBI singles. Cambridge closed the gap with one in the second. Winchester came right back in the home half of the second with six runs. McGowan singled, Caruso singled, Sullivan singled, Marrone doubled, Galante doubled, and McGreenery singled for the six runs and a 6-1 lead after 2 innings. Cambridge came right back with 5 runs in the third. Bill Shields relieved Eric Grant on the mound for Winchester. Winchester went scoreless in the third and lead 8-6 after three. Cambridge added a run in the fourth. Winchester added two more in the fourth on a double by Bob Marrone, walks to Bill Shields and Mike Pacheco and a single by Rich Guilderson. Cambridge matched with two more in the fifth and trailed 10-9. Winchester added two more in the fifth on a triple by Andy Sullivan, doubles by Bob Marrone and Jarrod Galante. Bill Shields retired Cambridge in order in the sixth for a 12-9 victory and the gold medal.

Mike McGreenery, Andy Sullivan and Bob "bring home the bacon" Marrone had big offensive weekends. Jarrod Galante had an awesome weekend with 2 homeruns and three doubles in the two games. The relief pitching was solid with both Paul McGowan and Bill Shields having good outings. The team has a minimum of five games remaining on Aug. 9, 11, 12, 14, and 16. The team is hoping for a berth in the final tournament of Champions during the following week.

The Newpro All Stars travelled to Burlington to face the undefeated Burlington All Stars July 31. Winchester opened the scoring in the top of the second on a walk to Steven Cucinatti, a double by Mike McGreenery and a ground out. Winchester pitcher, Eric Grant, was throwing a fantastic ball game for the home team. Winchester added two more in the third. Hits by Brian Caruso, Bob Marrone, and Jarrod Galante yielded the two runs and staked Winchester to a 3-0 lead. Grant meanwhile retired the first nine men he faced. Both teams were scoreless in the fourth. Burlington got their first runner by virtue of a walk.

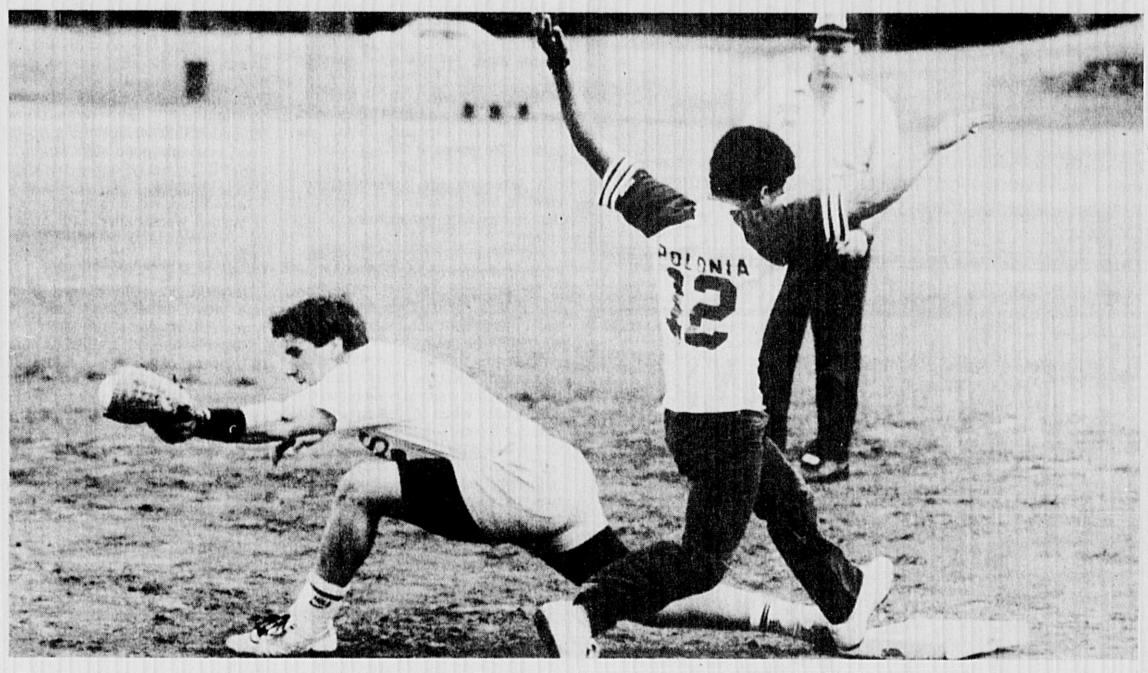

In the fifth, Winchester added two more on hits by Rich Guilderson and Bill Shields to take a 5-0 lead. In the bottom of the fifth came the now famous "Burlington squeeze." In the bottom of the fifth Eric Grant became mysteriously wild and no longer could strike anyone out. The end result was a tie score. Winchester came right back with a run in the sixth on an RBI single by Brian Caruso to take a 6-5 lead. The squeeze continued in the sixth and after two more walks, Burlington got a two run single to win 7-6. It was a bitter defeat for the home squad. This is a game in which they deserved a better fate.

On Aug. 2 Burlington traveled to the friendly confienes of West Side field. Over the past two years, Winchester has only lost once at home. This night was no different. Andy Sullivan, back from vacation, was the starting pitcher, He retired the first seven men he faced and 9 of the first 10. Meanwhile, Winchester was mounting an offense. After two were out in the first, Sullivan walked, but Marrone walked, Jarrod Galante singled, Bill Shields doubled, McGreenery singled, and Greg Miles singled, to yield four runs.

In the third inning Winchester added six more. Base hits by McGreenery, Mike Pacheco, Paul McGowan, Brian Caruso, and a home run by Andy Sullivan. Three inning score Winchester 10 Burlington 0. Burlington scored twice in the fourth to close the gap. Winchester added another run in an Eric Grant base hit in the fourth. Burlington added two in the sixth but could get no more. Final score Winchester 11 Burlington 4.

Softball playoffs unfold

By DAVID WALSH
Special to the Star

The Winchester Softball league wrapped up its regular season last week and after the past week of playoff action, will play a final championship 'A' game, as well as a 'B' game tonight (Aug. 9) at Ginn Field.

According to Ken Johnson, manager and player for Ken's Sub Shop team, this summer's softball season has been characterized by a "competitive, high level of play, in both divisions."

The two divisions that comprise the league, the 'A' and 'B' teams, consist of 10 and 12 teams respectively. According to Johnson, the level of play at the 'A' league games is of a slightly higher calibre than that of the 'B' league matches.

"At the end of the season, the best team in 'B' moves up and the last place team in 'A' moves down" to the 'B' division, said Johnson.

He explained that the process "has served to keep the softball match-ups in the league very competitive this year."

Other factors kept this year's summer softball play competitive. The annual All-Star game once again provided the opportunity for the best players in each division to face off against one another. This year's game ended in a 6-2 victory for the 'A' league, a score that didn't accurately reflect the closeness of the match, according to Johnson.

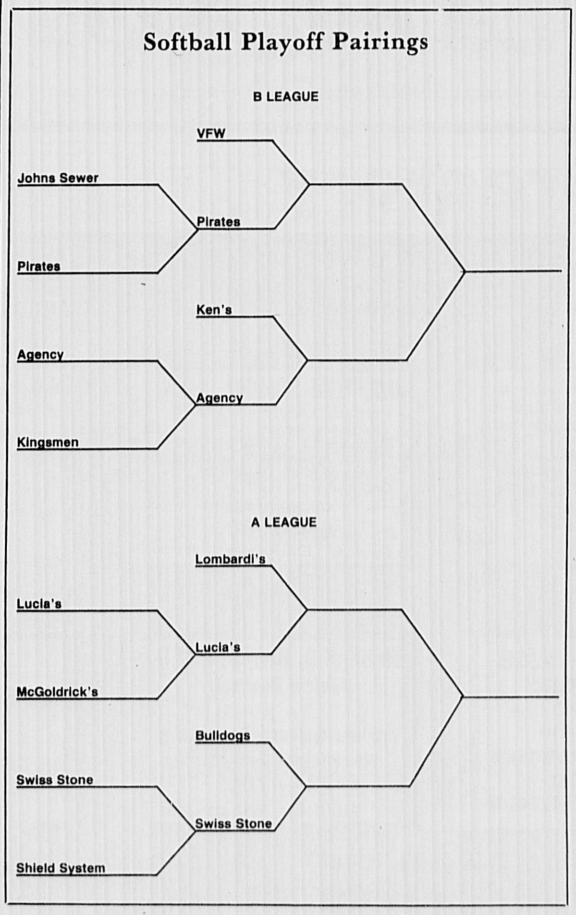

In addition to the All-Star game, the rivalries that frequently develop during the regular season often translate into intense playoff action, added Johnson. "We lost first place by a half a game, so we're looking forward to facing them [Shield Systems] in the playoffs. It's shaping up to be a real grudge match."

This year's softball play has also been accommodated by excellent fan turnout for the games and a good playing surface by the town, said Johnson. He credited Winchester with maintaining the condition of the playing fields at Ginn and Lynch. "Even with all the budget problems, they've done a real nice job of keeping the fields in good playing shape ... putting the white lines down for us and all that, and I know that the teams really appreciate it."

Tennis championships scheduled for September

The 62nd Annual Winchester Town Tennis Championships will be held at the Packer Courts on Sept. 8 and 9 and Sept. 15 and 16. This year, the schedule has been changed to allow more players to take advantage of the competition. Four out of the six tournament events will now be completed over the course of one weekend.

Women's singles, women's doubles and men's senior singles (45 and over), will be held the weekend of Sept. 8 and 9. The mixed doubles championship will be held the weekend of Sept. 15 and 16. The men's singles and doubles events will once again span both weekends.

All Winchester residents and town employees are eligible to play in the tournament, provided they are at least 16 years of age. Entry forms will be available at the Packer courts in late August. Tournament directors are Karen and Ted Martin and Moira and Lance James.

So, if your are looking to net a good time without a lot of overhead, mark those calenders now and plan to enter the Winchester Town Tennis Championships.

Two report to Colgate grid camp

Sophomore linebacker Frank Gianci and Junior strong safety Rich Burke, both graduates of Winchester High School report for pre-season football camp at Colgate University, Aug. 11.

They will be two of 81 upperclassmen joining 33 freshmen candidates, who report on Aug. 8.

Gianci comes into fall camp in a battle for the backup role at outside linebacker behind Kevin Scheffler. Last year, he was primarily with the junior varsity program before playing in the final varsity game against Army.

Burke is projected as the starting strong safety entering fall camp. Last year, he picked up his first varsity letter while playing in six games. He missed five games with a broken finger suffered in the opener against Fordham.

The upperclassmen will go through their physicals and testing Aug. 12 followed by a team meeting in the evening. They will then join the freshmen in the first full squad practice on Monday morning.

Colgate opens its season on Saturday, Sept. 1, on the road against Boston University at Nickerson Field. Kickoff is 6 p.m.

Beating the heat with healthy treats

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Richard Foster is someone who believes you don't have to give up treats to be conscious about good health.

Foster is the owner of the recently-opened Yankee Yogurt on Main Street. And frozen yogurt, he says, allows people to enjoy a treat that is in keeping with health requirements for low fat and cholesterol.

With no fat, cholesterol or sugar, Foster said, "It fits into anyone's diet."

"People actually come in smiling, because it's something they can have in their [special] diets," he said. "We have a lot of elderly consumers ... it's like they have a new lease on life." Foster noted another benefit of frozen yogurt is that it has half the calories of ice cream.

And Foster has found today's consumers are interested in the content of his products as well. "The customers are great. They ask all the questions [about cholesterol and fat content]," he said.

According to Foster, frozen yogurt was invented by the Hood Company in Boston, but was not a big hit on the East Coast when it was first introduced. "It really made it on the West Coast," he said.

"The trend has been, in the health industry, California has been one to two years ahead," Foster said. And the variety of flavors in his shop is a result of this trend.

Having worked in marketing for TCBY, Foster saw the growing interest in frozen yogurt among consumers. Looking to open his own business, Foster approached TCBY about opening a store in Winchester. But when nothing happened with that idea, he decided to break away and open an independent shop.

"The rest is history," he said. Foster grew up in Lexington, and said he has "always liked Winchester."

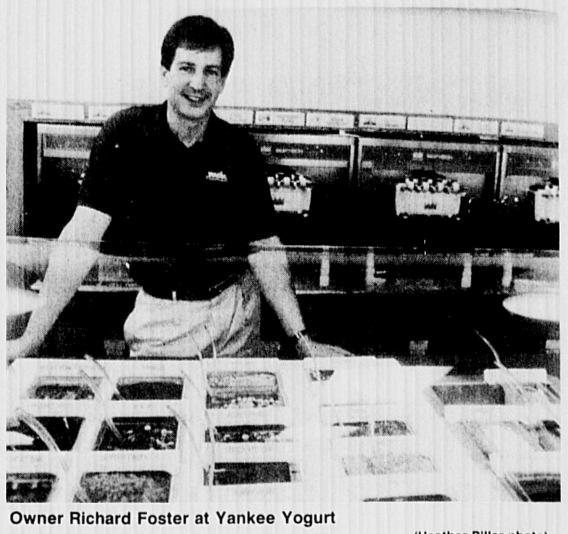

But opening his shop at the old Baskin Robbins site was no easy task. "The only thing remaining from Baskin Robbins is the rear door and utility sink," he said. Foster added that when pulling up the floor, workers found eight layers of tile. "It probably dated back 100 years," he said.

In addition, workers found pieces of burned wood underneath among the debris, which he believes are remnants of a 1930s fire in that block.

"It's like 'This Old Business,' " he said with a smile. "We should have filmed it from day-to-day."

Foster's biggest challenge came in the form of a 1988 state law that required eating establishments with more than five seats to have public restrooms. Prior to 1988, the requirement had been in place for sites with more than 18 seats.

Due to limited space in the shop, Foster decided to apply for a variance to increase his seating without the required restroom. Baskin Robbins, he told members, had been grandfathered, and his business was really the same. In addition, Foster said about 80 to 85 percent of his customers order take-out.

However, despite Health Director Joseph Tabbi's support for the variance, Board of Health member Randall Swartz disagreed with Foster's line of thinking, and ultimately the Board of Health required him to install the restroom, and make it handicapped accessible.

"I honestly believe if you're going to install a bathroom, it should be handicapped accessible," he said. Foster said the project added 15 percent to his cost. Then, on July 11, the Legislature enacted an emergency amendment to repeal the law.

"Anyone in close contact with the state should have let me know," said Foster. "I was the one to tell [the Board of Health.]"

Foster said he still doesn't agree with the Board of Health's decision. "When someone is elected to a town board, they should think about what will be best for the 21,000 residents," he said. With many elderly customers, Foster said the additional seats were important.

"Who are we really benefitting if we have four seats and no bathroom?" Foster asked.

Through it all, Foster said Tabbi and Building Inspector Dominic Serratore have been very helpful. "The town's lucky it has got good people [in Town Hall]," Foster said.

And so far, business has been steady. Foster recently introduced frozen yogurt pies, and plans to add cakes. In addition, Foster said he is looking into the possibility of starting up a Yankee Yogurt college scholarship for a high school student.

As for the name of his shop, Foster said "Almost all the products are from New England. I wanted something easy to say and remember."

Fancy Flea Antiques Offers Variety of Rings

A sparkling blue sapphire with accent diamonds, platinum set diamond with baguettes ... Do you think that a beautiful and truly unique engagement or wedding ring is out of your price range? Not at Fancy Flea Antiques, 1841 Massachusetts Ave., Lexington Center.

Estate and antique jewelry is not only beautiful but it is also one of the best values available on the jewelry market today. In addition to many diamond engagement rings, there are also ruby, emerald and sapphire rings to choose from.

"I just sold a ring the other day to a couple. It was approximately $500 and it was beautiful. The diamond had sparkle. It wasn't a little chip in a setting," says owner Marjorie Perlman. The store sells many engagement and wedding rings.

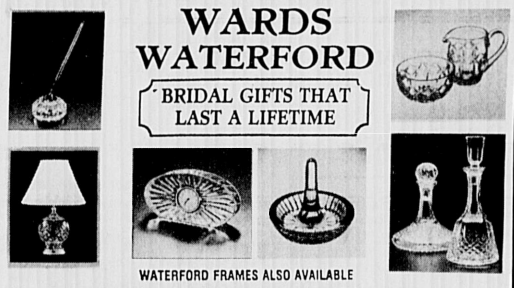

Need something old and blue to wear on that special day? Consider sapphire and diamond earrings. This store has an excellent selection moderately priced.

Apart from the jewelry, Fancy Flea Antiques also has a large selection of things suitable for wedding gifts. Antique sterling, crystal, Limoges, Cobalt blue pieces to name just a few.

Whether you are looking for jewelry or that perfect wedding gift, Fancy Flea Antiques is one stop you should not miss. If you need directions, call 862-9650.

CABLE TELEVISION

Cable hosts anniversary show

TV-19 hosts the second anniversary of its local sports talk show on Thursday, Aug. 9. "Sportsview" examines local and national sports news in a live, call-in format.

The hosts of the show are Dick McCoy, Dale Smith and WMEX Radio's Jon London.

The show is scheduled live for Thursday, Aug. 9 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Weather permitting, the setting for the special show will be outside of Continental Cablevision's studio facilities.

Some highlights of the show include a special segment from the New England Sports Museum and an inside look at how Domino's makes its pizzas so quickly.

The highlight of the special will come when WCVB-TV Channel 5 Sportscaster Mike Lynch appears live for a segment to talk sports and speak with the show's callers.

Each caller on the anniversary night receives one free admission pass to the New England Sports Museum in Boston. In addition, Domino's pan pizzas will be awarded to callers who can correctly guess the answer to the sports trivia question.

COMING EVENTS

Annual fiesta set for Aug. 12

The Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary holds its annual Fiesta on Sunday, Aug. 12. This year, the celebration will be held at Leonard Field, Washington Street.

The Fiesta begins at 4 p.m. with the celebration of Mass at 5 p.m. Following Mass, an Italian dinner of pasta e ceci will be served at 6 p.m. and will continue until the food runs out. There will be no charge for dinner.

The event will be conducted subject to weather conditions and ends at dusk. There is no rain date. It is suggested the public bring chairs for the Mass.

The Society sponsors the Fiesta to raise funds to be used to build a permanent shrine and to maintain the tradition of families and friends gathering on a summer day in fellowship to honor the Blessed Virgin. The tradition dates back to the 1920s.

Class of 1981 to hold reunion

Winchester High School's Class of 1981 will be holding its 10-Year Reunion in 1991. The class reunion committee, chaired by Steve Rothmann, has employed REUNIONS, A Class Organization, Inc. to organzie the event. REUNIONS, A Class Organization, Inc. organizes and administers high school and other reunions. It is the nation's largest independent reunion firm, with offices nationwide.

For more information, call 800-397-0010 or write REUNIONS, A Class Organization, Inc., 2155 Stonington Avenue, Suite 108, Hoffman Estates, IL 60195.

Class of 1985 at Voke plans reunion

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School class of 1985 is having its reunion at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cambridge on Sept. 14 at 7 p.m.

For further information, call 324-3350.

IC plans theatre trip on Aug. 22

The Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality has scheduled a day trip to New Hampshire.

On Wednesday, Aug. 22 the school bus will leave the Parish Parking Lot at 10 a.m. heading for Hampton stopping at Luka's Greenhouse for lunch. Your choice of one entree: broiled sirloin strip steak, baked Boston schrod or crabmeat stuffed chicken breast served with salad, rice or potato, rolls, butter, coffee or tea and dessert.

Then we will enjoy a scenic drive along the coast returning to the Playhouse for the 2 p.m. performance of the Academy Award, High Comedy play "Driving Miss Daisy." Cost is $28 per person.

Reservations are now being accepted so contact Anne Gallello at 729-0003 as seats are limited to 40 passengers, don't be disappointed; place your call, as soon as possible.

Langley appears in 'Hello Dolly'

"Hello, Dolly!" America's most popular musical up to the time it ran 2,844 performances in New York, has breezed happily into the Reagle Players' theatre for seven performances with Adele Keohan of Wakefield as Dolly Gallagher Levi, the bustling, meddlesome matchmaker who stirs up a storm in the colorful New York of the Gay Nineties.

Based on Thornton Wilder's farce, "The Matchmaker," the show recounts how a spirited marriage broker in New York in the 1890's has nearly concluded a match between one Horace Vandergelder, a tight-fisted "half-a-millionaire" of Yonkers, and Mrs. Molloy, a milliner in New York, when Dolly sets out to snag the groom for herself.

Tim Langley of Winchester will appear in the all-male chorus in the show-stopping back-to-back numbers, "Waiters' Gallop" and "Hello, Dolly" — 15 minutes of straight razzmatazz that brings the house down night after night.

Robert Eagle is directing this dazzling concoction, with sets from the national tour, Gower Champion's original choreography recreated by Susan Chebookjian, and Arthur Finstein conducting the orchestra.

Remaining performances are at the air-conditioned Robinson Auditorium, 617 Lexington St., Waltham, on Aug. 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 to $14, depending on time and seating. They may be purchased at the box office from 9 to 4:30 weekdays, or from noon to showtime on performance weekends. They may also be ordered by calling the box office at 891-5600 or Theatre Charge at 497-1118.

Library lines

The Awards Presentation and Celebration Party for the Winchester Public Library's Wings and Things Summer Reading Program for Children will be held on Thursday, Aug. 16 at 3:30 p.m. This program, for children who successfully completed the Summer Reading Program, will feature games, crafts, and a visit from the Back Alley Puppet Theater. Invitations to the Awards and Celebration Party are available in the Children's Room. Independent readers need to have read 10 books, and pre-reader teams should have read 15 books. To receive their special invitations, children should bring their book lists to the Children's Room by Aug. 15. Over 400 children joined the club this year!

The Back Alley Puppets are dragons, butterflies, giant people, clowns and animals. They range in size from puppets that a small child can carry to ones that require a dozen people to bring to life. Best known for their annual appearance at First Night, they have also appeared at the Cambridge River Festival, the Boston Kite Festival, and the Very Special Arts Festival.

For information on any children's activities at the Winchester Public Library, please call the Children's Room at 721-7140.

RECREATION

Early Fall brochures due soon

The fall brochures will be mailed to all Winchester residents during the week of Aug. 27. If you do not receive on by Aug. 31 contact the Recreation Department, 721-7125.

Mill Pond concerts

On Aug. 15, Jackie Lee Williams entertain with "Rocakbilly" music outdoors at the Mill Pond. This will be the last live concert at the Pond for the summer season.

Admission is free but donations during the concert will be acccepted to help defray expenses. In case of inclement weather, the concert will be held in the Town Hall Auditorium. Bring a chair, a blanket, a picnic and a friend. Take-out picnic suppers are available at the PARI'S (721-1554). Call in advance to order. Relax and enjoy the music. The concert will begin at 7 p.m.

Recreation moves to Lynch School

After more than nine years at the McCall Jr. High School, the Recreation Department will have a new home in the Administrative Office side of the Lynch School beginning Aug. 22-24 to facilitate the move.

The arrival of sixth graders at the McCall this Fall requires the existing Recreation Office space to be returned to its original classroom use. The Youth Center will remain in its present location at McCall and will continue its previous programs.

Business Spotlight

Golden Star Painting Co., Arlington

As You Like It

Having operated in the local area for more than a decade, Golden Star Painting Company has gained a widespread reputation for outstanding workmanship and reliable, responsive service. The company, which specializes in interior and exterior painting and shingle roofing, provides owner-supervised work that's fully licensed and insured. Owner Nick Moisakis, with over 20 years experience, is a man who's committed to customer satisfaction. Accordingly, he and his crew work exclusively on one job - from start to finish - before beginning another. Golden Star also offers expert wallpaper removal services, does gutter work and has a rigger's license. For a free estimate, call 648-5100.

New Classified Service

Starting this week we opened our new telemarketing center designed to make placing your classified advertising faster when you call 617-729-SOLD.

Our Harte-Hanks Community Newspaper classified staff will help you place your ad and offer suggestions for making the ad even more effective.

This new service is part of our commitment to work more effectively for you.

Please bear with us should you experience any delays or inconveniences while trying to get through during our first week. We want to serve you and are intent on making the system work.

INFORMATION

OFFICE HOURS

Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DEADLINES

- For placing classified line ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing help wanted display ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
- For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays

BEST BUYS

Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 4 line ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES

To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. Four lines for $13.00; $2.00 for each additional line. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT

Most classified line ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE

The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS

Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE
Premises: 42 Amberwood Drive, Winchester, MA

By virtue and in exscution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Albert L. Keenan and Alma M. Keenan to The Beverly Corporation, a Massachusetts corporation with its principal place of business at 92 Washington Street, Marblehead, Massachusetts, said mortgage dated August 9, 1989, and recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 19999, Page 138, of which mortgage The Beverly Corporation is the present holder, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at Public Auction at 10:00 a.m. on August 22, 1990, upon the mortgaged premises at 42 Amberwood Drive, Winchester, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

The land with the buildings thereon located on 42 Amberwood Drive, Winchester, Middlesex County, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and being shown as Lot No. 110 on a plan entitled "Amberwood Estates, Section Four, Winchester, Mass.", Miller and Nylander Co., Division of Boston Survey Consultants, dated March 30, 1979, revised 9-29-79, revised 10-2-79, and revised 11-2-79, and recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds in Book 13842, Page 294, to which plan reference is made, and being bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHERLY along Amberwood Drive, one hundred thirty and 51/100 (130.51) feet;

WESTERLY by Lot 109, as shown on said plan, one hundred eleven and 78/100 (111.78) feet;

NORTHWESTERLY along the approximate town line of Woburn, two hundred thirty-eight and 50/100 (238.50) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot 111, shown on said plan, one hundred sixty-four and 71/100 (164.71) feet to the point of beginning.

Said Lot No. 110, now known as 42 Amberwood Drive, Winchester, Massachusetts, contains 22,079 square feet, more or less, according to said plan.

Being the same premises conveyed to Albert L. Keenan and Alma M. Keenan by Robert L. Johnson, Trustee of the Amberwood Realty Trust by deed dated March 3, 1983, recorded in Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Book 14919, Page 229.

Subject to and with the benefit of all rights, rights of way, easements, restrictions, improvements, covenants and reservations of record insofar as the same are now in force and applicable.

TERMS OF SALE; Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to unpaid taxes, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, liens, assessments, or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record, if any, which take precedence over the said mortgage above described.

Fifteen Thousand and NO/100 ($15,000.00) Dollars of the purchase price must be paid in cash, certified check, bank treasurer's or cashier's check at the time and place of the sale by the purchaser and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid in cash, certified check, bank treasurer's or cashier's check within thirty (30) days after the date of sale and shall be deposited in escrow with Ronan, Segal & Harrington, 59 Federal Street, Salem, MA, pending approval of the sale by the Land Court. The deed shall be delivered within ten (10) days from the date of approval of the sale by the Land Court.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Nabil Boghos and Rose Boghos of 29 Everett Avenue, Winchester, Massachusetts to USTrust/Middlesex dated October 2, 1987 and recorded with Middlesex County (Southern District) Registry of Deeds, Book 18604, page 163, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at Public Auction at 1 o'clock, p.m. on the 23rd day of August, A.D., 1990, at 29 Everett Avenue, Winchester, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage.

To wit: Four certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows:

Parcel One: That parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Winchester, shown as the Lot marked 15,480 square feet, on a Plan of Land in Winchester belonging to Phineas A. Nickerson, dated February 15, 1907, Charles A. Pearson, Surveyor, duly recorded in Plan Book 165, Plan 32, bounded as follows: Southeasterly by Everett Avenue as shown on said plan, one hundred twenty-one and 93/100 (121.93) feet; Northeasterly by land now or late of Spaulding about one hundred eighteen (118) feet, and fifteen and 80/100 (15.80) feet; Northwesterly by land now or late of Swan, one hundred and six (106) feet; and Southwesterly by other land now or late of Nickerson, one Hundred and fifty (150) feet. Containing 15,480 square feet of land.

Parcel Two; A certain tract or parcel of land situated on the Southeasterly side of Sheffield West, so called, in said Winchester, and known and numbered Lot B on a Plan entitled "Plan of land on Sheffield West belonging to Ripley and Hovey, Winchester, Mass., May 1909, W. J. Dotten, Engineer", recorded in Plan Book 179, Plan 9, said lot B being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the Northeasterly corner of said lot B and the Northwesterly corner of lot C at a stone bound set in the ground in the Southerly line of said Sheffield West; thence the line runs Southeasterly by said lot C, one hundred twenty-one and 10/100 (121.10) feet to a stone bound set in the ground at other land of said Mary Williams Kidder; thence turning and running Southwesterly by land now or late of Graves and of said Mary Williams Kidder, eighty (80) feet to a stone bound set in the ground at the Southeasterly corner of lot A, on said plan; thence turning and running Northwesterly by said lot A, one hundred eighteen and 55/100 (118.55) feet to a stone bound set in the ground in the Southerly line of said Sheffield West; thence turning and running by Southerly line of said Sheffield West, eighty (80) feet to the point of beginning.

Said lot contains ninety-five hundred and seventy-six (9576) square feet of land.

Parcel Three: A certain parcel of land containing 2,213 square feet, situated in the rear of other land of said Mary W. Kidder on Everett Avenue in Winchester, bounded and described as follows: beginning at the Southeasterly corner of said premises, at a stake in the ground at land now or late of Greaves and of said Mary W. Kidder, thence the line runs: Northeasterly by other land of said Mary W. Kidder one hundred and six (106) feet to a stone bound in the ground of land now or late of Spaulding, thence turning and running Northwesterly by said land now or late of Spaulding twenty-one and 37/100 (21.37) feet to a stone bound in the ground at land now or late of said Ripley and Hovey and of said Mary W. Kidder, one hundred fifteen and 34/100 (115.34) feet to a stone bound at land formerly of said Ripley and Hovey conveyed to said Graves, thence turning and running Southeasterly by said land conveyed to Graves twenty and 9/100 (20.09) feet to the stake at the point of beginning.

Parcel Four: A certain parcel of land situated in said Winchester containing two hundred ten (210) square feet, as shown on "Plan of Land, Winchester dated July 15, 1936, John F. Sharon, Eng." duly recorded with said Middlesex South District Deeds in Plan Book 6103, Page 555, being bounded as follows: Northwesterly by land of said Mary W. Kidder ten and 49/100 (10.49) feet; Northeasterly by land of said Mary W. Kidder twenty and 9/100 (20.09) feet; Southeasterly by land now or late of Allie M. Graves eleven (11) feet more or less; and Southwesterly by land now or late of said Allie M. Graves twenty (20) feet.

For title see Deed of said Allie M. Graves to said Mary W. Kidder dated Feb.

Education for life

With more part-time students, colleges are becoming generational melting pots

By Maureen McLellan
STAFF WRITER

The state's college campuses, long dominated by 18- to 21-year-olds, are gradually being transformed into more heterogeneous places where older, part-time students are expected to become the majoring within the next decade.

Area college officials who run a variety of continuing education programs say a number of social and demographic trends are converging to boost interest in these courses and prompting some higher learning institutions to take a closer look at their part-time offerings to meet diverse student needs.

Feeling the pinch from a sinking pool of 'college-age'' applicants, colleges are also recognizing the population is bulging at the other end of the spectrum with people over age 65.

''That means people are going to have a lot more leisure time,'' said Sanford Lottor, director of continuing studies at Brandeis University. Leisure, he said, will lead older people to turn to colleges and universities for interesting and helpful courses.

In addition, a coming labor shortage is expected to entice more people into the work world right after high school as companies offer attractive salaries and benefit packages to attract job candidates.

But these benefits are also likely to include generous tuition reimbursement options encouraging employees to go back to school part-time to get degrees.

Michael Shinagel, dean of continuing education at Harvard University, said statistics indicate about 45 percent of the 12 million people enrolled in higher education classes are part-time students, over age 25 and not living on campuses. The majority of these students are also women.

''I think this trend will become more and more evident,'' said Shinagel.

How to avoid embarrassing mistakes in business writing

By Paula Ancona

SCRIPPS HOWARD NEWS SERVICE

Precision is doubly important in business writing.

You'll want to convey your exact meaning so there won't be any confusion. After all, your memo won't be able to answer questions.

And you don't want to look bad. Or is it badly? Read on to learn about bad, badly and other commonly misused words that could spare your business communications:

■ Among/between: Use among when referring to more than two people or objects. Use between; when referring to two people or objects.

■ Bad/badly: Bad is an adjective, which describes a noun. (He was a bad piano player.) Badly is an adverb. It modifies a verb, adjective or other adverbs and describes how, when or where. (He played piano badly).

■ Compliment/complement: To give someone a compliment is to express admiration or praise. But to complement a report is to make it complete, possibly by adding to it.

■ Corporation/partnership: A corporation is a group of business associates who sell ownership (shares) to investors. A partnership is a group of owners who share a business but don't sell shares of stock. Partnerships tend to be small. They may become corporations when the partners no longer want to be liable for the business all by themselves.

■ Disinterested/uninterested: A disinterested person is unbiased. An uninterested person doesn't care about the topic.

■ Farther/further: Farther refers to actual distances ("two miles farther down the road"). Further is intangible; it means to a greater extent ("I won't discuss this further").

■ Finalize: Avoid this. It's jargon that means to finish or put in final form. Use finish or complete.

■ Imply/infers: A listener infers by reading a hidden message into what someone says. A speaker or writer implies by hinting at something indirectly.

■ Judgment: Don't insert an extra 'e' after the 'g.'

■ Lie/lay: To lie is to be on a horizontal surface and generally refers to people. ("I'll lie down"). To lay is to place an object on a horizontal surface. ("I'll lay this book here").

■ Manageable: You do need an 'e' after the 'g' here.

■ Personally: It's usually unnecessary. Of course you, personally, believe whatever. You're the one doing the writing.

■ Presently/soon: Presently often is used to mean now, but actually means soon.

■ Requirement/requisite/perquisite/prerequisite: A requirement is needed, desired or demanded. A requisite is a necessity. A perquisite, or perk, is a fringe benefit such as a company car. A prerequisite is a required advanced condition, as algebra is a prerequisite for geometry.

■ -wise: Another piece of jargon that glops up your writing. For example: Productivity-wise, she's a terrible worker. Rewrite the sentence to avoid 'wise.'

CAREERS: Law graduates

By The Associated Press

Law school graduates face a dilemma: which is the better career path, small firm or large firm?

The answer pretty much lies within the "comfort zone" of each individual, but among those touting the small firm is Dean Booth, senior partner of Booth, Wade and Campbell a small firm based in Atlanta.

"In a small firm, the young lawyer has an opportunity to work directly with the partners. If he or she is very good, that quality will easily be recognized," says Booth. "In large firms, that contact is not easily accessible and young lawyers often need a 'mentor' in the firm to guide their path to partnership."

Booth believes that lawyers in smaller firms are often required to engage in a variety of tasks and have more opportunity to practice litigation.

Advantages often cited for larger firms include security and salary.

Richard Zeif, a partner in the small law firm of Nierenberg, Zeif and Weinstein in New York, says he advised his son to seek out a large law firm. "I think his future is more secure with a larger firm," he says.

Booth says the failure rate for large and small firms is about the same, less than 5 percent each year, and financial compensation is now comparable.

Education for life

With more part-time students, colleges are becoming generational melting pots

Education, From 1

"The predications are that in 10 years the majority of students will be part-time.

He said that while the most prestigious schools like Harvard will not suffer greatly from a smaller pool of applicants, many other distinguished institutions have already seen sharp declines in freshman applications.

"Colleges are going to have to make a concerted effort too draw adult learners," Shinagel said.

But Shinagel and others say this is complicated because adult students need more support services and do not bring in as much money to schools as full-time students.

"A lot of smaller schools that have not been involved in continuing education have an incentive to look at it. The difficulty is that it takes a lot of part-time students to generate the same revenue as one full-time students."

Robert O'Connor, BENTLEY COLLEGE SCHOOL OF CONTINUING AND PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

"A lot of smaller schools that have not been involved in continuing education have an incentive to look at it. The difficulty is that it takes a lot of part-time students to generate the same revenue as one full-time students," said Robert O'Connor, dean of the Bentley College School of Continuing and Professional Studies.

He said Bentley's part-time registration in credit courses for the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1990, was up 12 percent from the previous year, though non-credit enrollment was down.

Shinagel also said Harvard had "record enrollment" in part-time courses last year with 14,300 students.

"That's the most we've had in 80 years," he said. "I think it's a good program and people are increasingly getting committed to lifelong learning."

O'Connor said the state's adverse economic conditions have helped fuel part-time enrollment at Bentley because even those people who still have jobs feel uneasy when others get laid off.

"They start to feel 'Gee I need to think about being a little more useful to my organization.'" said O'Connor.

Framingham State College's new acting director of continuing education said he has not yet seen the state's economy reflected positively in his enrollment figures, but he is launching a public awareness campaign to encourage people to take courses to improve their skills.

"We want to give people the chance to do something different, to open up some new opportunities for them." said Walter Czarnec of Framingham State.

He said he is doing radio and newspaper advertising that cites the state's economic troubles to boost fall enrollment.

Czarnec agreed that with the demographic changes looming for colleges like Framingham State, it is crucial for them to attract older students in the decade ahead. To urge such people to sign up, he said Framingham State features a program through which student's can get a bachelor's degree without "starting from ground zero."

He said the program awards people credits for "life experience" in their areas of study that can boost them to a junior-year equivalency.

"The predications are that in 10 years the majority of students will be part-time.

Michael Shinagel,
HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Bentley's O'Connor said part-time students' interest in computer courses has waned with tough times for many high technology companies along Route 128.

More popular these days are courses in finance, business communication, professional writing and management.

He predicted that with more companies looking "to buy educational services for employees," part-time courses will become more specialized and "occupation specific."

O'Connor also said "life-related" classes in financial planning, retirement and career issues are becoming more popular as well.

At Brandeis, continuing education programs include an Adult Scholars program and a Humanities and the Professions course that uses literature "as a springboard to discussing social issues."

Lottor said many judges, nurses and teachers enroll in the Humanities class, which is designed for busy professionals.

He also said enrollment in the adult scholars program is increasing steadily.

"Our knowledge is expanding so rapidly that in order to keep pace one has too turn to some educational source," Lottor said.

Job Hunting STEP BY STEP

Looking for a job can be an exercise in frustration or an exciting challenge, depending on how it's approached. Planning your approach step by step can lead to a successful outcome.

1. The Resume

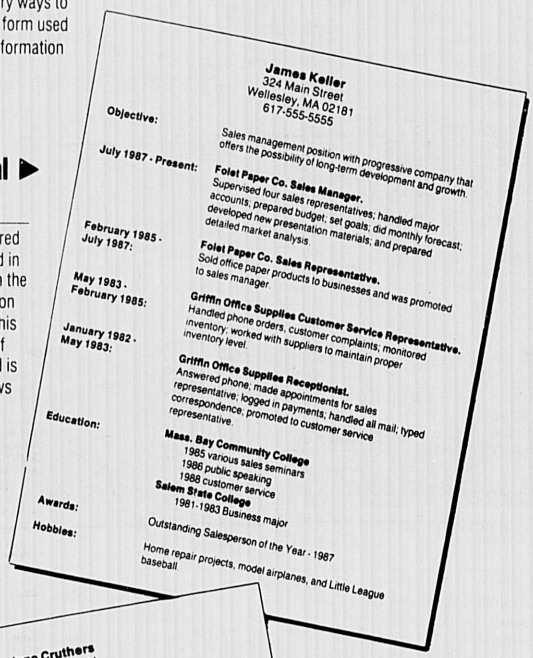

An employer will get many responses to an advertisement. He or she often will review resumes first to decide which applicants are to be interviewed.

A resume is an introduction. It should be concise (one page if possible) and easy to read. Avoid irrelevant information such as age, height, weight, family details and detailed military information (date, highest rank, and brief description of responsibilities are enough.)

There are two primary ways to prepare a resume. The form used may be based on the information to be presented.

Chronological Resume ▶

This resume is prepared with experience listed in sequence starting with the current or last position and working back. This is especially good if the work background is consistent and shows good progression from early jobs to the present.

◀ Functional Resume

When there is a variety of unrelated job experiences or when different skill areas need to be emphasized, the best resume format to use is the functional resume. In this format, the information is presented in a way that makes it easy for the employer to pick out your area of expertise.

2. Personal Assessment

What can I do? What do I want to do? What do I do best?

These are questions that need to be answered. You can't sell yourself until you know your product well! The period between jobs is a good time to analyze strengths, weaknesses, likes and dislikes.

Here is a simple project:

List all the work duties you have had in the past. The list probably will be varied and long. That's fine. Add anything that comes to mind, no matter how small.

Now, highlight all the things on the list you really enjoy doing. Next, check all the things you were successful doing. Ideally, there will be some overlapping.

Now, list all the skills required to do the highlighted tasks.

	DUTIES	SKILLS
	order parts	use catalog/fill out forms
	deliver parts	driving/map reading
	arrange for courtesy pickups	scheduling/communication
	repair transmissions	mechanical
	greet customers	communication
	operate forklift	driving
✓	do inventory	math
✓	operate computer to monitor parts flow	math/typing
	do monthly sales totals	math
	sell additional services	communications/sales
✓	repair warehouse equipment	mechanics
	pack and ship orders	detail/manual dexterity
✓	do monthly forecast	math
	keep customer records	organizational
	prepare sales target lists	organizational
	supervise loaders	communication/leadership

What this shows you is that your favorite duties are the ones that require math skills. Your strongest areas were math and mechanics.

This understanding will make it easier to explain your strengths to an interviewer. The jobs that are geared toward using these skills would be the most suitable and satisfying.

3. Research

Knowing about the company with which you are interviewing will set you apart from most of the others being interviewed. Spending time to find out about the services, products, market area, primary concerns, focus and financial history will make you a concerned and knowledgeable applicant.

Once an interview is scheduled, find out as much as you can. There are some tools in the library that make getting information easier than you may imagine. Check:

- Standard and Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives
- The Thomas Register of American Manufacturing and Thomas Register File
- Moody's (lists more than 20,000 corporations)
- The Million Dollar Directory and The Career Guide by Dun and Bradstreet offer information on companies in alphabetical order, by career field and geographical area. On microfiche is another listing of local business. Check with your local librarian if you need help. There are many other books, magazines and even videos and a computer available for information gathering.

Another good source is the chamber of commerce. Chambers will have not only a list of all chamber members, with product and service information, but a list of manufacturers.

With the information you've accumulated, you can ask questions relevant to that company. During your interview, mention what you've learned . The interviewer will be impressed with your interest. Do your homework. It will pay off.

Tear gas needed to end five-hour ordeal with distraught man

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

A 52-year-old High Street man is undergoing psychiatric evaluation after barricading himself into the attic of his home Aug. 11 and threatening to kill himself, police and hospital personnel.

After more than five hours, police were able to diffuse what was termed a potentially dangerous situation, which escalated into a showdown between Warren C. Rowe Jr. of 231 High Street and a police special operations unit.

Police eventually used tear gas to bring the man out, after hours of negotiating with him failed to bring a resolution.

"It was the safest way that the situation could be handled with minimal risk," said Winchester Police Chief Joseph Perritano. "It was a joint effort between mental health professionals, police officers and fire personnel. It worked out well," he added.

The incident began at 9:30 a.m., when police first received a call from Rowe's wife Susan. Susan Rowe, who had left her High Street residence to stay at her parents' home, requested information concerning psychiatric counseling for her husband, reports said. An hour later, Winchester Police were contacted by Symmes Hospital, and asked to help escort Rowe to that facility.

Police were warned by health officials that Rowe was considered "suicidal and homicidal" and developed a plan to approach the man with caution, according to police.

After the ambulance arrived and a plan was mapped out, Officers Theodore Yeanacopolis and Thomas Groux with EMTs Paul Mendoza and Carlos Aquino of Armstrong Ambulance Company headed to the High Street address. On their arrival, Rowe yelled at the officers to go away and then slammed the door.

The officers then approached the side door, for which they had obtained a key from a relative of the Rowes, and were again met by Rowe.

Officers noted that every window in the house had been broken, and the driveway was littered with glass.

At this time, officers saw something in Rowe's hand, but could not determine if it was a weapon before he again yelled at the officers and disappeared into the house, said police reports.

Officer Steven Fields arrived as back-up and the officers entered the side door and conducted a room-to-room search. Police observed that the telephone lines in the house had been cut. Rowe was finally located in the attic, but the only entrance to that area of the house was a fold-down ladder. According to police reports, Rowe had placed a large piece of plywood over the hole. Police said this made the situation difficult because the man was overhead and police could only enter the area one at a time.

> "[Using tear gas] was the safest way that the situation could be handled with minimal risk," said Winchester Police Chief Joseph Perritano. "It was a joint effort between mental health professionals, police officers and fire personnel. It worked out well," he added.

Rowe at this time was described by police as "in a very violent state." Police reports also said the man had made "numerous state-

Board wants more info on historic district plan

By KAREN BUCKLEY

Selectmen want more information before agreeing to establish a historic district commission.

Members of the Winchester Historical Commission met with the Board of Selectmen Monday night with a request to establish a study committee to look into the possibility of creating a local historic district in Winchester.

According to Commission Chairman Mary McKenna, creating such a district would protect and nurture the historical aspect of Winchester, in particular the exterior conditions of local buildings. The district commission would study areas of town to determine which to target as possible historic districts.

McKenna said the district commission would report to the Planning Board and Massachusetts Historical Commission during the process. When the reports are completed, the group will bring the proposal to Town Meeting.

Selectmen were concerned they would be unable to stop the process once it started, and said they would need additional time to consider the proposal.

"It's somewhat disquieting [that] the Board of Selectmen can set something in motion it can't stop," said Selectman Thomas Schmitt.

"The only commitment if [selectmen established the commission] would be to get seven individuals to look into the architectural heritage of the town of Winchester," said McKenna.

When asked why the commission believes Winchester needs a historic district, McKenna said, "Right now, we have no way of making any rulings [regarding renovations]." In referring to renovations to the Brown and Stanton building on Main Street, she said, "They could have chosen to put aluminum siding on that project."

McKenna said the historic district

Municipal fees, licenses provide a strange mixture

Which town would you choose if you wanted to get married and needed a quick and inexpensive marriage license? If you said Belmont, you're on the right track. But what about other municipal fees and licenses?

To answer this question, Century Newspapers surveyed 14 of the most often-requested licenses in Belmont, Watertown, Winchester and Arlington. The survey revealed that while many of the towns' license fees are similar, most vary considerably.

The most unique license issued is for fortunetellers. Budget-conscious fortunetellers should go to Arlington, where the license costs $2. In Watertown, no one has yet applied for its $25 fortunetelling fee. To qualify for a license there, the soothsayer needs at least one year of residence. Belmont and Winchester do not have a license for seers, soothsayers or sages.

> The most unique license issued is for fortunetellers. Budget-conscious fortunetellers should go to Arlington, where the license costs $2.

Patrick Marquis, membership services assistant at the Massachusetts Municipal Association, is the author of a book listing all municipal fees in the state.

"Until we published our book, there was no real way for communities to check what other cities and towns were charging," he said.

"The rates in Belmont are pretty much where they should be," Marquis said. "They charge just about any other city in the area," such as Bedford and Lexington. The rates are generally not high, Marquis explained. "It would be unpopular if they were too high. A lot of people would say that raising fees is like raising taxes."

Licensing fees started in the early 1980s, when towns wanted to collect money in the grip of Proposition 2½. The state's fees rank relatively low nationally, according to the MMA.

If someone has marriage on their mind, they would do well by going to Belmont or Arlington. Belmont charges $10 for a marriage certificate and an additional $3 or $5, depending on whether the person wants a short or a long form. Arlington charges $10.25, while Watertown and Winchester charge $15.

"Marriage is the most common (license requested). We have more than our surrounding towns," said

Recreation readies for move

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

While sixth-grade students are busy packing their school bags for their first trip to McCall Middle School in September, Recreation Department employees are busy packing their desks for their move out of that building.

Come September, the office that currently houses the Winchester Recreation Department will be home to a middle school English class.

The School Committee made the decision last year to move sixth-grade students to McCall to alleviate overcrowding problems at the elementary level.

The Recreation Department will move its offices to the basement of Lynch Elementary School on Aug. 22 and the department will be closed the following two days to settle into the new space.

According to Recreation Coordinator Jack Monteith, the department's office will be located directly below the School Committee room. Monteith says the three full-time staff members will have more room in the two offices. During the school year, the Recreation Department also employs two or three part-time employees, he noted.

Monteith says the move won't disrupt fall registration for courses. And, the Youth Center will remain on the first floor of McCall.

Monteith said brochures for fall registration will be mailed out the last week in August. The registration "window" is from Aug. 27 and Sept. 6. If courses become overbooked, a lottery will be held to select applicants. Monteith says this system seems to work best, and within the last year only a few courses went to lottery.

Monteith adds that residents may submit their application by mail or may register with a credit card by telephone. Applications received after Sept. 6 will be accepted if space is available in the requested course.

Residents may notice the fall brochure is smaller than most years. Monteith explains however, that the Recreation Department staff decided to split the fall season into two, two-month periods. The first brochure issued in late August will cover the September/October period. The second brochure, which will be distributed at the end of October, will cover activities scheduled for November and December.

The Recreation Department's new address is 154 Horn Pond Brook Road, Winchester. Its phone number will remain 721-7125.

Registration deadline fast approaching

Residents 18 and older have less than a week left to register to vote in the Sept. 18 primary.

The deadline for registering to vote, as well as for changing party affiliation, is 10 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 21.

To make the registration process easier, a new law was enacted this year allowing Massachusetts residents who are United States citizens to register at any city or town hall in Massachusetts. Affidavits of

2:32 p.m.
Officer Steven Fields responded to a two-car accident on Main Street. According to reports, the second driver, a 41-year-old Sylvester Road woman, was proceeding north on Main Street when she struck the first car, driven by a 74-year-old Woburn woman.

The first car was pulling out of a parking spot facing south on Main Street. The first driver was attempting to negotiate a U-turn onto Main Street when the accident occurred, reports said.

The first car sustained damage to the left front fender and the second car sustained damage to the rear quarter panel.

Sunday, Aug. 12
12 a.m.
Officer Thomas Groux was on patrol when he observed a vehicle traveling east on Pond Street near Cambridge Street at a high rate of speed.

The officer began following the vehicle and saw the car straddling the yellow line. According to police reports, the car was traveling at 45 mph in a 30 mph zone.

The officer activated the blue lights, but the car did not stop for a quarter-mile. When the car was stopped, the officer asked the driver for his license and registration. At this time, the officer observed the man had slurred speech and bloodshot eyes, reports said.

According to police reports, after several field sobriety tests were administered, the driver was determined to be intoxicated. The driver, a 16-year-old Woburn youth, was arrested and his car was towed from the scene. He was also cited for speeding.

11:30 p.m.
Officer James Cogan Jr. was called to the scene of a one-car accident with injuries.

The driver of the car, a Florida man, had been traveling north on Highland Avenue at Lawson Road when he lost control of his car and struck a tree.

The driver told police he did not know the road curved. His three passengers were taken to Winchester Hospital to be treated for neck and back pain.

Saturday, Aug. 11
4:20 a.m.
Officers Gabrielle Hersee and Daniel Perenick were called to a one-car accident on Johnson Road.

On arrival, the officers observed a car flipped on its side in the westbound lane of traffic. The driver had sustained minor injuries, but the car had extensive damage, said police reports.

The driver, a 20-year-old Mayflower Road man, reported he had been traveling west on Johnson Road when he hit the curb and the car flipped over.

Police found several beer cans around the car and found the driver standing up inside the tipped over car when they arrived, reports said. The operator was pulled from the motor vehicle with assistance from Fire Department personnel. Police observed he was unsteady on his feet and had bloodshot eyes. After several field sobriety tests were administered, the man was placed under arrest for operating under the influence of alcohol, said police reports.

Friday, Aug. 10
1:02 p.m.
Officer Steven Fields was checking the construction site on Cross Street when he spotted heavy smoke coming from the basement of one of the buildings.

The Fire Department responded to the scene and extinguished a pile of debris that was on fire.

Officer Kenneth Green was called to Leonard's Field bathhouse for a reported injured youth.

Upon arrival, the officer found a 12-year-old boy with a head injury. A witness at the scene told police the boy attempted to crawl across the bathhouse and onto the electrical wires, which currently connect to two trailers. The boy fell from the wires when they collapsed under his weight. He was treated and released from Winchester Hospital, reports said.

Mill Pond overlook project wades through red tape

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

The area around Mill Pond is on its way to getting a beauty makeover with help from the Beautification Design Review Committee, pending approval of the project by the Conservation Commission.

The final step in the process is receiving approval from the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), which owns a portion of the land. Winchester's Board of Selectmen officially supported the project in July.

The second hurdle however, was getting the okay from conservation commissioners, who oversee the protection of wetlands in town. Although commissioners had no objections to the plan, they opted to await the MDC decision.

Sandy Rodgers of the Beautification Design Review Committee (BDRC) appeared before the commission on Aug. 13 at a public hearing to discuss the impact — or lack of impact — the proposed project will have on the Mill Pond waterway.

Rodgers outlined the plan, which will consist of extending the brick sidewalk into a patio area for the pond overlook. Also, wrought iron fencing will enclose the area and a retaining wall will be constructed at a grade with the pond level.

A park bench and trash receptacle that were purchased with funds donated by the EnKa Society last year will be brought out of storage at the Department of Public Works building and utilized at the site. Azaleas that were donated by the Home and Garden Club will frame the overlook area and if the project is okayed, will be planted early next spring, said Rodgers.

Rodgers added that hay will be used during construction to prevent debris from falling into the pond. Commissioner Jane Spencer asked if lighting would be arranged for the area. Rodgers noted the two lights from the bridge, which overlooks the site, will provide ample light.

BDRC members hope to begin the project during late summer or early fall. All plantings would be done next spring, however.

When asked about drainage, Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia, who has aided the BDRC in planning the project, told commissioners that drainage requirements would be minimal in that area. Also, the "crushed stone" material used will create a smooth surface that allows water to drain through.

Rodgers said the project would go out for bid after the proper permits are obtained from the town of Winchester and the MDC.

Ciarcia added that he has been in contact with the MDC concerning the BDRC project and is awaiting word on a possible future undertaking the MDC is planning that would affect the grading of this project.

The Conservation Commission will keep the hearing on the project open until the MDC has given its approval. The issue has been placed on the Conservation Commission agenda for Aug. 27.

Selectmen support new regs

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Selectmen agree the Board of Health's suggested swimming pool safety guidelines are a good idea.

Board of Health Chairman Dorothea Sopper and member Randall Swartz spoke to selectmen Monday night on the proposed swimming pool "suggestions." Selectmen unanimously supported issuing the suggestions to pool owners.

Swartz had originally proposed the guidelines as mandated regulations. However, concerns regarding the legal impact of enforcing the regulations caused Board of Health members to enact the guidelines as suggestions.

Copies of the rules are available at the Board of Health and building departments, and will be mailed out to all pool owners.

Parking

Parking on Cardinal Street may be limited in the future.

Resident Joseph Sodi requested that "no parking" signs be placed along his street due to overflow from the 50 Cross St. parking lot. According to Sodi, the situation can be dangerous when one or more cars park near the Cross Street end of Cardinal.

Selectmen opted to refer the issue to the Traffic Advisory Committee.

Safety Officer Kevin Mawn told selectmen he had checked out the 50 Cross St. parking lot. "On the day I checked it, it was filled to capacity," Mawn said. However, Mawn suggested installing signs prohibiting parking between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. This, he said, would eliminate parking by employees or customers, but would allow residents to have visitors park in front of their homes.

Tax classification

Selectmen unanimously voted to retain equal tax classification for residential and commercial properties.

According to Director of Assessments Dan McGurl, approximately 92 percent of the properties in Winchester are residential.

Selectmen agreed the commercial base is too small to tax commercial property owners more.

"I have voted for equal classification in the past and I will in the future," said Selectman Robert Deering.

Selectmen Chairman Steve Powers said if selectmen were to consider implementing tax classification, they should look into it more thoroughly and have a report of who owns the commercial property in town.

Deadline to register is Aug. 21 registration will be forwarded to the home town of the registrant and his/her name will be added to the town voting list.

Registration will be held at the Town Clerk's office at Town Hall, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. In addition, the Town Clerk's office will be open the following special hours: Saturday, Aug. 18 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Monday, Aug. 20 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.; and Tuesday, Aug. 21 from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Residents interested in more information may call the Town Clerk's office at 721-7130.

Arson suspected in blaze

At unfinished condominium complex on Conant Road

Fire officials suspect arson may have been the cause of a Conant Road fire that caused an estimated $300 damage.

Firefighters responded at 1:02 p.m. to the scene of a debris fire at the unfinished condominium complex off Conant Road near Cross Street.

According to Fire Chief Charles McNutt, the site has been a hang-out for local youths, and fire reports indicate the blaze began in the basement where a pile of trash evidently was ignited.

Police Officer Steven Fields spotted heavy smoke coming from the building during a routine check of the construction site.

According to McNutt, damage was estimated at $300 and was contained because the building is not complete and consists only of a foundation.

McNutt added that because of the intense smoke, firefighters found visibility extremely poor. A pile of debris was found burning in the basement and was determined to be the starting point of the blaze, said fire personnel.

Firefighters extinguished the fire and vacated the scene by 3:06 p.m., said McNutt. Firefighters also reported that the debris at the site seemed to show the area has been used as a "hang-out" for kids.

Water projects continue

By LAURA JOHNSON
and KAREN BUCKLEY

Residents can expect cleaner water and better water pressure in the fall because of projects under way this summer.

According to Department of Public Works Director Anthony Celli, the cleaning and lining of Winchester's water pipes are, for the most part, proceeding on schedule.

Four contracting companies were hired to clean and line 33,000 linear feet of piping and replace 10,000 linear feet of water mains. All companies are expected to be finished with their portion of the project by mid-October.

Companies involved in the project are: Spiniello Construction Company; Linskey Construction Co.; Metro-Liner; and A.V. Construction Co.

Spiniello is involved with cleaning and lining existing water mains in town, and to date has completed 90 to 95 percent of the work. Celli told selectmen Monday night he expects that company to complete its project by late September.

Linskey is replacing water mains in the system, and is done with about 85 percent of its project. "They hope to be out of town by the end of August," said Celli.

Metro-Liner is cleaning and lining existing pipes. Their contract runs out Oct. 8, and they are done with 25 percent of the work. "In our opinion, they are behind, and we have asked [the company] to come up with a solution," Celli told selectmen. However, he added that the delay will not cause any break in service.

A.V. Construction is replacing lead necks, and has completed 90 percent of the work. Celli said that company should be done by the end of September.

Celli said after the work on the water mains is completed, each company will concentrate on seeding grass areas and filling trenches in the road created by the work.

When asked about the project by The Winchester Star, Celli said the town's water system was in need of modernization because of insufficient fire flows and low water pressure in homes. He said that although Winchester water is not filtered, it is completely safe, and that the project was not started because of any danger. He added that any discoloration detected in the water is not hazardous.

The next phase of the project is expected to be completed in the spring of 1991. It will include road paving and work on trenches.

Local fees provide interesting mix

Belmont Town Clerk Ann Cresine Wilson, who estimated the total number of marriage licenses issued at 300 annually. One reason for the popularity of Belmont with couples in love is that the town clerk's office is the only one in the area that is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Mondays. According to Wilson, couples from as far away as Hopkinton and Framingham come to Belmont for a marriage license.

New and used car dealers, auctioneers, inn keepers, and food vendors will pay the least in Winchester. Car dealers there have to pay an annual license fee of $30. For the same license, Watertown and Arlington charge $100, while Belmont asks for $75.

Winchester charges the least for a lodging house license. Belmont and Watertown charge $100 each, Arlington $50, and Winchester comes in lowest at $30.

Wilson's office does a survey about every two years, she said, to determine the prevailing rates. The new rates went into effect only this year. The previous rates "were very out of line," Wilson said, and needed to be increased. Each time the town clerk makes new recommendations, the selectmen are asked to approve them.

Movie theaters need two licenses to operate: one for Sunday, and one for the rest of the week. Belmont and Arlington were the two towns in the survey with movie theaters, and both charge $100 for a weekday license. Arlington, however, charges $100 for a Sunday movie license and Belmont only $25. A theater inspection license is also cheaper in Belmont. It costs $75 in Arlington and $40 in Belmont.

Watertown and Winchester were the only towns that had a single rate for pet licenses. Watertown charges $5, while Winchester charges $10. In Belmont and Arlington, there are separate rates for neutered and unneutered pets. Belmont charges $4 for spayed/neutered dogs, and $7 for those in full possession of their faculties, while Arlington charges $7 for spayed/neutered pets and $11 for others. Belmont does not charge cat owners a license fee.

Food is one of the more complicted categories of municipal fees. Watertown, for example, is the only town that charges $10 extra if the eatery serves dessert, and the same amount if it serves milk. Belmont, however, has the most detailed categories for restaurant licenses. It was the only town in the survey that required a $50 license for restaurants seating less than 15 people. For restaurants seating between 26 and 50, the town charges $75, while for larger eateries serving up to 100 customers, the license costs $100.

Food retailers also face various categories in Belmont. Stores under 1,500 square feet pay a license fee of $40. Those between 1,500 and 4,000 square feet pay $75, while food-vending stores up to 5,000 sqaure feet pay $150. Arlington charges $50 and Winchester $25 for a food-vending license.

In Watertown and Arlington, common victualer's licenses, or licenses for very small eateries, cost $50. In Belmont, the fee is $35, and in Winchester, $25.

Belmont is the only town that has a one-day license for auctioneers, at a cost of $25, the same price as a year-round license in Winchester. The year's license in Belmont is $50. Watertown charges $100 for that license, and Arlington $120.

The most expensive municipal fee in the survey was that of pool and building construction permits. Belmont and Winchester both charge $8 for every $1,000 in the cost of every building or pool, but Winchester also has a minimum rate of $25. Watertown charges $15 for the first $1,000, then $7.50 per $1,000 up to construction costs of $100,000. After that, the town charges $4.50 for each $1,000. In addition, the Watertown health inspector charges $25 for every pool. Arlington charges $12 for every $1,000 of new construction, with a minumum of $30.

Building fees, according to Belmont Building Inspector Paul Winters, cover the cost of four or five visits from the inspector and the staff at the towns' building departments. In the survey, most rates turned out to be equal.

"Departments provide us with information. We accept their recomendations," said Selectman Anne Paulsen, "as along as they are fair and equitable."

According to Wilson, the fees are higher when the town clerk's office has to file a lot of paperwork. "We have to make this office financially productive," she said.

Most town fees are not enough to make a town rich or break the back of the person applying for it, but they are a good source of income. The people who instituted them didn't need a fortunetelling license to work that out, obviously.

COMMENT

Winchester Kernels

A tribute to town treasurer

A visit to the Treasurer/Collector's Office at Town Hall usually ends with most a bit "out of pocket — but assured that the smiles and helpfulness are the genuine article — as Carol Thomas and her staff graciously administer their difficult jobs with real sensitivity. It is even possible to exit with a chuckle if you catch one of the classic "bon mots" tossed jovially between desks.

Theirs is the task to juggle the collection of real estate taxes, water and sewer bills, and motor excise taxes with the bonding, payroll, and other financial transactions of Winchester.

Newly added is the function of Parking Clerk. Just the nature of this work gives some a quasi-negative feeling about the office and its staff - but courtesy and helpfulness has been a hallmark of Carol Thomas and her staff for many years.

Lillian Kawa is our able Assistant Treasurer/Collector while Rita Bellino and Georgia Venuti provide the continuo that keeps business moving swiftly - despite the loss of one person in the office this year due to budget constraints.

Sure it's difficult - but Carol feels that once the new software system, voted by town meeting, begins coming on line in November the reduced staff should be adequate to present workloads.

As we chatted at Town Hall Friday, Carol said of her staff, "They do a great job and we couldn't function at the reduced level without them. They have a difficult job just enforcing penalties and collecting fines from the public."

As the clock neared the end of another day, Rita Bellino commented on the diversified and interesting cross section of Winchester people she deals with daily - and Georgia Venuti said, "I enjoy working with the people."

Carol, a lifelong resident of Winchester is a credit to Winchester High School which consistently turns out an incredibly high quality graduate very much in demand in the business world.

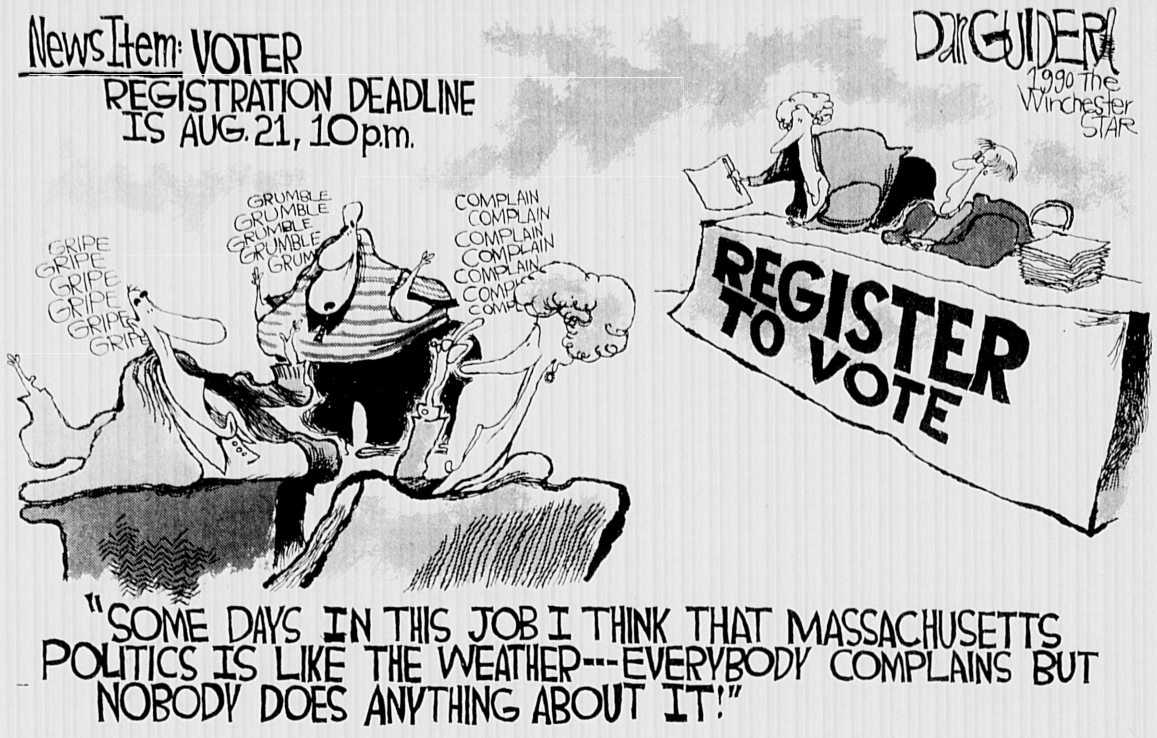

We reminisced warmly over our days at the old Wadleigh School and found solace that we "suffered" under some of the same teachers. Ruth Bennet was a pillar of the W.H.S. business courses and Helen Skornik led us gently, but firmly, to the big Royal Typewriters - their keys covered with blanks - thus forcing us to touch type from keyboard charts up front.

Carol was first ELECTED Treasurer back in 1971. Since the adoption of the 1975 Town Charter she has been appointed annually by the Town Manager with the approval of the Board of Selectmen.

She once said her tiny dog "Holly" was the meanest dog in this whole town - "and they say that dogs take after their owners."

If truth be told, few could approach our Treasurer/Collector in courtesy, dedication and friendliness - and her sense of humor is classic.

Next year Carol A. Thomas will mark her 20th anniversary as Treasurer/Collector for the Town of Winchester. It will be of quiet note as Carol is like that - but it will celebrate nonetheless a devoted service to the town - without blemish - executed with unassailable class. She is like that!

Desperate for distractions

We sit just now smack in the middle of the broad flat belly of summer, wide expanses of it stretching out on both sides, framed by Memorial Day on one side and that last toasty weekend in September on the other.

Everywhere you go, you see babies in nothing but diapers, curling and extending their fat bare toes heavenward, letting a thin line of baby-drool slide down over their naked fronts. Happy those babies look; cool too.

I live in Massachusetts, the feisty little state that grew a shoulder on the map and dares the Atlantic to a go at some arm-wrestling. In summer, folks around here shinny down that shoulder, past the elbow of the Cape and clear on up its cocked hand. Or, they migrate north toward Maine, or New Hampshire and Vermont, vacationlands all. Or south and west to Connecticut and Rhode Island.

The point is, things get mighty quiet around here in August. With all those nice vacation spots around, our neighborhood, for example, becomes a ghost town.

Now I work at home. Pity the poor folk who do this. They save on pantyhose, but they often have tics. Right now I have more tics than a spaniel on a camping trip.

To write a freelance column is a privilege; I know that. No editor tells you what to write or how to write it. They hand you the mike, as it were. Be funny, they say (or insightful or profound.) They grant you a square hole of blank newsprint and wander away. You sit there. You squeeze your eyes shut and pray, with a legal pad in your lap. Sometimes, to get a column out, you must do this for many minutes or hours or even days on end. Sooner or later, though, if you're in a good spot and you have your lucky pen, the column will come. It comes all at once, like a baby, sliding down and out the ends of your fingers.

The only trouble is, if it's summer in Vacationland, and the siblings are off at camp, there just might be one little boy left behind, with nothing to do, or so he says, and hours to fill.

That is the case in this house. A child who has been attended literally since his birth by a benevolent circle of sweet-smelling older sisters is suddenly flying solo. So while I am squeezing my eyes shut and praying for inspiration, thinking "Funny, OK funny" "Uh, poignant, shall we try poignant?" "Arch?" "Wry?", he is standing at my elbow saying, "Will you be done working by the time I count to 50? To 100? Mom? To 100, M-o-o-o-o-m?"

Last Monday I put in phone calls to every kindergartner we knew looking for a playmate, including one 100 miles away, just to see if his folks might be bringing him back for a few days, by any chance. I try to sound casual. I don't feel casual. I feel desperate, like a cross between a pimp and a child molester, someone inches away from trawling on the public streets in her car, dogging potential playmates for her son ("Kid, hey kid! Listen, wanna have fun? C'mere, kid!".)

It's degrading and I feel foolish. I know I am living wrong. This desperate manic stuff is what we Northerners do in winter. In summer we're meant to find a cool spot and drink plenty of liquids; stretch out and watch us some baseball.

I sit on my porch now, my little boy's breath hot on my arm. Stories come when they're ready, I tell myself. They always do. If they didn't, I wouldn't have 25 volumes of diaries full to bursting with them.

I look at the first again. Then at the second. I look down at the patient breathing boy. "Come on," I finally say. "Let's put on bathing suits and go drool down our tummies." It's the best idea I've had all day.

And I didn't even have to squeeze for it.

This week in history

1964: 26 years ago

Two Boston and Maine Buddliners traveling on the same track collided in a head-on accident near Wedgemere station. Twenty-six passengers and six train officials were injured and taken to nearby hospitals for recovery.

Winchester's public debt totalled $3,115,000. This figure was a $180,000 drop from the previous year's debt, the result of a steady decrease since 1960, when the building of Lynch Junior High School peaked the deficit.

Hundreds of square feet of underbrush and tree branches were cleared from Davidson Park, also known as "the jungle." The area stretched from Cross Street to the Winn watch hand factory, and from the Boston and Maine tracks to Washington Street. The piece of land was the site of late-night beer parties, according to residents.

Former governor John Volpe and former Red Sox ballplayer Ted Williams came together with Winchester and Woburn officials and Jimmy Fund representatives to kick off a Jimmy Fund drive. Youngsters were asked to arrive at Manchester field one afternoon to pick up collection cans and meet Williams and Volpe. Each boy and girl that participated had the chance to win a bike donated by Winchester businesses.

Three Winchester women were to spend nine weeks playing with the United States Lacrosse Team on a tour of the British Isles. Alison Hersey, an attack player and school teacher, was to be captain of the 12-member team.

Two burglaries were reported at the Winchester Boat Club that week. An intruder reportedly entered through the first floor of the club, broke into a metal cabinet and made off with $300 worth of cash and receipts. The burglar allegedly tried again later that week, but nothing was found to be missing.

The finals for the "Cutest Little Squirt" contest were to be held at Pleasure Island, a family fun park in Wakefield. Twenty-five youngsters ranging from three to eight years old had been chosen from thousands to compete in the final judging. The winner was to receive a Zenith color television set.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 17 — Report No. 31
Massachusetts House and Senate
August 10, 1990

The House and Senate — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on five roll calls and local representatives' votes on four roll calls from the final late sessions just prior to the summer recess.

Enact Budget (H 6161) — House 108-44, Senate 16-13, gave final approval and Governor Dukakis, after vetoing several sections, signed a pared down $13.4 billion fiscal 1991 state budget. This final version included four percent across the board cuts totalling $265 million in many accounts including an $85 million local aid reduction.

Supporters said the cuts will finally produce a balanced budget but noted it will hurt communities and people across the state. Most opponents said the budget is still out of balance and argued across the board cuts are irresponsible because they affect accounts which generate much needed revenue for the state. Some opponents said the $265 million cuts will hurt millions.

A Yea vote is for the budget. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Paul Casey voted yes.

Senator Salvatore Albano voted yes.

Continue Session — House 105-39, Senate 24-8, suspended rules to allow their sessions to go beyond 10 p.m. and 8 p.m. respectively. Supporters said the legislature should stay in session and approve a budget to solve the stat's fiscal crisis.

Opponents said late night sessions are irresponsible and argued members have no idea what is included in the budget and are blindly following the leadership.

A Yea vote is for continuing the session. A Nay vote is against continuing it.

Casey voted yes.

Albano voted yes.

Bond Package (S 1780) — House 111-40, approved the Senate version of a $1.4 billion bond issue to pay off the fiscal 1990 deficit. Supporters said this will allow the state to pay

President kept word, says Winn

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to let you know the President was good to his word. He signed the Disabled Rights Act Friday, July 27, one week late, but after all, the appointment of the Supreme Court Justice was of extreme importance. I guess the President has made everyone happy with the bill signing.

Former resident dodges droppings on return visit

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently I returned to Winchester, where I grew up, to attend my High School 20th reunion with my wife and four lovely daughters. On Saturday I took the family to the duck pond and was absolutely appalled at the filth which permeated my nostrils.

Now, believe me, a little odor is no big deal because we raise pigs up here in New Hampshire on our farm and it's safe to say we are used to a little stink now and then. However, it was not the duck pond of my youth.

In Vietnam I had plenty of practice watching my step in fear of Fuji sticks or mines but goose droppings every inch were tough to avoid. I think my old town has a Canada Goose problem and hopefully when I return in 1995 for my 25th reunion it will be solved.

Happy to give

The following is reprinted from the Aug. 9 edition of The Star due to the omission of a portion of the letter.

TO THE EDITOR:

In these days of increasing cost of living, sharply higher state taxes, rising town taxes and the certainty of increased federal taxes, it is difficult for any of us to be pleased about receiving a letter requesting a donation no matter how worthy the cause.

About two weeks ago, however, I received a general letter of solicitation which pleased me greatly. It pleased me for two reasons — first because I am enthusiastic about the cause involved.

The letter in essence was a request from the Winchester Trails for a donation to help defray the cost of rebuilding the boardwalk at Smith Pond — a modest request. Because of my interest and background in youngsters I reacted very favorably almost immediately.

The letter pleased me particularly, however, because it indicated an approach by the Winchester Trails organization to the financial problems of a town activity which has great possibilities — an increased use of individual personal donations to projects in town which need help and deserve help and in which we have an enthusiastic personal interest.

The approach is not new in town. It has been the backbone of our strong Winchester Hospital from the very beginning. It is an idea which was suggested again by Mike Saraco at a selectmen's meeting a year or more ago in regard to some costs involved in completing the Town Hall rehabilitation.

A donation can be in the form of a contribution of one's time or expertise — as in the case of the Friends of the Winchester Hospital and the great volunteer staff of the Jenks Senior Center and the Investment Committee of the Winchester Hospital.

For those of us who are not in a position or able to contribute our time a cash contribution to encourage those enthusiasts who are doing good work, as in the instance of the Winchester Trails, can go a long way toward helping support a town activity and toward making for a really cohesive town spirit.

I hope many of us will encourage this approach and I hope that after the summer is over the Winchester Trails' letter which was not sent out widely will once again be sent, this time more broadly throughout the town as a reminder of the idea.

Borggaard says Society won't listen

TO THE EDITOR:

About a month ago, in my last letter on the subject of the northern boundary line of the Symmes Grant, I asked the Winchester Historical Society to give me a chance to be heard in a public meeting. So far, I have heard nothing from them, so I take it for granted that they intend to ignore me.

This can mean only one thing — I know where the line is, and they do not, and they know it!

To ignore my findings is for them an admission on their part of indifference or of coincidence, one or the other, because it is a matter of historical interest to the town and it is they who are charged with preserving the history of the town — the true history, not a ficticious facsimile thereof.

I have been mocked and ridiculed for my efforts to set the record straight.

All I ask for now is a change to "put up or shut up."

"Facts are stubborn things" — I have the facts.

"One picture is worth 1000 words" — I have the picture!

They want documents — I shall use some of the very same documents that they rely upon, but with a different interpretation.

Clarence S. Borggaard

Clean up day was a success, say Village trustees

The following letter to the Winchester Conservation Commission, care of Administrator Elaine Vreeland, was received by The Star for publication.

Dear Elaine:

The Trustees and all of us who live at The Village in Winchester on Swanton Street want to thank you, Josh Alper, and Steve Lewis for your help in our River Cleanup Day on Saturday, July 28.

Without your rowboat, canoe, and enthusiastic hard work, we would never have been able to get at and retrieve the truck tires, bicycles, logs, and considerable quantities of cans, bottles, and plastic trash that have been clogging this section of the Aberjona River for several years.

We all feel fortunate to live in this area of great natural beauty, and we look forward to further cooperative efforts to preserve and protect the river. Thanks to the guidance and participation of the Conservation Commission, this cleanup day was a great success.

off fiscal 1990 debts. Opponents said the Senate version includes several special interest amendments proposed by the Senate leadership and argued the House should not be pressured into blindly approving these.

A Yea vote is for the Senate version. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

Bond Amendment (S 1780) — House 133-17, approved a bond issue amendment striking a Senate provision releasing funds for the control of algae and weeds in Tewksbury. Amendment supporters said this is a special interest provision slipped in by Senate Ways and Means chair Senator Patricia McGovern and does not belong in an important billion dollar package.

Opponents said the funding is important and should not be defeated ust because it is proposed by the Senate leadership.

A Yea vote is against the Senate provision. A Nay vote is for the Senate provision.

Casey voted yes.

Changes — Senate 20-9, rejected an amendment to a motion appointing a new conference committee to draft a new fiscal 1991 state budget. The motion allows the committee to reduce any item and make "other changes as such committee deems appropriate." The amendment would strike the language allowing other changes.

Amendment supporters said the language gives the committee excessive power to propose changes in anything, including the tax hike, and limits the legislature's power because members on the floor can only vote the changes up or down without amendments. Opponents said the committee must have flexibility to look at a broad range of issues and noted the full House and Senate have the final say.

A Yea vote prohibits the committee from making "other changes." A Nay vote allows the committee to make "other changes."

Albano did not vote.

Bond Payoff (S 1780) —Senate 18-12, rejected an amendment requiring the $1.4 billion bond issue to be paid off no later than Dec. 31, 1995 rather than Dec. 31, 1997. Amendment supporters said the earlier payoff date is fiscally responsible and will save flexibility but still allows earlier payoff.

A Yea vote is for the 1995 date. A Nay vote is for the 1997 date.

Albano voted no.

Federal Reimbursement (S 1780) — Senate 20-10, rejected an amendment requiring that certain federal reimursements received from state spending of $126 million for the medical assistance program authorized in the bond issue, be used exclusively to reduce the principle of the bonds.

Amendment supporters said this will insure these reimbursements are used to reduce the bonds and save interest rather than being used to balance the budget. Opponents offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for the amendment requiring the reimbursements be used to payoff the bond. A Nay vote is against the amendment.

Albano voted no.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

More to Winchester than just Waterfield

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

The Town Seal, the design of which was discussed last week, as well as other sources, places the name of Waterfield above that of Winchester as the first name of the area we now call Winchester.

This is not strictly accurate. "Waterfield" was used to designate a large section of the Charlestown land that now belongs to Winchester; however, it was not the only name applied to the land within our present boundaries.

"A tract of land acquired by the town of Charlestown," explained George Cooke in The Winchester Record of January 1886, "was designated by terms denoting some prominent natural feature, such as Waterfield, a section abounding in watercourses and ponds; Rockfield, in which rocks were the prominent feature; Mystic fields, those which lay along the Mystic River; Linefield, lying along the Cambridge line, etc." There were also "Commons," either common pastures or forest lands.

Most of the tracts of land assigned to men of Charlestown, as recorded in the 1638 Book of Possessions, were located in the Waterfield. To the north (part of Woburn) and west the lands were deemed "Common." The land to the east was called Rockfield. (A few smaller subsections were also called rockfields or commons.)

Using Cooke's map of the relative positions of the 1638 land divisions, one may see that the west Commons included the entire western end of Winchester, that west of Arlington Street, extending to the Woburn and Lexington lines, including Johnson Road, Lockeland Street, Ridge Street, and Hutchinson Road. Rockfield took in the area east of the Aberjona (following its old course), or roughly the land east of Main and Washington Streets. Land adjacent to the Mystic Pond was, in 1638, still part of Squaw Sachem's reservation and thus also not part of Waterfield.

"Waterfield" may forever be used as the first name of the area now Winchester. The village grew up primarily in that area, the first house, first mill, first church, first public buildings were built there, and the civic center of town is still there. And the water is still a prominent natural feature of the entire town. Indeed, "Waterville" was one of the most popular — and most appropriate — names suggested for the first town before "Winchester" was proposed.

Many Winchester residents, however, are now residing on land never a part of Waterfield, and the history of their properties may be traced back to Rockfield or the Commons, whose names, compounded with Waterfield, reflect the wider variety of natural features characterizing the territory we now inhabit.

would provide benefits to the town by providing continuity in development/renovation as well as triggering tourism and additional commercial business.

Selectman Robert Deering pointed out there may be property owners within the district who disagree with the designation and accompanying guidelines. "They are bound by those regulations," he said. "My concern is imposing regulations on people who may not want them imposed."

Selectmen also voiced concern with regard to potential legal problems stemming from such disagreements.

Selectman Judith Muggia said she favored implementing the study group. "It seems to me that the town through Town Meeting and through the preliminary reports ought to have the opportunity to consider this," she said.

"Historic districts can be an economic boon, but it's not everyone's cup of tea," said Selectman William O'Leary. "I would like a little more time to look at the information."

McKenna said the town would establish its own guidelines, and estimated the new commission would take six to eight months to complete its study. McKenna anticipates bringing the proposal to Town Meeting in about a year. A two-thirds vote of that body is needed to move forward with designation.

NERH wins re-accreditation

New England Rehabilitation Hospital (NERH) was awarded a three-year re-accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organization (JCAHO). This three-year accreditation is the maximum allowed by JCAHO.

This means NERH has met, and in some areas exceeded, JCAHO standards for care and safety. Surveyors from JCAHO visited the hospital and reviewed every area of operation.

The hospital has voluntarily sought and received JCAHO accreditations since 1970. The Joint Commission is a non-profit organization whose members and surveyors are made up of health care professionals from the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons, the American Dental Association, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association.

"Our hospital's commitment is to provide the highest quality care to our patients," said Anne FitzPatrick, NERH Vice President of Administration. "JCAHO was invited to accredit NERH and publicly affirm our continued commitment to quality specialty rehabilitation."

New England Rehabilitation Hospital is a 198-bed facility, and was the first hospital dedicated to acute care rehabilitation in Massachusetts. It opened its doors in September 1969.

Get organized for back-to-school

After a long, carefree summer, children can often be a bit wary of heading back to school in the fall. Passing through their heads are questions like "Who will be my new friends? Will I be ready for the next level in math? Will I have everything I need for school?" These are all valid questions which parents should not ignore. Being prepared for the new year is of great concern to many youngsters.

One way for parents to make this yearly transition a bit easier is by helping their kids become more organized. Current market research shows that students of the 1990s are looking to be stylish, fashionable and innovative, but organized and practical when it comes to going back to school. That's why SGI, Inc., a Rhode Island sports and leisure products company, created Wiz™, a unique personal locker, designed after interviews with hundreds of children ages 6-11. Wiz serves as both a school bag and an activities organizer for after school and weekend projects and events.

"We found that kids in this age group don't have their own lockers yet, but still need a secure place to keep their belongings," says Ed R. Miranda, SGI's director of marketing. "Based on our research, we decided that children really want an ultimate school organizer that will help them plan their whole school day," he continues. Wiz, now available in stores, is a functional, colorful personal locker pack featuring solid construction. The easily portable product has straps on the top and back so that kids have an option of how they carry it – they can either "put a locker on their back" or hold it as they would a conventional school bag. Its sizable main compartment is big enough for a student's lunch box, books and Trapper Keeper™. A zipper-close side panel and foldaway top shelf allow room for athletic shoes and lunch boxes. The side panel contains a clip holder and special pockets inside for cards, crayons, and pencils -- anything a child needs to locate quickly and easily.

Wiz is fashionable, available in four hot color combinations, such as black and cyan blue with neon accents, cyan and fuchsia with a lavender top and detail work, fuchsia and cobalt blue with neon, as well as cobalt and red with terrific black and yellow accents. Kids want 1990s colors, and they get them with Wiz. In addition, the product meets a parent's desire for practicality. A good-looking product that will last is something high on any parent's list.

So this year, the start of school might still be a bit scary, but at least kids will know they're organized and ready to go, carrying Wiz on their backs.

Learning should be forever

Going back to school is the most exciting time of the year in young people's lives. Instead of making new year's resolutions in January, each September they vow to get better grades, improve at sports, lose weight or make new friends. The start of the fall semester, like every advancement in life, affords the opportunity to rise a little bit in one's own esteem, to be a different person from the previous year and to change for the better.

Parents who believe that education never ends are the greatest help to their children. Many take night or weekend courses in subjects which have always interested them. Others consistently read the latest books and journals. Whether the method be formal or unstructured, the parent who looks upon learning as a lifelong pleasure is setting an example that will serve children better than any study technique.

Research shows that the best students have supportive parents who take an interest in education in general. Discipline may be necessary, but without genuine interest in education, parents reinforce the idea that school is nothing more than a special jail for the young rather than the beginning of a love affair with knowledge.

Saying "No"

By FREDERIC FLACH, M.D.

One of the most difficult things for parents to do is say no. When children are small, it seems easy enough to say no when they reach for a hot stove or lean precariously across an open window sill. But when they want the material pleasures other children seem to have -- toys, trips, television sets -- setting limits becomes more difficult indeed.

It may seem innocent enough, giving children whatever they want if one can afford it. Allowing them unlimited freedom to go where they want, stay out as late as they choose, keep whatever company they prefer, may on the surface pass for giving them independence. More often, however, it reflects the parents' fear of confrontation, their inability to communicate, and their assumption that denying their children will compromise the development of self-esteem.

SAC program benefits homebound seniors

By MARY KELLY
Special to The Star

The Senior After Care (SAC) Volunteers, a program sponsored by the Council on Aging, will hold their monthly training session at the Jenks Senior Center on Friday afternoon, Aug. 24, at 2 p.m. Under the guidance of COA nurse June Hall, the group will have, as its speaker at this monthly meeting, Peg Pressman, a family therapist, who will share some of her insights in her work with families and of the significance of reminiscences within families.

The SAC program offers a bridge of services and friendly volunteers to help seniors and their families following hospital discharge during convalescence, and in chronic illness situations for homebound seniors.

Monthly orientation and training sessions offer senior volunteers referrals for home visits and to share experiences with other volunteers. Anyone interested in joining this group of volunteer home visitors should call June Hall at the Center, 721-7136.

Volunteers needed to assist in mailing

On the last Thursday of each month, a group of dedicated senior volunteers meets at the Jenks Center to fold, address, and "get out" the Newsletter. It is a friendly and sociable group that gathers at 9 a.m., and new volunteers are always welcome to come and help out with the mailing.

Light refreshments are served. If this is something you feel you would like to do, please come and join the group on Thursday morning, Aug. 30.

Van available for mall trip Aug. 30

This is another reminder to seniors that the Mall Van is available for one shopping trip each month to the Burlington Mall, on the last Thursday of each month. The Van will leave the Jenks Senior Center at 9:30 a.m., with return trip pick up at the Mall at 12:30 p.m. Mall reservations must be made at the reception desk.

There is space for eight seniors and two wheelchairs but, if the demand is greater than the space, in order to be fair, reservations will be honored for those seniors who have not ridden previously. The Salter Health Care Group has generously made possible the use of the van for this trip.

The Mall Van has not been used by many different seniors. Therefore, seniors new to the service are encouraged to use the Mall Van in order to substantiate its use. Call in now and sign up with the desk receptionist for the trip, 721-7136. Transportation to and from home will be provided to take the Van.

Upcoming events

Thursday, Aug. 16 — Deadline for Newsletter material, 12 noon; Bridge, 12:30 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 17 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon.

Winona Moore and John Giuliani, two of the active Senior After Care Volunteers who do home visiting, celebrate the third anniversary of the SAC program at their monthly meeting.

Tuesday, Aug. 21 — WSA Executive Board meeting, 9:30 a.m.; informal Recorder group, 2 p.m.

Wednesday, Aug. 22 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; informal Art group, 9:30 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon; Games Day (cribbage, cards, scrabble, chess, pool), 1 to 4 p.m.

Thursday, Aug. 23 — Bridge, 12:30 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 24 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon; Bridge, 12:30 p.m.; Senior After Care (SAC) Volunteers meeting, with Peg Pressman, Family Threapist, 2 p.m.

Eating Together menu

Please remember to sign up the day before the meal, by 11 a.m., and let the desk volunteer know if you need transportation. The meal is served at 12 noon. Newcomers are always welcome.

Friday, Aug. 17 — oven crunchy fish, delmonico potato, spinach, dark rye bread, strawberry cake with frosting.

Monday, Aug. 20 — meatball burgundy, whipped potato, green beans, oatmeal bread, fresh fruit.

Wednesday, Aug. 22 — Italian pasta salad, seafood jardiniere, pesto, crusty roll, oatmeal raisin cookie.

Health and social services at Jenks

The Council on Aging and the Winchester Seniors Association sponsor a variety of health and social services for Winchester seniors. It is hoped that seniors in town will take advantage of the many and varied services set up for their benefit.

These services include (1) a Geriatric Social Worker who makes home visits and consultations; (2) a friendly visitor from the Elder Service Corps; (3) a Senior After Care Nurse for coordination of post-hospital home care; (4) Keep Well Clinic provides blood pressure and weight checkups twice a month, first and third Thursdays, 9:30 a.m.; (5) Health Benefits Counselors who advise and clarify concerning insurance problems, third Thursday, in conjunction with the Keep Well Clinic; (6) Living Beyond Loss, a monthly support group for the recently bereaved, meets first Monday of each month, at 2 p.m.

Upon receiving a gift from my daughter

By BILL GOULD

When I opened your package what did I see?
An exquisite coin purse. A present for me
Of fine crafted leather with elegant line
Refined by a culture mellowed by time.

When I opened the purse which I thought empty
The more I searched the more I did see.
For compressed in what I thought just empty space
I found love that gives life to our human race.

HEALTH

Teenage pregnancy classes held at hospital

Pregnant teenagers have special worries and concerns. Winchester Hospital offers classes directed to the needs of these expectant mothers and their support persons.

For the past two years, Winchester Hospital has provided 16 towns with a unique program — childbirth classes for teens. These classes prepare the teenager for the changes, both physical and emotional, that will accompany her pregnancy. In addition, the classes will detail the proper care required for the health of the mother and the newborn baby.

The fee is $45 for three regular childbirth sessions and one early pregnancy class.

For more information about the program and times of classes, please call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Hegarty chosen for ACHE award

Massachusetts Hospital Association (MHA) President Stephen Hegarty was named "1990 Executive of the Year" by the Massachusetts Chapter of the American College of Healthcare Executive (ACHE). This distinguished award was announced at the MHA annual meeting awards luncheon on June 14.

Speaking at the luncheon, Eugene Loubier, President of Winchester Hospital and Massachusetts Regent for ACHE, said that Hegarty was singled out for leading MHA "through some of its most difficult times with a high sense of integrity and commitment to excellence. He has not only distinguished himself in Massachusetts, but he is a recognized leader around the country."

Hospital offers CPR recertification

Did you know your American Heart Association CPR certificate is valid for only one year? Keep your CPR skills up to date.

Winchester Hospital will offer CPR recertification on Sept. 18 from 6 to 10 p.m. at The Regional Health Center in Wilmington. The course fee is $25.

For additional information and registration, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Eugene E. Loubier, President of Winchester Hospital, (standing) is shown with Stephen J. Hegarty, President of Massachusetts Hospital Association who is seated in a chair presented as part of the 1990 Executive of the Year Award from ACHE.

OBITUARIES

Marion Clarke

Marion Campbell Clarke of Winchester died of sudden heart failure at her home on Aug. 7. She was 80.

Born in Winthrop, Miss Clarke was educated in Winthrop schools. She lived in Winchester for more than 40 years, and was an active member of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church and the Morning Circle of that church. She was also a member of the Altheon Chapeter of the Eastern Star and the Winchester Senior's Association.

Miss Clarke leaves her sister, Ruth C. Graustuck of Winchester. She is also survived by a niece and a nephew.

A funeral service was held at the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home Aug. 10, followed by burial at Winthrop Cemetery in Winthrop. Rever- and Luther Durgin officiated.

Arrangements were handled by the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home in Winchester.

Joseph Venardi

Joseph N. Venardi of Florence Street died Aug. 11 at Winchester Hospital. He was 81.

Mr. Venardi was born in New York, the son of Francesco Venardi and Concetta (Gelo) Venardi.

He was a self-made man and craftsman, employed as a plasterer with the Aberjona Plastering Company for many years. He was a member of the Sons Of Italy in Winchester and the B.O.P. Elks for 55 years.

Mr. Venardi leaves his wife, Nellie (Intinarelli) Venardi; his daughter, Roberta V. McNamara of Winchester; and his son, Joseph F. Venardi of Nashville, Tenn. He is also survived by his granddaughters Jodi and Kristen McNamara of Winchester; grandson Joseph Michael Venardi of Nashville, Tenn.; and granddaughter Tina Lynn Venardi of Tempe, Ariz.

The funeral was held at Saint Mary's Church Aug. 14. Services were concluded at Wildwood Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Home of Winchester.

In lieu of flowers, donations in his memory should be made to the Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., Winchester, Mass. 01890.

Robert Blake

Robert Parkman Blake of Rapid City, S.D., a former resident of Winchester, died July 17 after a short illness.

A native of Boston and graduate of Harvard University, Mr. Blake became the second employee of Land-Wheelwright,Inc., which later became Polaroid Corp. There he assisted in the development of Polaroid sunglasses and the Polaroid-Land camera. Leaving there after 16 years, he was employed as chief engineer at Carter's Ink, and later consultant and development engineer with Anderson-Nichols & Co., Inc.

In 1940 he married Marian Thomas. Both were active participants in The Parish Players of the First Congregational Church and the May Musicale at the Unitarian Church. In 1967 he moved with his family to Boulder, Colo., and in 1989 to Rapid City, S.D.

He leaves his wife; and two daughters, Virginia McLatchy of Houston, Texas and Judith Whiting of Rapid City, S.D.

Henrietta H. Masson

Henrietta Hill (Worrell) Masson, formerly of Belmont, died on August 13, 1990, after a long illness, at the Cape Regency Nursing Home in Centerville. She was 91.

Born in Boston, she was a graduate of Girls' Latin School in Boston and Radcliffe College of Cambridge, Class of 1921. She lived in Belmont from 1929 to 1962 and then moved to Centerville, where she was a member of the South Congregational Church.

She was the wife of the late Robert L. Masson. She is survived by one son, Robert H. Masson of Greenwich, Conn.; two daughters, Helen M. Vorys of Columbus, Ohio and Jane M. Jackson of Shaker Heights, Ohio; 10 grandchildren; 10 great-grandchildren; three nieces and one nephew.

Funeral services will be Sunday, Aug. 19, at the South Congregational Church on Main Street in Centerville. Burial will be at the Beechwood Cemetery in Centerville. Arrangements are being made by Doane Beal and Ames Funeral Home of Hyannis.

Memorial contributions may be made to the South Congregational Church, Main Street, Centerville, MA 02632, or to the organization of one's choice.

Man barricades self in home ments about suicide and homicide," and had said he would "execute" anyone who attempted to take him out of the house.

After Rowe had barricaded himself into the attic, police officials evaluated the situation and called in the Special Operations Unit of the Northeast Municipal Law Enforcement Council (NEMLEC) Tactical Police Force (TPF).

TPF member Francis Manzie, a lieutenant on the Winchester force, arrived at the scene while TPF Lt. Robert Silva of Reading went to the Winchester station. Detective Lieutentant James Pierce, Inspector Paul Deluca and Sargent Fred Cammon also arrived at the High Street scene, reports said.

When hours of negotiating with the man failed to bring him down, police discharged two tanks of tear gas into the attic from vents in the roof. After a struggle, Rowe was restrained and brought out of the house at 4:45 p.m. and transported to the hospital.

At 4:50 p.m. Mrs. Rowe was informed by police that her husband had been removed from the premises.

Although it has not yet been determined if Rowe had a gun during the incident, Perritano described Rowe as a heavy-set man and said in Rowe's distraught state of mind, "anything could have become a weapon."

As the first officer up the staircase, Lt. Manzie briefly struggled with Rowe, who ripped off the officer's gas mask and helmet, reports said. Manzie will undergo evaluation for head and neck injuries at Winchester Hospital.

Perritano noted that the NEMLEC task force operates across a stretch of Middlesex County from Winchester to Lowell. The council works as a mutual aid pact within the communities and cities and towns are able to use officers from other communities for undercover work.

More than six NEMLEC special operations officers arrived at the High Street scene. Perritano noted that these officers are specifically trained to handle potentially dangerous situations and hostage crises.

Mulvaney discusses hearing problems at Jenks

By LEONOR M. RICH
Special to the Star

DR. Thomas J. Mulvaney, a popular otolaryngologist, is a former president of the medical and dental staff at the Winchester Hospital and currently is a clinical instructor at Harvard Medical School. He is director of the Emergency Division of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat patients at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Hospital in Boston.

He conducted an informational and highly interesting session for seniors in the Pond Room at the Jenks Senior Center on Aug. 8. Dr. William Barone of the Winchester Seniors Association Health Committee introduced the guest speaker to a full audience who gave rapt attention throughout the discourse.

Dr. Mulvaney described causes of hearing loss, using visual aids pertaining to the inner working of this very important organ which provides amplification of sounds. He explained the various causes of hearing impairment with emphasis on the constant whipping motion of delicate membranes in the ear as a result of sustained punishment through the years.

Wax in the ears is a necessary lubricant, but Dr. Mulvaney cautioned against pushing it further into the ear canal with the use of Q-tips or by inserting fingers into the ear, thus causing an obstruction which results in hearing impairment.

Infections in the ear canal can develop from water which provides a place where germs can thrive--even developing a type of mold. Some of the causes of sensorineural hearing loss are as follows: 1) The aging process--presbycusis; 2) Hereditary factors; 3) Trauma caused by noise, temporal bone fracture, or a perilymph fistula condition; 4) Ototoxic drugs; 5) Infection, bacterial viral syphilitic labyrinthitis; 6) Acoustic neuroma; 7) Miniere's Disease which attacks the ear canals that enable the body's nervous system to regulate a sense of balance. This condition causes dizziness, nausea, and ringing in the ears. Often, one affected with this ailment feels disoriented. If nothing is done to treat it, hearing decreases with repeated attacks. Miniere's Disease is similar to glaucoma or high blood pressure caused by increases in pressure when too much fluid builds up.

The ears should be protected from exposure to loud noises such as that created by heavy power tools, sanding machines, chain saws, rifle fire, explosions, etc., to prevent damage to the ear drums. Wearing ear muffs helps to block out the intensity of the sound.

For those who have some hearing impairment, family and friends can help by: 1) Facing the person when addressing him or her; 2) Saying a person's name to alert the listener, especially in a group situation; 3) Eliminating distracting sounds to provide better conditions for hearing; 4) Obtaining help from a special telephone amplifier. Hearing aids are valuable but must be tailored to fit the individual's needs.

What's new for the future?

An implant in the ear for severe hearing loss will be accomplished by inserting an electrode to carry sounds to the hearing nerves.

With 30 million American people needing hearing aids, health insurance companies cannot cover the cost of these expensive instruments. A hearing aid will last several years with proper care and periodic check-ups by the company from whom it is purchased.

If you have questions about the condition of your ears, confer with an audiologist to discover the problem.

A lot of hospitals promise quality care.

We offer living proof.

It's the smile on the face of a young girl. The look of confidence in a mother's eyes. It's a visible sense of well-being. The look of renewed health. It's living proof. And at New England Memorial, we believe it's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer—the stories of people like yourself who have made the right choice for so many reasons.

It's the quality of our staff. In every department of our modern facility, it's the superior nursing and physician care we provide. It's the quality of caring that touches our patients' lives in such significant ways. It's the genuine compassion that's an integral part of our approach to psychiatric care. It's the warmth and hope that enhance our fertility center. It's the hand and heart working together making our staff the right choice for so many families.

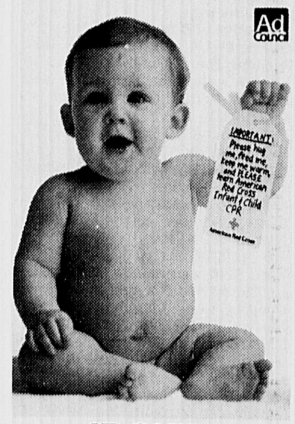

We're right where you need us most—close to home in a convenient, suburban location that eliminates the problems of parking and traffic jams.

Add to this our commitment to providing state-of-the-art medical equipment, and you start to see the whole picture. It's the picture of a mother's joy. A family's reunion. It's the picture of health. And at New England Memorial, we think that's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer. For more information regarding our services or for a listing of our physicians, please call (617) 979-7117.

Lombardi's racks up win to tie series at 1-1

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

All's fair in love and war, and in the case of Lombardi's and Swiss Stone, all is even.

After being trounced 20-10 by Swiss Stone earlier in the week, Lombardi's came back to tie up the A division men's softball finals with a 9-2 win Tuesday night.

Despite the absence of strong man Paul White, who is out of action due to an injury, Lombardi's was able to pull together fine defense and strong offense to walk away with a win in game two. The two teams were due to face each other last night (Wednesday) at Ginn Field, and will continue play tonight in the best-of-five-games series.

"The other night we hit, tonight we didn't," said Swiss Stone's Mark Lawson. "It should be a five-game series. We've got two good teams playing.

"They're a good bunch of guys," Lawson said of Lombardi's team. "In the finals, it's whoever gets hot. It's a fun series."

Despite two quick outs in the first in the form of fly balls by Mike White and Scott Binding, Lombardi's began tallying up runs in its first at-bat. Brian Carroll slammed a drive onto the Ginn Field wall for an automatic double. A single by Ken Jacobson drove home Carroll before a Gary Errico flew out to right field.

Swiss Stone made an attempt to come back as well in the first. Sal Sganga and Mark Lawson both came up with singles, but Swiss Stone was unable to put any runs on the boards until the second inning. Artie Sugrue flew out, followed by Holding's single. A shot by Bob Burns to left field put players on first and second.

A diving catch by outfielder Carroll brought the outs to two. But then Dave Lawson came up with a single and an RBI, plating Holding and bringing the score to 1-1. Gary Brayboy flew out to left field, closing out the inning.

Carroll's bat again made sparks fly as he racked up a homerun and two additional RBIs in the third. Mike Saraco and Mike White had both reached base on singles before Carroll drove the ball into the trees in right field, putting Lombardi's ahead 4-1.

Lombardi's again came out strong in the fourth. Ken Jacobson singled on a hit up the third base line. Gary Errico then flew out to left center, but Paul Mathson quickly followed up with a strong drive to left, putting men on first and second. Sam Bellino walked to load the bases. Ron Divincenzo hit a sacrifice fly to left, coming up with an RBI when he plated Jacobson before Tom Cavaretta went down on a fielder's choice. The score: 5-1 Lombardi's.

Lombardi's knocked down Swiss Stone 1-2-3 in the fourth, and again staged a rally in the fifth. Saraco walked, followed by a shot by Mike White that would have given him an RBI, but Saraco missed third base and the run was not counted. Binding hit a shot to the outfield, but the throw to home was not in time, and Lombardi's went ahead 6-1, with a man on base.

Lombardi's again loaded up the bases when both Jeff Stackpole and Jacobson walked, but a drive by Errico to the second baseman forced the out and ended the inning.

Holding and Burns led off with singles, but three relays in a row from shortstop Binding to second baseman Saraco quickly closed down Swiss Stone.

Lombardi's racked up three more runs in the sixth to add a little more security to victory. Mathson led off with a single to left field. Bellino singled, followed by Divincenzo's fly out that pushed men to second and third. A drive by Cavaretta scored Errico, but put a second out on the boards on an assist from second baseman Dave Lawson to first baseman Wayne Lawson.

A shot by Saraco scored Bellino, followed by a Mike White double to score Saraco before the inning ended.

Swiss Stone racked up one run in the sixth, bringing the score to 9-2, but was unable to get a rally going or make their bats click in the seventh.

VFW takes round two of men's softball finals

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Despite strong defense by Ken's Sub Shop, failure to connect at the plate coupled with a questionable call resulted in a 4-3 loss to VFW.

VFW's win put them ahead two games to none in tournament play in men's B division softball. The two teams were scheduled to meet again last night in the best-of-five-game series. A win by Ken's would continue the series tonight at Ginn Field.

"We need to hit. I thought both teams played really well, but we didn't hit," said Ken Johnson Sr.

"We held them to four runs. When the play is that good in the field, you should win," he added. "The team that gets the lucky breaks and does the hitting is going to win."

VFW tried to start a rally early on in the first, as both Mike Carney and Tom Burgess racked up singles. However, bats weren't clicking, and VFW left two men on base. Ken's went down with the first three batters in their first at-bat.

Ken's defense held VFW scoreless in the second. Ken's made stab at a second-inning rally when Chris Morris came up with a ground rule double, but follow-up batters were only able to push Morris to third, and unable to plate him before winding up the inning.

Lindgrens are tops in figure skating

Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Lindgren of Fairview Terrace Lane recently returned from Indianapolis, Ind. where they were the guests of the United States Figure Skating Association (USFA) at its council meeting.

Mr. Lindgren was honored by the USFA for 50 years of judging figure skating. Mrs. Lindgren was also recognized for 32 years of judging. The Lindgrens have been recognized as two of the top four judges in the United States in the last five years based on having judged the most competitions.

The Lindgrens met each other on the ice in the Chicago, Illinois Figure Skating Club 50 years ago and were skating partners in the midwestern and national competitions.

Newpro engages in diamond wars

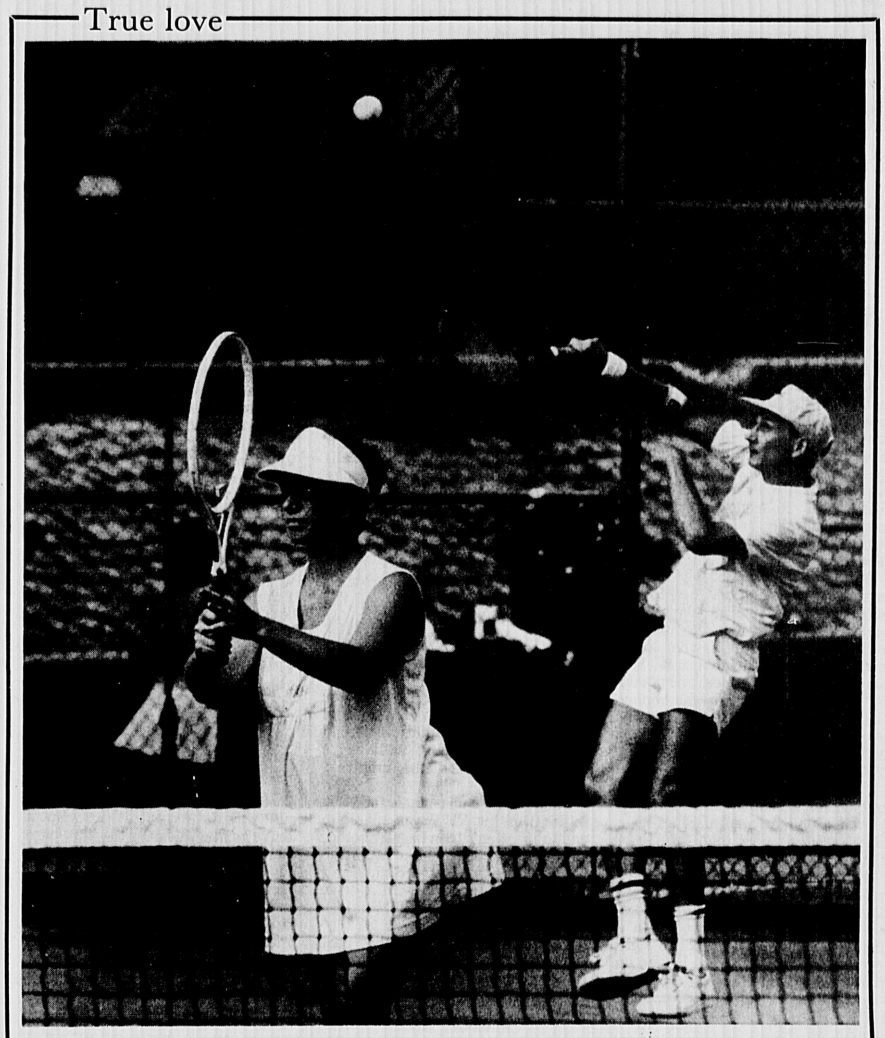

After Saturday's rainouts, the Newpro All Stars took to the field Sunday in Sudbury to face Melrose. The game really turned out to be a pitchers' duel between Winchester's Andy Sullivan and Melrose's Kenty and Reidy.

Melrose scored in the top of the first inning on a walk, a wild pitch, and a double by Kenty to lead 1-0. Winchester came right back in the bottom of the first. Paul McGowan tripled to lead off the game, Rich Guilderson walked and stole second, Andy Sullivan grounded to second scoring McGowan and tying the game. After two more batters had reached, Bill Shields reached on a fielder's choice which brought home the second run.

After one inning the score was Winchester 2 Melrose 1. That was to turn out to be the final score as Sullivan scattered four hits and walked three. Sullivan also struck out eight Melrose hitters. On the other side Winchester was held to just two hits. However, Melrose pitchers combined to walk eight and strike out seven. Winchester threatened every inning but could not bring the insurance runs across. Winchester stranded 9 men for the game.

All in all, a good win for the home team. Winchester did not play particularly well, but well enough to win. Sullivan had an excellent outing on the mound.

This was the 18th annual E. Whitney Gray husband and wife tennis tournament held in Winchester, but it was the same story for Kathy and Neil Hurley who won their 10th championship this past week-end. The Hurleys have been so consistent, that their record setting streak now spans three decades. Their first title came in 1979.

They won all eight times they played in the eighties and started this decade off with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Katherine and Tom Dunn in the finals.

For the Dunns this was their second straight loss to the Hurleys in the finals. The Dunns won the championship in 1988.

In this year's championship match the Hurleys jumped out to a 4-0 in the first set. The Dunns came back to make it 4-3, but Kathy and Neil won the next two games to close out the set.

The second set found the Dunns jumping out to a 2-Love lead. However, the Hurleys won the next six straight games to win the match and title.

In the semi-finals Kathy and Neil defeated Judi and Gordon Nicholson 6-0, 6-2 while Katherine and Tom took out Amy and Harley Gates 6-1, 6-2.

In the consolation finals Chris and Bill Wolfe defeated Louise and Bob Trakimas 6-4, 6-1.

The officers of the Winchester Tennis Association wish to thank Don Ellis and Vincent Palumbo for their exceptional efforts starting at 6 a.m. Sunday morning in getting the Packer courts back in shape to play after Saturdays heavy rains.

With help from Joe Palumbo, Rich Rowe, Jim McGeehan and sons the courts were swept, cleaned and ready for action by 11 a.m.

Saturday's play was moved to the Winchester Indoor Lawn and Tennis Center which helped the teams that prefer playing on a faster surface.

The tournament chair couple Helen and Rick Campobasso wish to thank Cindy and Scott Randall, Janice and Frank Frisoli, Linda and Alex Popp, Betsy and Phil Coonley, Joe Palumbo, Gordon Nicholson and Mary Dewhurst for their efforts in making the tournament and party successful.

Newpro bats come to life

The Winchester Newpro All Stars continued play this week in the Bay State league. The team is now situation in the top group in the top division by virtue of its previous round gold medal. This means that the team is playing the very best teams in the league.

Newpro's first opponent this round was Arlington. On Tuesday night the team traveled to Arlington and found out what life in the top grouping is all about when it walked away after a 13-0 loss. Arlington pounded out 15 hits and two home runs. The Arlington pitcher, Bannister, pitched a three-hitter en route to the shutout.

The home team was not ready to quit quite yet. On Thursday night Arlington visited West Side field where Winchester had amassed a great home record in this league over the past two years. The game was far different and had a far different outcome. Arlington came out of the box fast again.

After a fly out and double, the next Arlington hitter hit a screaming line drive back through the middle that caught starting pitcher Andy Sullivan on his pitching arm. He had to be replaced by Eric Grant. A delayed steal by Arlington brought a run and Grant then retired the next two batters.

Paul McGowan led the Winchester half of the inning with a triple deep to right field and scored when Rich Guilderson singled sharply to left. Grant took control of the game from this point on.

He masterfully mixed pitches and deliveries for the remainder of the game and shut out the hard-hitting Arlington squad the rest of the way. Grant struck out six over the final five innings while walking only three. He didn't yield a hit until the final inning. A great outing for Eric Grant.

On the Winchester side of the ball, the bats came to life. With the score tied in the bottom of the second, Mike McGrenery led with a ground rule double, Mike Pacheco singled, and Paul McGowan singled in the run for a 2-1 lead. In the third, Winchester added to the lead when Eric Grant singled, Mike McGreenery singled and Bill Shields doubled for a 3-1 lead.

In the fourth, Winchester added another single run when Steven Cucinatti walked, McGowan singled, and Brian Caruso singled home the run. Winchester added two more in the fifth when McGreenery singled, Sullivan walked, Cucianatti walked and McGowan singled. Final score Winchester 6, Arlington 1.

10-year-olds look for tournament seed

The Carroll Insurance 10-year-old All Stars began play in the second round of the Bay State League, Aug. 6 at home against Wilmington. The nine days off since their last game was evident as Winchester was unable to shake off the rust for this one. Winchester lost 11-4.

The bright spots came early. Brad Murphy set the side down in order for the first two innings and Winchester scored three in the second to take the lead. The key hit in the rally was an RBI single by Joe "Clubber" Lang. However, Winchester was unable to hold the lead.

The offensive leaders for Winchester were Joe Lang and Jeff Davis, with two hits each. The defensive star was Chris DeSimone with several fine plays at shortstop. Winchester had two stolen bases. One each by Dan White and Mark Sullivan.

Winchester traveled to Wilmington Aug. 10 for the return match. Winchester was fired up for this one and showed it in all aspects of the game; excellent pitching, timely hitting, and solid defense.

Mark Sullivan pitched three hitless innings with seven strikeouts. Kevin Shanahan pitched two fine innings in relief and Chris DeSimone closed out the game for Winchester.

Mike Notar thwarted a potential Wilmington rally with a fine catch to end the fourth inning.

Winchester came to bat in the top of the fifth trailing 2-1. Chris DeSimone started things off with a single, he was followed by Jeff Davis with another single. With one out Mark Sullivan walked to load the bases. Ryan "Pudge" Buchanan worked a walk to force in the tying run. After two were out Brian D'Entremont hit a clutch single sending in two runs and Winchester had the lead 4-2.

In the sixth inning with two outs and two on Mark Sullivan hit a long double to centerfield to score one. He was followed by Ryan Buchanan who hit a sharp single to score two more. Buchanan scored after two successive scores and Winchester lead 8-2.

Winchester cut short a last inning rally by Wilmington, leaving the tying runs on base, to win 8-6.

On Sunday, Aug. 12 North Cambridge came to Winchester. Brian Russo and Jeff Davis teamed up to shut them out with no hits. They each pitched three innings.

Everyone contributed on the offensive end as Winchester had no problems this day and won 19-0. The offensive leaders were Mike Roscillo, who went 3 for 3. And Mark Sullivan, who was 5 for 5 with 5 RBIs. Mark Shannon led the defense, catching three pop flies, with a total of seven put-outs.

Winchester is hoping to earn a seed to the second round medal tournament on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18 and 19.

Newpro sluggers keep swinging

The game featured great pitching by Eric Grant and big offensive nights from Paul McGowan 4-4, and Mike McGreenery 3-3. Next stop Melrose at Sudbury.

Next home game is Thursday, Aug. 16 versus Reading at West Side field. Come out and see your team.

Please remember Bambino registration for 1991 is on Sept. 18 and 20 at McCall cafeteria from 6:30-0:00 and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon. Tryouts for the 1991 Bambino season will be held at West Side field on Saturday and Sunday Oct. 13 and 14.

VFW tops Ken's

Bats started sparking in the bottom of the third for VFW. After a toss from Morris, Ken's shortstop, to first baseman Jim Cassidy on a drive by Rick Neveu put one out on the boards, VFW's Mark Bingle drove the ball up the middle for a single. Fred Rodriguez quickly followed with a fly ball that dropped into center to put men on first and second.

But the VFW team got a real break on a shot by Scott Bell to the outfield. Dave Johnson relayed the ball to McIntosh, but the umpire called the player safe in what some said was a questionable call. The play loaded up the bases, and set up VFW for a rally. Ken's was hoping that would be the last break VFW would get. But a sacrifice fly by Mike Carney plated Bingle, putting VFW on the boards, 1-0.

Burgess drove the ball up the middle for a double, scoring Rodriguez and Bell, before Jim Mackenzie flew out closing out the first half of the inning. VFW led 3-0.

In the bottom of the third, Ken's rallied back for one run. Starting out the inning, Dave Johnson walked, and Jim Galipeau followed with a drive to right field. A shot to right center by Eric Ranstrom loaded up the bases. Ken Johnson followed with a smash to the infield, driving home Dave Johnson to put Ken's on the boards (3-1) before Jim Cassidy flew out to end the inning.

Ken's held VFW in the fourth when Dave Bernardini flew out to Galipeau in left field. Dave Tamulynas racked up a single with a drive to left field, followed by a shot to the shortstop by Albie Cail. Cail was caught at first, but the throw to second was not in time. Then, Ken's second baseman Jon Pooler grabbed a liner by Jim Saunders to put the brakes on VFW.

Rich Queen led off for Ken's with a single to second, but he was thrown out at second on a grounder by Ben Budds. A fly by Morris to center field with a relay to VFW's Dave Bernardini caught Budds at second and ended the inning with Ken's players questioning the umpire's call.

Bingle racked up a single for VFW in the fifth, but VFW was unable to capitalize. Ken's then began another rally when a shot by Mike McIntosh was dropped by Bernardini. Ken's Jim Doherty followed with a drive that forced him out but put McIntosh on second.

Pooler singled with a shot past pitcher Bingle, and a sacrifice fly by Dave Johnson plated MacIntosh, bringing the score to 3-2. VFW's Mackenzie snagged a line drive to close out the inning.

Strong pitching in the sixth by Ken's pitcher Ken Johnson kept VFW on edge.

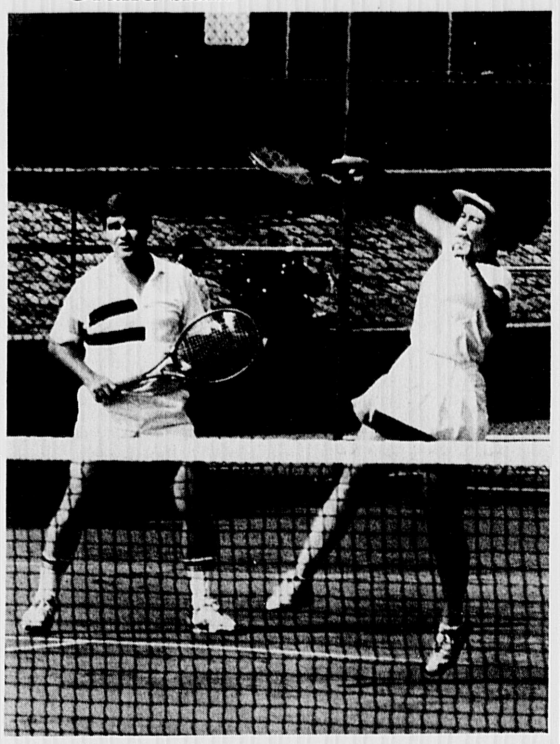

Both teams fought to the end, and seventh inning play provided added excitement. Insurance run in top of seventh.

An overthrow to first on a hit by VFW's Bernadini put him on second. Tamulynas was thrown out at first, but pushed Bernadini forward a base. Cail then came through with a single to score Bernadini, putting VFW ahead 4-2. Saunder's single put men on first and second, but a double play got Ken's out of the inning.

Ken's made a late game rally, but was unable to come up with enough runs in the bottom of the seventh to walk away with a win.

Morris bounced to the shortstop and was thrown out at first. But a drive by MacIntosh up the third base line put him on first. Doherty followed with a hard shot to center field that was dropped, and MacIntosh rounded the bases all the way home. A drive by Pooler up the middle put men on first and second, but Ken's was unable to put any more runs on the board.

Special to the Star

1. Who was the last team to defeat the Hurleys'? (Answer on bottom).

2. It was a pleasure to have Mrs. Florence Gray attend the tournament party and watch the finals.

3. Was that really Bill Wolfe dressed all in white for the consolation finals? (It was his frist time in white since his baptism).

4. The "B-52's" rock group would have been proud to have seen Joe Culhane's dance version of "Rock Lobster." Joe with assistance from Neil Hurley turned the Jenks Center into a Kenmore Square nightclub.

5. Did one couple late for a match submerge their car in three feet of water on Highland View Avenue and then try baling it out with a styrofoam cup? (Yes.)

6. Many thanks to Don Ellis and Vin Palumbo for turning the Packer Courts into the best shape ever.

7. Lou Desmarteaux's career as a tennis umpire got a big boost with the fine job he did in the consolation finals. Not many can look that "laid-back" and still know what is going on.

8. Happy 40th birthday to tennis player and girls' soccer coach Chris Scanlon — good luck this season.

9. Hats off to Helen and Rick Campobasso for a super job in running the tournament. (Are you still speaking to each other?)

10. Congratulations to Kathy and Neil Hurley. Ten championships is really something.

Markey has reception for military grads

U.S. Representative Edward J. Markey held a reception for this year's Seventh District Military Academy graduates, as well as for the 1990 appointees, at the Jenks Center in Winchester on June 22.

"You have endured a tough selection process — first by me and then by the U.S. military academies. You were rated on your academic, athletic and leadership abilities and you were found to be the best candidates in the Seventh Congressional District. I congratulate each of you on your hard work and on your commitment to use your intelligence and talent to serve the United States," said Markey.

Three Annapolis graduates were honored: 2nd Lieutenant Timothy Grattan from Winthrop, Ensign James Maher of Wakefield, and Ensign Patrick Walker from Billerica.

Among those recognized was Lieutenant Matthew Kennedy of Winchester, a graduate of West Point.

Entering West Point in July from Winchester is John Szczepanski, son of John and Christina Szczepanski.

Students entering their senior year of high school in September, 1990 are invited to apply for admission to West Point, the Air Force Academy, the Naval Academy, and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy by calling or writing to the Boston office of Congressman Edward Markey to request a Congressional nomination to these schools.

LIBRARY LINES

Consumer information available at library

The Winchester Public Library's Reference Room includes a section devoted to consumer information. This section includes many sources that can help patrons who are shopping for a new car. Here are a few of the most useful:

The April Consumer Reports each year is the Annual Car Issue. Their staff evaluates the new models, and recommends the best buys in used cars. A set of tables demonstrates the service records of individual car models through the years.

The Automobile Red Book is issued eight times a year by MacLean Hunter Market Reports, Inc. and gives the average wholesale and retail prices for eacy year, model, and option package. Both domestic and imported cars are covered. Prices are corrected for very high or very low mileage.

The Car Book by Jack Gillis was first issued by the U.S. Department of Transportation in 1981. Now published by Harper & Row, it is an exhaustive compilation of government data on safety, economy, maintenance, and other consumer issues. The 1990 edition is available in the Reference Department.

The Environmental Protection Agency's 1990 Gas Mileage Guide lists the mileage ratings for cars, vans, and small trucks. Edmund's New Car Prices comes out nine times a year and gives the base costs and suggested retail prices for domestic automobiles.

Homebound help

Do you know someone who is elderly or disabled and is unable to come to the library? The Winchester Public Library offers library service to the homebound. Library volunteers will deliver books to patrons at home. Patrons may request particular books, or have them selected by the library staff. For information about this service, please call the Community Services Librarian at 721-7171.

For information on anything mentioned in this column, please call the Winchester Public Library at 721-7171.

Real Estate and You

If It's Not a Dream Offer

Your adrenaline is flowing! Your agent has just called to say that an offer has been registered on your home, and you can't wait to see it! When the time for the contract presentation arrives, you, your agent and the cooperating broker are sitting around your dining room table, and the bubble bursts. It's not enough money. They want to postpone settlement for three months, and they've asked for your brand new washing machine, the grand piano and your first born son. Oh no, you think, this just can't work!

Maybe it can. Before you reject any offer on your property, consider making a counter offer. Rarely does an offer look the way it would if you had written it yourself. Consider the good and bad points, and work with the agents to find some middle ground that you and buyers can live with. You may have to go back and forth several times, and there will probably be compromises on both sides. Unless you're lucky enough to be selling in a strong sellers' market, buyers will expect to do at least some bargaining. With a little patience, you and your agent can help to create a win-win situation for both sides.

What's the right Nursing Home for you?

Family Health & Safety associates suggest you ask some questions...

" Are the home and the administrator licensed by the state?"

Avoid those nursing homes that aren't properly licensed. Ask to see the state inspector's latest report.
The state board of health's Area Office on Aging can provide lists of licensed nursing homes. The Better Business Bureau also can supply information about the facility's financial stability.

All About... Belmont Manor Nursing Home

The Belmont Manor Nursing Home, located at 34 Agassiz Avenue in Belmont, phone 489-1200, welcomes you to their warm, home-like atmosphere where your loved ones can feel individual comfort and security in the company of their peers. No discriminatory policies exist here, and private and semi-private rooms are available for men and women in the peaceful and relaxing environment.

The Belmont Manor Nursing Home is licensed by the state of Massachusetts, and only kindness and consideration prevail here. Complete medical services are available, and their accommodating, friendly staff provide nothing but the best in professional care and supervision to all of their residents.

Their trained personnel prepare wonderfully home-cooked meals, and special diets, if needed, are monitored for each resident.

Belmont Manor Nursing Home is also proud to announce plans for the opening of their new 21-Bed Alzheimer Unit scheduled to open mid summer 1990. This new renovated unit is an example of the many ways Belmont Manor Nursing Home is constantly responding to the changing need of our ageing population!

It is comforting to know that those you care about can enjoy the fulfilling luxury of leisure they deserve with companions of the same age. The Belmont Manor Nursing Home is truly a home away from home, and your personal inspection is invited at any time.

COMING EVENTS

NOW hosts evening with Clapprood

The Acton area and Lexington chapters of the National Organization of Women (N.O.W.) are hosting a fundraiser to support Marjorie O'Neill Clapprood, Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor on Wednesday, Aug. 15 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The open house will be held at Walden 1120 AM Radio Station in Damonmill Square, Route 62, West Concord.

An interview with Representative Marjorie Clapprood will be conducted during the event. According to a station spokesperson, this will be the first in a series of interviews and events at Walden 1120 featuring candidates for statewide and local office.

Representative Clapprood received the statewide endorsement of Massachusetts N.O.W. in her race for Lt. Governor early this year.

For more information, please contact Kate Williams at 369-7384.

Bless the Children fundraiser set

Bless the Children of Haiti, Inc., sponsors the first anniversary buffet fundraiser, hosted by Charles Austin of WBZ-TV Channel 4 on Saturday, Sept. 22 at 10 a.m.

The fundraiser will be held at the Stouffer Bedford Glen Hotel. Prepaid reservations are needed by Sept. 9. For information or reservations, call 729-2818.

Arts program set for Girl Scouts

Aug. 29 is the perfect day to let loose and "Express Yourself" in drama, dance, music and art.

Whether a novice or experienced in the arts, the Patriots' Trail Girl Scouts invites girls ages 10 to 13 to participate in special workshops designed to explore different paths of creative expression. The program will be held Wednesday, Aug. 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Cambridge School in Weston.

The cost is $20 for Girl Scout members and $22 for non-members. Lunch will be provided. The registration deadline is Wednesday, Aug. 22.

For information, call the Waltham Field Office of the Patriots' Girl Scout Council at 893-6113.

IC plans theatre trip on Aug. 22

The Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality has scheduled a day trip to New Hampshire.

On Wednesday, Aug. 22 the school bus will leave the Parish Parking Lot at 10 a.m. heading for Hampton stopping at Luka's Greenhouse for lunch. Your choice of one entree: broiled sirloin strip steak, baked Boston schrod or crabmeat stuffed chicken breast served with salad, rice or potato, rolls, butter, coffee or tea and dessert.

Then we will enjoy a scenic drive along the coast returning to the Playhouse for the 2 p.m. performance of the Academy Award, High Comedy play "Driving Miss Daisy." Cost is $28 per person.

Reservations are now being accepted so contact Anne Gallello at 729-0003 as seats are limited to 40 passengers, don't be disappointed; place your call, as soon as possible.

Business Spotlight

Full Service Painting Company

Reliability, efficiency, neatness and quality are the bywords of Steve Casper and his crew at Galaxy Painters. Highly skilled at both interior and exterior painting and staining work, the company also offers expert wallpapering services and keeps an experienced carpenter on staff full time to promptly handle any repair work which might be required. Galaxy, which is exceptionally diligent about ensuring the proper preparation for exterior work, uses pressure wash equipment to remove all dirt, grime and mildew and carefully hand scrapes and sands all surfaces before priming and painting. Our Harte-Hanks Community Newspaper classified staff will help you place your ad and offer suggestions for making the ad even more effective.

This new service is part of our commitment to work more effectively for you.

Please bear with us should you experience any delays or inconveniences while trying to get through during our first week. We want to serve you and are intent on making the system work.

INFORMATION

OFFICE HOURS

Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DEADLINES

■ For placing classified line ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
■ For placing help wanted display ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
■ For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays

BEST BUYS

Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 4 line ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES

To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. Four lines for $13.00; $2.00 for each additional line. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT

Most classified line ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE

The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS

Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

LEGAL NOTICES

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the Power of Sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Nabil Boghos and Rose Boghos of 29 Everett Avenue, Winchester, Massachusetts to USTrust/Middlesex dated October 2, 1987 and recorded with Middlesex County (Southern District) Registry of Deeds, Book 18604, page 163, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at Public Auction at 1 o'clock, p.m. on the 23rd day of August, A.D., 1990, at 29 Everett Avenue, Winchester, Massachusetts, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage,

To wit: Four certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows:

Parcel One: That parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Winchester, shown as the Lot marked 15,480 square feet, on a Plan of Land in Winchester belonging to Phineas A. Nickerson, dated February 15, 1907, Charles A. Pearson, Surveyor, duly recorded in Plan Book 165, Plan 32, bounded as follows: Southeasterly by Everett Avenue as shown on said plan, one hundred twenty-one and 93/100 (121.93) feet; Northeasterly by land now or late of Spaulding about one hundred eighteen (118) feet, and fifteen and 80/100 (15.80) feet; Northwesterly by land now or late of Swan, one hundred and six (106) feet; and Southwesterly by other land now or late of Nickerson, one Hundred and fifty (150) feet. Containing 15,480 square feet of land.

Parcel Two; A certain tract or parcel of land situated on the Southeasterly side of Sheffield West, so called, in said Winchester, and known and numbered Lot B on a Plan entitled "Plan of land on Sheffield West belonging to Ripley and Hovey, Winchester, Mass., May 1909, W. J. Dotten, Engineer", recorded in Plan Book 179, Plan 9, said lot B being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the Northeasterly corner of said lot B and the Northwesterly corner of lot C at a stone bound set in the ground in the Southerly line of said Sheffield West; thence the line runs Southeasterly by said lot C, one hundred twenty-one and 10/100 (121.10) feet to a stone bound set in the ground at other land of said Mary Williams Kidder; thence turning and running Southwesterly by land now or late of Graves and of said Mary Williams Kidder, eighty (80) feet to a stone bound set in the ground at the Southeasterly corner of lot A, on said plan; thence turning and running Northwesterly by said lot A, one hundred eighteen and 55/100 (118.55) feet to a stone bound set in the ground in the Southerly line of said Sheffield West; thence turning and running by Southerly line of said Sheffield West, eighty (80) feet to the point of beginning.

Said lot contains ninety-five hundred and seventy-six (9576) square feet of land.

Parcel Three: A certain parcel of land containing 2,213 square feet, situated in the rear of other land of said Mary W. Kidder on Everett Avenue in Winchester, bounded and described as follows: beginning at the Southeasterly corner of said premises, at a stake in the ground at land now or late of Greaves and of said Mary W. Kidder, thence the line runs: Northeasterly by other land of said Mary W. Kidder one hundred and six (106) feet to a stone bound in the ground of land now or late of Spaulding, thence turning and running Northwesterly by said land now or late of Spaulding twenty-one and 37/100 (21.37) feet to a stone bound in the ground at land now or late of said Ripley and Hovey and of said Mary W. Kidder, one hundred fifteen and 34/100 (115.34) feet to a stone bound at land formerly of said Ripley and Hovey conveyed to said Graves, thence turning and running Southeasterly by said land conveyed to Graves twenty and 9/100 (20.09) feet to the stake at the point of beginning.

Parcel Four: A certain parcel of land situated in said Winchester containing two hundred ten (210) square feet, as shown on "Plan of Land, Winchester dated July 15, 1936, John F. Sharon, Eng." duly recorded with said Middlesex South District Deeds in Plan Book 6103, Page 555, being bounded as follows: Northwesterly by land of said Mary W. Kidder ten and 49/100 (10.49) feet; Northeasterly by land of said Mary W. Kidder twenty and 9/100 (20.09) feet; Southeasterly by land now or late of Allie M. Graves eleven (11) feet more or less; and Southwesterly by land now or late of said Allie M. Graves twenty (20) feet.

For title see Deed of said Allie M. Graves to said Mary W. Kidder dated Feb. 15, 1937, recorded with said Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 6103, Page 555.

The first three parcels described above are shown on the last-referred to plan as land of Mary W. Kidder.

For our title see deed of James W. Bishop and Ellen H. Bishop to Nabil Boghos and Rose Boghos dated November 14, 1986 and recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds at Book 17580, Page 596.

Said premises will be sold subject to any and all restrictions, easements, improvements, covenants, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens, or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record created prior to the mortgage, if any there be.

Terms of Sale: $20,000.00 deposit at the time and place of sale paid by cash, bank treasurer's check, or certified check. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid within thirty (30) days thereafter to be deposited in escrow with the mortgagee pending approval of said sale by Land Court. The deed shall be transferred within ten (10) days from the date of approval of said sale by the Land Court, said approval being the only condition of the escrow. Other terms to be announced at the time and place of the sale.

Said premises will be sold subject to any and all tenants and parties is possession, unpaid taxes and assessments, tax sales, tax titles and other municipal liens and water liens, if any there are, and TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($10,000.00) in cash or certified check will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale as a deposit and the balance will be due in thirty (30) days.

The Mortgagee reserves the right to postpone the sale to a later date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the sale and to further postpone at any adjourned sale date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the adjourned sale date.

In the event that the successful bidder at the foreclosure sale shall default in purchasing the within described property according the the terms of this Notice of Sale and/or the terms of the Memorandum of Sale executed at the time or foreclosure, the Mortgagee reserves the right to sell the property by foreclosure deed to the second highest bidder providing that said second highest bidder shall deposit with Mortgagee's attorneys, Brody and Jacobs, the amount of the required deposit as set forth herein three (3) business days after written notice of the default of the previous highest bidder and title shall be conveyed to the second highest bidder within twenty (20) days of said written notice.

The foreclosure deed and the consideration paid by the successful bidder shall be held in escrow by Brody and Jacobs (hereinafter called the "Escrow Agent") until the sale has been approved by the Land Court. Upon receipt of such Land Court approval, the deed shall be released from escrow to the successful Mortgagee, whereupon all obligations of the Escrow Agent shall be discharged. In the event such Land Court approval is not obtained other than through the fault of the successful bidder after payment in full of said consideration, all consideration shall be returned to the successful bidder and the deed shall be returned to the Mortgagee in which event neither party shall have recourse against the other party or the Escrow Agent.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

Companies are expected to offer benefits to help employees deal with increasingly complicated lives

By Maureen McLellan
STAFF WRITER

Struggling to balance work responsibilities with caring for children and aging parents, scores of working people are finding themselves trapped in what experts call the "sandwich generation."

This often-agonizing time squeeze drains workers of energy, distracts them, and bogs them down emotionally with feelings of guilt about neglecting their parents, children, spouses and jobs. While child care issues have been at the forefront of public debate for years, discussion about the elder care issues facing families is just starting to take center stage as more people live longer.

And businesses are taking note, though only a small percentage of larger companies have started programs to help their employees deal with increasingly complicated lives.

But those businesses that are providing assistance recognize the effect of family stress on their balance sheets. The toll is taken in the form of low productivity, absenteeism and lost hours as employees respond to emergencies and spend time on the phone trying to find services.

"There is a trend in the U.S. to begin to recognize this as a serious issue," said Amy Rosenstein Lassman, a spokeswoman for Massachusetts Home Care in Waltham. "The more businesses see this impacting on their bottom line, the more they will address it."

WORKING SMARTER

Attracting workers over 55 to your organization

By Paula Ancona
SCRIPPS HOWARD NEWS SERVICE

The stereotype of every American man and woman retiring at age 65 to fish or bake cookies is more erroneous than ever.

Americans are living longer, more active lives. Many of them want to work past the usual retirement age in their current careers or in new fields. They often have valuable skills and prized qualities like dependability. They may need extra money, social contact and self-esteem.

And they're available now as the number of younger workers continue to decline.

■ Don't assume that older workers don't have current, advanced skills. They may have worked in government agencies or industries where they received frequent training. If not, many of them are eager to update skills through workshops or college courses.

■ Be prepared to answer questions about how a job could affect workers' Social Security income. Get details from your local Social Security office.

■ Get demographics to help you target older workers. Use resource agencies listed at the end of this column. Find out where potential older workers live. What sorts of skills do older people in your community have? How many of them want to work? What transportation is available to them?

■ Set up advisory committees of current older staff members or older community members. Ask them how to reshape jobs to attract and motivate older workers. Ask how older people view your organization. Find out what concerns older workers have about working. Also, use older staffers to help recruit, interview and train older workers.

■ Review your personnel policies and practices to be sure no obvious or subtle forms of age discrimination exist.

■ Be willing to change work schedules to accommodate older workers. They may want flexible or part-time schedules. But they often are available to work unusual hours, evening shifts or overtime because of their reduced family responsibilities.

■ If you want to place help-wanted ads for older workers, use the entertainment, food, sports and lifestyle sections. Older people are less likely to check classified ads.

■ These organizations can help you find older workers: The city office of senior affairs; state agency on aging; fraternal, civic and religious organizations; local volunteer networks; Job Training Partnership programs; the National Clearinghouse on State and Local Older Worker Programs, 202-785-0707; private employment agencies specializing in older workers; senior centers, local American Association of Retired Persons chapters.

■ Another information source: the National Older Workers Information System, a computer data base of employment programs for older workers (NOWIS, AARP National Gerontology Resource Center, 1909 K Street N.W., Washington, D.C., 20049).

(Paula Ancona is the staff-development director at The Albuquerque Tribune in New Mexico.)

Exploring elder care

Companies are expected to offer benefits to help employees deal with increasingly complicated lives

Elder care, From 1

services in a number of area communities, is encouraging businesses to play a more active role in helping their employees cope with elder care problems. Lassman said company-sponsored resource referral programs that help workers find services in their communities are among those employees say they want most.

This is because many older people living in their own homes need various services to remain independent, such as Meals on Wheels, personal care aides, housekeeping aides and physical therapists.

"It's definitely a big issue. We're seeing more people coming in raising the issue of being caught in the middle of an aging parent and young children. I think it's very difficult for people to work through the system. They don't know where to begin."

Linda Perruzzi,
SOCIAL WORKER

Children caring for their parents must then find out where to find these services and coordinate them all. They may also need advice on whether a parent is well enough to live alone. Having children of their own further complicates the situation for these workers.

Lassman cited recent surveys conducted by Fortune magazine and John Hancock Financial Services that underscore the prevalence of these problems.

The results indicate 37 percent of employees have been responsible for an elderly person in the past two years, as have 49 percent of corporate executives. In addition, one in three working adults responsible for an elder is also responsible for at least one child.

She said other studies reveal such employees may lose up to 12.5 percent of the work week trying to arrange and confirm dependent care plans.

"What's happening with companies is that they're finally realizing that elder day care responsibilities are at least as considerable as child care responsibilities," said Scott Plumb, director of government relations for the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes, a Dedham-based trade organization.

But statistics indicate almost twice as many firms provide care for children than provide services for elder parents. Hewitt Associates, an employee benefits consulting firm based in Lincolnshire, Ill., conducted a national survey of 259 employers and found 31 percent are offering elder care assistance, while 56 percent offer some type of child care assistance.

Massachusetts companies in the vanguard include Stride Rite, which has a highly regarded intergenerational on-site day care center, Genrad, Houghton Mifflin, John Hancock, Millipore, Prime Computer and Shawmut.

Many specialists say the biggest obstacle for many employers considering elder care benefits is their own fear of the unknown.

"Employers are just sort of uneducated so far and don't know how much they (benefits) cost," said Carol Moenning, a Hewitt Associates consultant who concentrates on the Boston area.

Marcia Perna, a Dedham social worker who consults with companies on elder care issues, also said, "I get the feeling companies are still trying to figure out what to do."

She said the other difficulty with launching elder care programs is that older people and their families have such diverse needs that no one solution will work for everyone.

Perna's work at Digital Equipment Corp.'s Marlboro site, where she runs occasional lunch-time elder-care seminars, prompted employees to form a support group.

"They found the sharing to be helpful," she said.

Linda Perruzzi, another social worker who coordinates a number of DEC seminars through its employee assistance program, said interest in elder care issues is on the rise.

"It's definitely a big issue. We're seeing more people coming in raising the issue of being caught in the middle of an aging parent and young children," she said. "I think it's very difficult for people to work through the system. They don't know where to begin."

Perruzzi said the lunch seminars, which are usually attended by about 30 people, inform employees about available services before they are faced with crises.

Hewitt's Moenning said most employers offering elder care benefits do so through dependent care spending accounts. These accounts allow employees to have up to $5,000 of their pay set aside each year tax free for dependent care.

But this benefit is limited because the funds can only be used for relatives who live with employees a minimum of eight hours a day.

A few employers are offering long-term health care insurance to provide for nursing home stays, but this is uncharted territory. As a result, both employers and insurance companies are still trying to determine how to offer the insurance and how much to charge for it.

Job Hunting STEP BY STEP

Looking for a job can be an exercise in frustration or an exciting challenge, depending on how it's approached. Planning your approach step by step can lead to a successful outcome.

1. The Resume

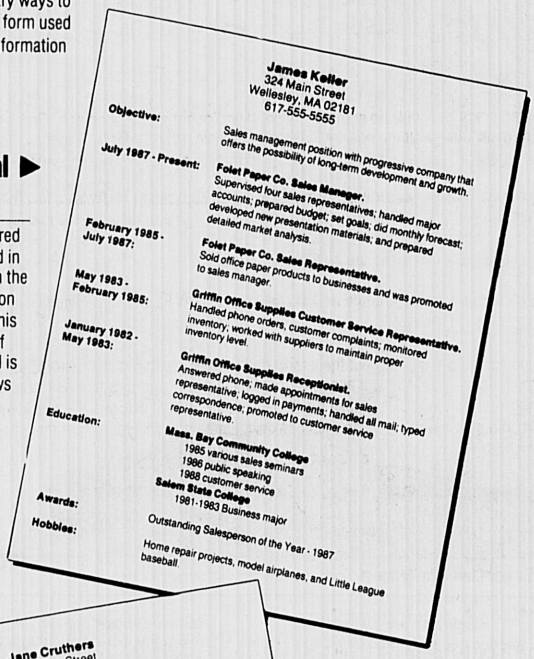

An employer will get many responses to an advertisement. He or she often will review resumes first to decide which applicants are to be interviewed.

A resume is an introduction. It should be concise (one page if possible) and easy to read. Avoid irrelevant information such as age, height, weight, family details and detailed military information (date, highest rank, and brief description of responsibilities are enough.)

There are two primary ways to prepare a resume. The form used may be based on the information to be presented.

Chronological Resume ▶

This resume is prepared with experience listed in sequence starting with the current or last position and working back. This is especially good if the work background is consistent and shows good progression from early jobs to the present.

◀ Functional Resume

When there is a variety of unrelated job experiences or when different skill areas need to be emphasized, the best resume format to use is the functional resume. In this format, the information is presented in a way that makes it easy for the employer to pick out your area of expertise.

2. Personal Assessment

What can I do? What do I want to do? What do I do best?

These are questions that need to be answered. You can't sell yourself until you know your product well! The period between jobs is a good time to analyze strengths, weaknesses, likes and dislikes.

Here is a simple project:

List all the work duties you have had in the past. The list probably will be varied and long. That's fine. Add anything that comes to mind, no matter how small.

Now, highlight all the things on the list you really enjoy doing. Next, check all the things you were successful doing. Ideally, there will be some overlapping.

Now, list all the skills required to do the highlighted tasks.

	DUTIES	SKILLS
	order parts	use catalog/fill out forms
	deliver parts	driving/map reading
	arrange for courtesy pickups	scheduling/communication
	repair transmissions	mechanical
	greet customers	communication
	operate forklift	driving
✓	do inventory	math
✓	operate computer to monitor parts flow	math/typing
	do monthly sales totals	math
	sell additional services	communications/sales
✓	repair warehouse equipment	mechanics
	pack and ship orders	detail/manual dexterity
✓	do monthly forecast	math
	keep customer records	organizational
	prepare sales target lists	organizational
	supervise loaders	communication/leadership

What this shows you is that your favorite duties are the ones that require math skills. Your strongest areas were math and mechanics.

This understanding will make it easier to explain your strengths to an interviewer. The jobs that are geared toward using these skills would be the most suitable and satisfying.

3. Research

Knowing about the company with which you are interviewing will set you apart from most of the others being interviewed. Spending time to find out about the services, products, market area, primary concerns, focus and financial history will make you a concerned and knowledgeable applicant.

Once an interview is scheduled, find out as much as you can. There are some tools in the library that make getting information easier than you may imagine. Check:

- Standard and Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives
- The Thomas Register of American Manufacturing and Thomas Register File
- Moody's (lists more than 20,000 corporations)
- The Million Dollar Directory and The Career Guide by Dun and Bradstreet offer information on companies in alphabetical order, by career field and geographical area. On microfiche is another listing of local business. Check with your local librarian if you need help. There are many other books, magazines and even videos and a computer available for information gathering.

Another good source is the chamber of commerce. Chambers will have not only a list of all chamber members, with product and service information, but a list of manufacturers.

With the information you've accumulated, you can ask questions relevant to that company. During your interview, mention what you've learned . The interviewer will be impressed with your interest. Do your homework. It will pay off.

Job Services

There are free job services available through the Mass. Dept. of Employment and Training. Some "job centers" in this area include:

Framingham: 46 Park St. 508-875-5237.
Norwood: 17 Center St. 762-9450.
Roslindale: 980 American Legion Highway 469-4620.
Waltham: 119 School St. 899-9340.

Each office provides all or most of the following services free of charge:

- Job search workshops on interviewing and resume writing.
- Job referrals and an automated job list system. Some 25,000 companies in Massachusetts list jobs with the state.
- Use of resource office equipment for a job search, such as fax and copy machines, personal computers and telephones.
- Employment counseling, career assessment and skill transferability assessment.
- Written reference materials on jobs and industries.
- Labor market information and data on occupational trends. A reference document titled "90 jobs for the 1990s" is now available.
- Each job center also has information about career services provided by local agencies, colleges and libraries in the service area.

4. The Interview

Don't underestimate first impressions. Being properly dressed won't get you the job, but being poorly dressed can certainly cause you to lose it.

It's often hard to know exactly what is appropriate for a particular company. For a professional position, it's safe to wear a suit. For other positions, if you are familiar with the company, dress as people do in that position. If you're not sure, play it safe. Dress slightly more formally than what the position calls for. Example: When interviewing for a warehouse position that probably requires jeans, wear slacks and a nice sport shirt.

Get there early. This will allow you time to fill out an application and relax a few minutes. It also will give you a chance to visit with the receptionist. One often can get a real feeling for the office environment and its mood. Are the people cheerful? Do they seem to enjoy being there? Do you get a feeling that they are an efficient group?

When called in, stand up, smile and shake hands. YOU'RE ON! Most interviewers want you to be comfortable and will help you relax. They want you to be able to be at your best.

Now you can go into detail about the information in your resume. You've analyzed your strengths; tie them in with your accomplishments that are examples of those strengths. Personal information is OK because it gives a better picture of who you are, but keep it brief. Be positive about past jobs. You don't have to belittle others to sell yourself. If there has been a problem with a past job that needs to be discussed, do it in a factual manner and without emotion.

Interviewing actually should be an exchange of information. Just as the employer wants to know your experience and what you can bring to the company, you will want to know about the company and the position available. This exchange of information is critical if there is to be a proper fit. Use your judgment about how and when to ask questions. You don't want the interviewer to feel interrogated. You may want to ask some of the questions listed below.

Questions to ask the employer

- What is the last person who had this job doing?
- What are the job responsibilities?
- What skills are most important for the job?
- What kind of training is provided?
- What is the company's history?
- What are the company's goals?
- Where does the job lead?
- What is the salary range?
- What benefits are offered?
- Does the company have a personnel and procedures manual?
- What are the strengths and weaknesses of the supervisor? (Don't be afraid to ask.)
- What is the management style of the company?

Questions to ask yourself

- Do I understand the job responsibilities?
- Is the job location within a comfortable driving radius?
- Does the personality of the company fit with mine?
- Does the position fit with my goals?
- If moving to another location, does the change in salary fit with the difference in the cost of living?

5. Follow-up

When the interview is over, the interviewing process is still incomplete.

A thank-you note should be sent to the interviewer. You may include something you have forgotten to mention during the interview. If you don't have anything to add, restate your reason for feeling you are a good candidate for the position. Emphasize again your interest in the job.

Getting the job you want requires planning, determination and follow through. With the proper effort, the reward will be a fulfilling part of your life, a great job.

Parkway accident claims life

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

A 26-year-old Cambridge man is dead and his 22-year-old sister in stable condition after the car she was driving hit the curb on Mystic Valley Parkway and flipped over into the Aberjona River.

The accident occurred directly across from Manchester Field at approximately 5:0[illegible] p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 21, according to Metropolitan Police Captain Daniel Gately.

The driver, Stravoyla Hanzis, also of Cambridge, told police she fell asleep at the wheel. The vehicle, a 1987 black Pontiac Grand Prix, apparently veered to the right of the road, hit the curb and went into a spin. The car plunged down the embankment and landed on its roof in the water below, said police.

John Hanzis, 26, the passenger in the car, was transported to Winchester Hospital by Woburn Fire personnel and pronounced dead on arrival.

Winchester Police officers Thomas Romeo and James Covino were the first to arrive on the scene and observed the car flipped upside down with only the rear tires showing. The officers quickly proceeded down the steep embankment and jumped into the water in full uniform, according to Winchester Lt. Kenneth Albertelli.

According to Covino and Romeo, they struggled with the driver's side door and after several attempts were able to pull the woman from the car. While still in the water, Covino began CPR and he and Romeo carried the victim to the shore.

Albertelli said at this time Stravoyla Hanzis was not breathing, had no pulse and was turning blue. Covino continued to perform CPR on the victim, while Romeo retrieved John Hanzis from the passenger's side of the vehicle. He too, was brought to the shore and life-saving measures were started.

Metropolitan District Commission police oversee the removal of a car from the Aberjona River Aug. 21. The driver told police she fell asleep at the wheel. The car jumped the curb and flipped, sliding into the river and killing the woman's 26-year-old brother. She was reported to be in stable condition at Winchester Hospital.

Stravoyla Hanzis began breathing on her own, but John Hanzis could not be resuscitated, said police reports.

Winchester Fire Department EMTs Peter Plachowicz and Randall Skilling and Firefighter Edward Smith took over treatment of Stravoyla Hanzis and transported her to Winchester Hospital. According to Debbie Schrier, a spokeperson for the hospital, Stravoyla Hanzis was in stable condition in the intensive care unit as of Wednesday morning.

MDC Captain Gately said, "By all appearances, [speed] was not a factor." He noted however, that an accident reconstruction team arrived at the scene soon after to determine the exact cause of the accident.

Romeo said he was on patrol in the area when he was flagged down by passing motorist Richard Zwetchkenbaum of Arlington and informed that a car had flipped into the water. Covino was radioed and also arrived within seconds of the accident, said reports. A Metropolitan Police team was also at the scene.

Stravoyla Hanzis is reportedly a physical therapist at Winchester Hospital and had been picked up from work by her brother just prior to the accident.

Larry Gillis, a spokesperson for the MDC, said an autopsy will be performed on John Hanzis to determine the primary cause of death, but that he apparently died of a combination of internal injuries sustained in the crash and drowning.

Committee seeks to keep balance

Krumme, McSweeney on FinCom

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Search Committee members have decided their mission is to maintain a balance of viewpoints among Finance Committee members — and all agreed residents Cynthia Krumme and Brian McSweeney balance each other as well as two individuals can.

Krumme has been a supporter of Proposition 2½ override efforts. McSweeney is a vocal member of the Winchester Taxpayers' Association, the group that has opposed such measures. The two were among the five new Finance Committee members the search committee appointed Monday night.

Others are Lisa DeMauro Ross of Myrtle Terrace, Francis Jackson of Plato Terrace and Matthew P. Stone of Drexel Avenue.

Discussion lasted just 30 minutes as search committee members John Sullivan (Town Moderator), Wendy Sutton (Finance Committee chairman) and Stephen Powers (Board of Selectmen chairman) reviewed 11 applicants for the five vacant seats.

> "If you want to learn the ropes fast, you can. And being a Town Meeting member doesn't qualify you to know the ropes [of the Finance Committee]."

ZBA rules in favor of Errico family

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

James and Carmella Errico may now use their home at 37-39 Loring Avenue as a three-family dwelling and be within the limits of town bylaws.

Zoning Board of Appeals members voted 3-0 to overrule the denial of Building Commissioner Dominic Serratore to issue a certificate of non-conformance, therefore allowing the use of the premises for a three-family dwelling.

The structure has been in a state of zoning limbo for almost seven decades, with its string of owners being denied three-family dwelling status twice in the 1920s and again in 1947. At one point in the dwelling's history however, its homeowners were granted three-family dwelling status relief for the period of one year.

The home was originally ruled a two-family dwelling in the 1920s, according to the Erricos' attorney, Paul Amico. At that time, the status of a dwelling was decided based on how many housewives lived there. The house however, was being used as a boarding house in the 1920s and therefore was occupied by groups of men, living as family units. At that time, two women lived in a unit on the third floor.

Amico called this ruling "an error" and requested that the ZBA review the original finding.

Amico added that in 1948 the building department issued a permit to the owners of the Loring Avenue residence to rewire the third floor. He noted that such a permit provides a six-year window for the town to change the status of the home. That window has long since elapsed, according to Amico, and the town never filed suit against the homeowners.

He added, the home is currently

Fall brings change in school policies

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

When high school students make their way to school this fall, they'll notice significant changes in scheduling and attendance policies.

High School Principal John Ritchie says students will have a different schedule based on a six-period day in a seven-day rotation.

"Over a period of seven days, each period gets skipped once," Ritchie said. Students will need to think in terms of numbered days, rather than Monday, Tuesday, etc. For example, Day 1 skips first period, and begins with period 7, followed by periods 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. Day 2 begins with period 3, followed by 4, 5, 6, 7 and 1.

Ritchie said the new schedule will benefit both students and teachers. First, it will add variety, he said. Students will attend English class, for example, at a variety of times during the week, breaking up the monotony of having it the same period every day, he noted. In addition, students will have more class time. The old schedule consisted of

Ward says high number of voters switching party

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

A high number of voters in Winchester seem to be switching their party affiliation to independent, according to Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

Although Ward says the trend appears to hold true for both republicans and democrats, a one-day sampling at Winchester's Town Hall showed a surprising number of democrats in particular have jumped ship to independent ground.

On the last day of voter registration, Tuesday, Aug. 21, Ward reported a total of 28 voters switched party affiliation as of 5 p.m.

One democrat switched to the GOP and one republican switched to the Democratic party, said Ward. And four republicans changed to independents, according to Winchester's town clerk.

However, 22 democrats on this date became independents, said Ward.

Ward says the number of party affiliation switches "seem higher than usual ... It seems to me that there's a lot of indecision out there *mong voters. Registering independent] keeps their options open right up until the minute they reach the polls."

Independents are able to vote in either the Democratic primary or Republican primary, she added.

Voter registration overall has gone up since last year, but there were no fall elections in 1989, said Ward. She anticipates however, the final figure for 1990 will be slightly lower than during the 1988 election year.

"The bigger the election, the bigger the turnout," said Ward. A presidential election tends to bring the most residents to Town Hall to register, she added.

Ward added that many first-time voters are performing their civic duty and registering to vote this year as well.

Ward said overall her office has been "plenty busy" and her four staff members were bustling about straight through from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on the last day of registration.

Middle East crisis has impact at home

According to Town Comptroller Joseph Bonner, energy prices will be the subject of a report to the Board of Selectmen as information is gathered and the situation continues to unfold.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Selectmen, member William O'Leary requested a report on estimated costs.

As prices continue to soar at the gas pump, and residents steady themselves for potential increases in heating oil this winter, town officials too, are looking at how the crisis in the Middle East will affect budgets within each of the town departments.

Bonner said a joint effort between himself and Assistant Town Manager Mark Twogood will identify possible fluctuations in the budget brought on by the crisis.

The town is affected by the increases in gasoline for the Department of Public Works vehicles and Public Safety vehicles, such as cruisers and fire trucks. Also, the budget for heating oil used in the town buildings and schools could be affected if the increased price trend continues.

POLICE LOG

Monday, Aug. 20
11:35 a.m.
Officer Kenneth Green was called to the intersection of Church and Bacon streets on a report of a two-car accident.

On arrival, the officer observed an ambulance van on the side of the road. The ambulance was not carrying patients at the time of the crash, according to police reports.

The driver of the other car, a 77-year-old Arlington man, told police he was attempting a left turn onto Bacon Street from Church Street when he was hit from behind by the ambulance.

The ambulance operator, a 22-year-old Malden man, told police he was traveling down Church Street and was stopped at a red light. When the light turned green the car in front of him proceeded through the intersection, but then stopped suddenly, according to the ambulance driver.

The ambulance sustained damage to the front bumper and the car sustained damage to the rear bumper, according to police reports.

Sunday, Aug. 19
6 p.m.
Officer Lawrence Hill responded to a Woodside Road home on a report of a past breaking and entering. The officer was met by the homeowner and showed where the rear door was broken away from the jamb.

The homeowner found several items missing and planned to make a complete list to submit to police.

Neighbors were unable to add information to the investigation. Police determined the break occurred sometime between Friday at 2:30 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m. Inspector Paul Deluca will continue the investigation.

3:45 p.m.
Officer Kenneth Green was called to the area of Highland Avenue and Kenwin Road on a report of a motor vehicle accident.

On arrival, the officer observed two cars off the road. The driver of the first car, a 41-year-old Cross Street man, told police he was traveling south on Highland Avenue when the second car failed to stop at the corner of Kenwin Road and proceeded onto Highland Avenue.

One of the passengers in that car, the driver's child, sustained a minor injury in the crash. Medical treatment was waived by the father, said police reports.

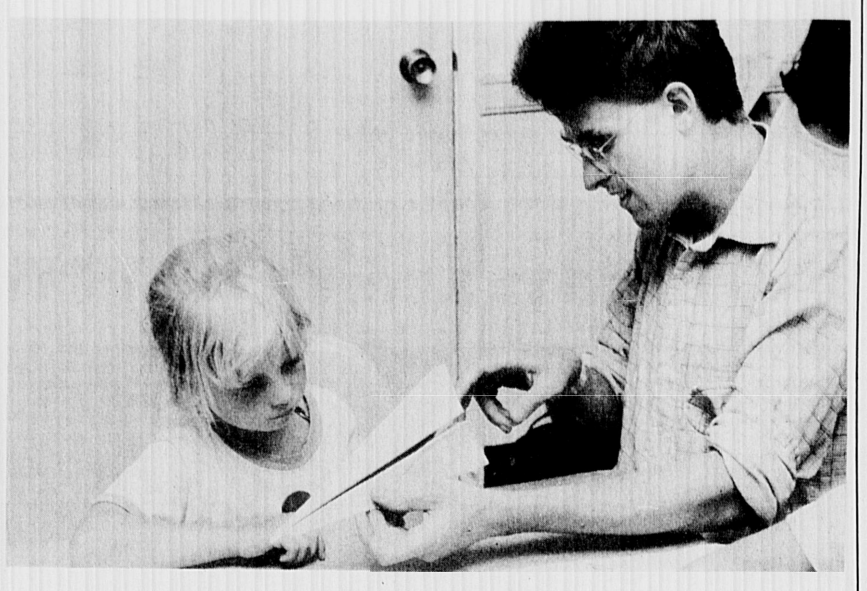

The driver of the second car, a 47-year-old Woburn woman, told police she was at the Kenwin Road corner when she saw the first car traveling down Highland Avenue with its right directional on. According to police reports, the woman said she assumed the driver was taking a right onto Kenwin Road, and proceeded to take a left onto Highland Avenue, said police reports.

The first car sustained damage to the driver's side front end and the second car sustained damage to the driver's side quarter panel.

8:22 a.m.
Officer Theodore Yeanacopolis was called to a Pond Street address on a report of a past breaking and entering. A neighbor showed police a rear basement window and frame that had been broken.

Police seek vandals

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Police are on the trail of a group of vandals who left their mark with a gallon of yellow paint at the high school.

According to police reports, the vandals smeared the paint on the basketball court and areas of the locker rooms. They entered the building through a door at the west side courtyard area sometime Friday evening, Aug. 17, or Saturday morning, Aug. 18.

Officers Peter Hersee Jr. and Carl Fuller were checking the high school area at 3:53 a.m. Saturday when they observed fresh paint on the glass door and an empty paint can on the steps.

The paint was found to be smeared on the inside of the door and also on the inside door handle, according to police reports. Officers at the scene found the outside door could be forced open to the limit of the chain lock, allowing a one-foot entry into the building.

At this time, Officers Paul Austin and Gabrielle Hersee were called to the scene as back-up.

A search was conducted within the building and officers discovered a trail of paint leading into the gym area. The vandals had marked up the basketball court using a water-based paint.

The custodian of the building was notified of the incident and also responded to the scene. Police determined that the paint was still tacky and estimated the incident had occurred within the last three to five hours.

Inspector Daniel McGee is conducting a further investigation into the incident.

Once inside, the intruder(s) went into several of the rooms and removed a pillowcase from the master bedroom, said police reports. Police determined the intruder(s) left by the front door. Also, police found the intruder(s) had cut the telephone wires from outside the home.

Neighbors did not notice any suspicious activity at the scene. The owner was advised of the incident and returned home to make a list of missing items.

Inspector Paul Deluca will conduct further investigation.

Saturday, Aug. 18
12:49 a.m.
Officer Carl Fuller was called to the scene of a two-car accident on Washington Street.

The driver of the first car, a 32-year-old Vine Street man, was driving south on Washington Street when he observed a vehicle heading northbound on that street. The first driver said the northbound car was too close to his side of the road. In an attempt to avoid a collision, the first driver veered to the right, striking the second car, which was parked on Washington Street.

The first driver then reported the accident to Winchester Police.

The second car had damage to the left rear bumper area and tail light and the first car sustained damage to the right fender and windshield.

Friday, Aug. 17
6:04 p.m.
Officer Kurt Ellis was called to the scene of a two-car collision at the intersection of Bacon Street and Mystic Valley Parkway.

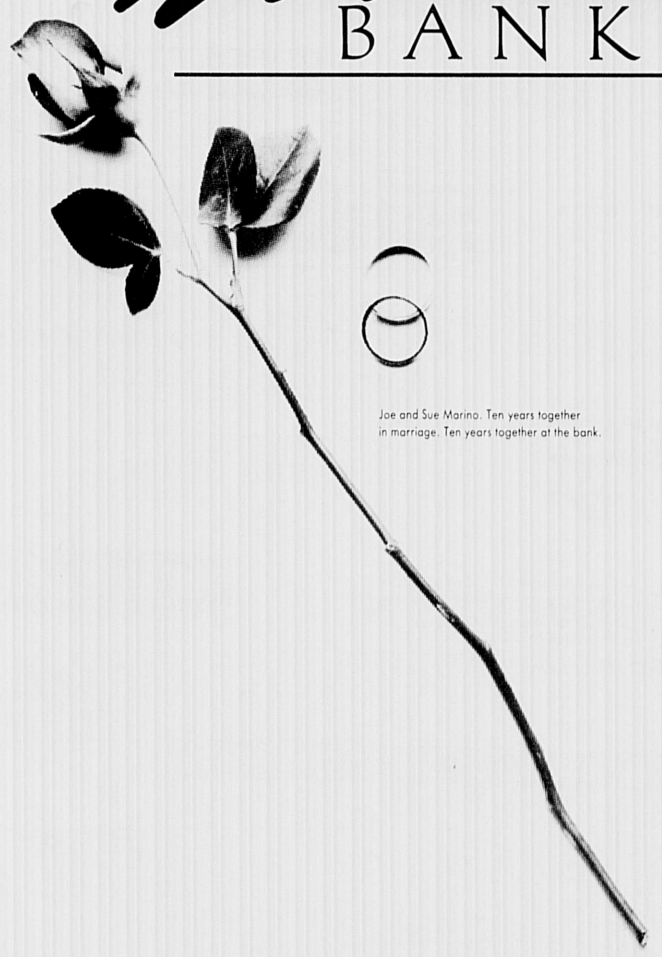

The driver of the first car, a 23-year-old Sargent Road man, was starting from a parked position on Bacon Street and pulled in front of the second car. The driver of the second car, a 20-year-old Black Horse Terrace woman, could not avoid a collision and struck the first car.

The first car sustained extensive damage to the left side and the second car sustained damage to right front end. No violations were issued, according to police reports.

Smith named to ZBA

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Edward J. Smith will join the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Selectmen named Smith in a 3-2 vote last week.

Smith won the appointment over Winchester resident Edward Fratto. Smith is a lawyer, Finance Committee member and former member of the Capital Planning Committee. His legal practice concentrates in legislative and regulatory issues, as well as real estate and land use law.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt nominated Smith, citing his legal expertise as well as his background on the Finance Committee and Capital Planning Committee.

Selectman Judith Muggia seconded Schmitt's motion, but pointed out not all zoning board members need to be lawyers. However, she said in this particular instance, Smith would replace an attorney. The board is required to have at least one lawyer in its membership.

Selectman Robert Deering then nominated Fratto, saying "In the four years [I've been on the board], this is probably the toughest decision I've faced [in making an appointment]." Deering said he had considered each of the resumes, but the personal interview was the "key factor."

Fratto has more than 10 years of planning experience at both the state and local levels, and obtained his master's degree in urban affairs from Boston University. He works at the state Office of Emergency Preparedness as deputy director of the nuclear safety program.

Chairman Steve Powers seconded the Fratto nomination. Selectman William O'Leary, who did not comment on either candidate, supported Smith.

The term of the post Smith will fill expires in March, 1992.

Man to be charged after hospitalization

Police are planning to press charges against a Winchester man for assault and battery of a police officer and threatening to commit a crime.

According to Winchester Police Chief Joseph Perritano, police will serve a warrant to Warren C. Rowe Jr., 52, of High Street when he is released from the hospital.

Rowe is undergoing psychiatric evaluation after he allegedly barricaded himself in his home and threatened to kill himself, police and hospital personnel Aug. 11.

According to police, Lt. Francis Manzie was injured in a struggle with Rowe.

Winchester Kernels

Taming the Aberjona River

The Aberjona River as it glides into Winchester out of its headlands in Wilmington and East Woburn was not always the tidy stream rippling between sloping banks that we take for granted today.

Prior to 1932, between Swanton Street and Woburn, the Aberjona was a wild thing that meandered in and out of its course at will, caressing and oftimes melding with extensive tracts of swampland, as it flowed toward the Mill Pond behind Town Hall.

Winchester formed a Waterways Improvement Committee in 1927 which generated a thorough study of this water course by Herbert Kellaway, a noted landscape architect with earlier ties to the town.

As spirtis plummeted with the deepening Depression, Winchester valiantly took on the rejuventation of the Abgerjona — giving hundreds unemployment relief while alleviating a grave health problem. All work was supervised by our Park Department and was laid out and directed by our Engineering Department under Jim Hinds and John Sharon.

In late 1931, a power shovel moved into the wetlands north of Cross Street to excavate a new holding pond while raising the land surrounding it — ultimately creating Davidson Park. 275 local men were on the payroll in the Unemployment Relief Program.

Originally the river — at Washington Street — meandered along a lazy course halfway between Brookside Avenue and its present channel. A second channel (called "The Canal" locally) crossed Washington Street near the East Woburn line and flowed into a small pond above Winn's Watch Hand Factory thus affording strong head for the turbine water wheel at that establishment.

Mr. Frank W. Winn, a son of J.H. Winn — and a partner in the family business — was also a member of the Waterways Committee and he was instrumental in the cheerful relinquishing of the ancient water rights held by the factory. This made possible the filling of "The Canal" and also the relocation of the Main Channel northward into the present long course between Washington Street and the pond at Davidson Park.

In all, some 280,000 square feet of swampland were reclaimed in this project — and much of the rich loam taken from the swamps was used on the grounds of the new junior high, the high school, Wadleigh School and Manchester Field.

East of Washington Street, along the old Cranberry Bog, a new channnel was opened over land of Flora Richardson and the Atlantic Gelatine Works — the flow being controlled by a picturesque rock dam over which the water cascaded toward Washington Street.

When the project was completed, a verdant public promenade flanked the river from the East Woburn line to Leonard's Pool. At Davidson Park, the Park Department created a lovely circular garden — and arched footbridges designed by F.C. Alexander enabled people to enjoy the park from different angles as they strolled along the new holding pond.

The swamps with their mosquitoes, rusty bedsprings, abandoned cars and private dumps of old tin cans and bottles passed into history as the Aberjonja River flowed into a future where it was to become the vital spine within a linkage of parkland which had no peer then — and does not now in any of the towns of Greater Boston.

A note to our readers

Every so often, we realize Winchester is not such a small community. Last week, we realized it when we printed a letter from Joseph Julian III, allegedly from New Meadows, N.H., regarding the Canada geese problem in town.

Mr. Julian called the Star to say he had not written the letter, and that he was not a resident of New Hampshire. Other parts of the letter indicated to him someone was playing a joke — one neither Mr. Julian nor I found particularly amusing.

Mr. Julian told the Star he was not of the opinion expressed in the letter, and did not appreciate our printing it. To Mr. Julian, our apologies.

The Star requires that all letter-writers provide name, address and phone number. In this case, an apparently innocent letter was not followed up on.

But from this mistake comes the hard lesson that the intentions of letter-writers are not always honest, and the realization that we must be strict in our letter policy.

All letters must include the writer's name, address and telephone number, or must be dropped off in person to the editorial staff. All letters will be verified by telephone.

The Star cannot print letters from anonymous writers. If a writer does not wish to have his or her name printed, we respect that right in certain instances, and will withhold a name upon request. However, the writer's name must be provided to the editorial staff for purposes of verification.

Again, we apologize to Mr. Julian. Hopefully, this can be avoided in the future. It is a lesson well-learned.

Tapping the power within

By TERRY MAROTTA

Every morning when he gets out of bed, rain or shine, according to his wife June, Ray Berte spreads the curtains apart and says, "What a beautiful day!"

Ray is dark-haired, deeply tanned, almost movie-star handsome, and, at 61, in better shape than many 20-year-olds.

He also has had cancer five times: a throat cancer resulting in a laryngectomy back in '73; a secondary tumor discovered just 18 months later between the shoulder blades; and since then testicular cancer and two outbreaks of lymphatic. Some people call him the Miracle Man.

I first read about Ray in a new book by Wendy Williams called The Power Within: True Stories of Exceptional Patients Who Fought Back With Hope (Harper & Row, $19.95) in which the author introduces 10 cancer patients. They speak directly to the reader, in the first person, about their experience, and at the end of each account, their doctors comment about their cases and the course of their treatments.

This book is not about curing yourself with the help of the medical community or without it. "This book is about finding courage," as Williams writes in the preface. "It tells the story of ten people with cancer who were terrified but who gradually replaced some of that terror with a new knowledge of life and of spirit. Slowly, often hesitantly, they confronted their fear and found special, unexpected resources within. Julie calls those resources 'love'. Lisa calls them 'hope'. Smadar, once an atheist, calls them 'God'."

Whatever you choose to call them, no one could be more articulate in discussing them than Ray, whom I talked with one rainy day last week at his home in Enfield, Conn.

He was the 11th of 12 children, who even as a child loved to sing. " 'Sing, Ray,' " my father would say as we worked together in the house or garden." And he did sing. As a youth for wounded GIs during the war; then later in community choruses and summerstock. For 20 years, he studied voice.

"I wanted to be like the great Italian tenors. But I guess I didn't want it badly enough, because at certain crucial moments I didn't fight for it. Well, I heard Elizabeth Kubler-Ross say once at a workshop that there are no coincidences in life. I look back now and see she is right. When it counted, I turned away from the decision to make music my career. Where would I be now, if I had?"

As he speaks, I almost forget that his voice box is gone. He uses esophageal speech, which is extremely difficult to master. "Of course you can't teach anymore," doctors had told him, because the effort of being a neck breather, learning to force air in through the electro-esophageal device, would be too arduous.

"You can talk for only about 15 minutes at a time," they said. Today as a professor at Springfield College, he routinely lectures for three hours without a break. "In part it was my training as a singer that allowed me to do this: the hours spent alone, vocalizing in a room."

As it happens, Ray's field is the psychology of disability. "All my life I've worked with people, always looking after them, caring for them, nurturing them, especially the so-called throwaways. My students go out and work with the disabled, the physically disabled as well as those disabled by alcohol, drugs, and so on. We are starting to see growing numbers of disabled people in this country, as the population." Now ironically, he is one of them. "So you have cancer, like me" he says. "That isn't who you are. That isn't what defines you."

What defines Ray is his sense of hope. "I'll never hit a high C again," he says wistfully, "and that hurts. But music is all around me." He gestures to the elaborate audio system, and to the very air which, even as we speak, is sculpted into swelling contours and tall fanciful promontories of sound. "The whole world is made up of rhythms."

"Life is a pact made between an individual being and the spiritual forces of the universe," Williams says in her book. Ray Berte has fashioned a pact that has given him life for almost two decades longer than the doctor's best guesses. And when you read about him — or any of the other nine individuals described in this book, for that matter — you begin to sense something: it's not that you're called upon to sing the song so much as to be the song, and add the music of your own best efforts to the greater symphony.

Registration deadline looms

TO THE EDITOR:

Aug. 21 is an important date for Massachusetts residents — the deadline for registering to vote for those not registered and the deadline for changing party affiliation for those who are enrolled in one party and wish to vote in the other party's primary.

Residents may register and change party affiliation in the Town Clerk's office in Town Hall during regular business hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 18; from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 20; and until 10 p.m. on the deadline, Aug. 21.

This year's primary is certainly as important as the November election. Both parties have strong contests for offices at the top of the ticket. Some regional offices are being contested only at the primary level because only one party has fielded a candidate for those offices.

Those who have registered to vote independents may vote in either party's primary. Those who are enrolled in a political party on the registration deadline may only participate in that party's primary.

Please exercise your right to have an impact on Massachusetts government and be registered to vote on primary day, Sept. 18.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 17 — Report No. 32
Massachusetts House and Senate
August 16, 1990

The House and Senate — The House and Senate met only informally last week and there were no roll call votes.

During the lengthy consideration of the state budget recently signed into law by Governor Dukakis, the House held dozens of roll call votes. Space limitations prevented us from reporting on many of these votes. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" takes a more indepth look at House action and local representatives' votes on previously unrecorded roll call votes on several amendments to the $13.4 billion fiscal 1991 state budget. The bill number is H 5700.

During debate on the amendments, supporters of cuts and reductions argued that cuts in many non-essential items must be made in order to avoid new taxes and/or cuts in essential programs and services. Opponents of these cuts gave reasons against each reduction and also used the broader argument that the small reduction in a particular item would not amount to much of a savings and would cover the costs of these important programs and services.

Although many of the proposed cuts were defeated, in the end the legislature approved and Governor Dukakis signed a new conference committee version of the budget making four percent across the board cuts in many accounts totalling $265 million.

Early Retirement — House 106-47, approved an amendment striking a section of a proposed substitute budget requiring development of an early retirement plan for state employees with a goal of saving $30 million. Amendment supporters said this is a misleading and phony plan which will not save $30 million. Opponents said the plan will include many incentives to encourage retirement of employees whose positions will be eliminated and of highly paid employees who can be replaced with lower paid ones.

A Yea vote is against the early retirement plan. A Nay vote is for it.

Representative Paul Casey voted no.

SJC — House 78-73, rejected an amendment reducing funding for salaries and expenses of the Supreme Judicial Court from $3.9 million to $3.6 million. Amendment supporters said this modest 10 percent reduction will save some $300,000 in an account which is growing too quickly. Opponents said the account has already been cut $200,000 and claimed further cuts will hurt operation of an already overburdened system.

A Yea vote is for the $300,000 cut. A Nay vote is against the cut.

Casey voted yes.

Governor's Council — House 84-70, rejected an amendment reducing funding for the Governor's Council from $290,000 to $155,000. Amendment supporters said it is time to reduce funding for this useless and outdated body. Opponents said the council approves judicial appointments and pardons and also serves as a check on the Governor.

A Yea vote is for the cut. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

Secretary of State — House 97-57, approved an amendment reducing funding for the Secretary of State's office from $5.1 million to $4.6 million. Amendment supporters said this $500,000 administrative cut will save money and not hurt the office. Opponents said this cut will reduce the office's ability to collect funds and generate millions in revenue.

A Yea vote is for the $500,000 cut. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

This week in history

1967: 23 years ago

The Red Cross and Recreation Department sponsored the 20th annual Town Swimming Meet at Leonard Pool and the EnKa Society sponsored a banquet for participants and winners. A record number of applicants ranging in age from six to 16 took part in the meet.

A large group of varsity candidates was expected to report at the Winchester High School field house on Sunday try-outs — the first move into the 1967 football season.

Selectmen, the Forestry Department and the Winchester Historical Commission, all received calls and letters about a rumor that the oldest tree in town might be taken down. The rumors were quickly laid to rest and the local historical commission planned to put a plaque on the celebrated oak, which stood at 85 Cross Street partly on town land and partly on private land.

About 35 young people from Winchester planned to leave for a First Baptist Youth Fellowship-sponsored trip to Montreal and EXPO '67.

The "Brattle Street Forum" on Channel 2 would focus discussion on the prospects of the four Republican candidates who were the front-runners for their party's presidential nomination: Governors George Romney of Michigan, Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California and former Vice President Richard Nixon. The forum not only would focus on which of these men would be likely to get the nomination, but which had the best chance to beat President Johnson at the polls. In addition, the probable effect of the Vietnam War on the election would be discussed.

Renton's Market at 32 Church St. offered London broil steaks for 99 cents a pound, bacon for 89 cents a pound and fresh filet of sole for 69 cents a pound.

A one-year subscription to the Winchester Star was just $5.

Ninety-three new teachers, including two new department heads, would be among the 297 professional staff members when the Winchester Public Schools open that week, according to school officials.

An over-fused electrical circuits caused the fire that burned out the interior of the Crock' n Creamer restaurant that week and caused an estimated $75,000 damage in the area, according to investigation authorities. Two women residents of the second-floor apartments on Church Street called the first alarm and then vacated the smoke-filled building.

Winchester's wild ducks had been the concern of many that week. During 15 days of that month, 20 dead ducks had been pulled from the Mill Pond area. With one exception, all the ducks had been wild, which made it harder for health officials to trace the actions that may have led to death. However, one domestic white duck that was found dead had a small stone imbedded in its back. The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was called in to assist.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

Red Cross building at crossroads

The Red Cross building on Church Street, awaiting a new chapter in its history, is one of Winchester's many distinctive historic properties. Unusual architecturally for its blend of classical and spanish features, it is also noteworthy as part of the Winchester Center National Register District and part of a small section of town that had its own distinctive character at the turn of the century.

Many decades ago, before the Red Cross building was built, the section of Church Street where that building is now located was the site of a number of doctors' homes and offices and was known, consequently, as "Doctors' Row."

Several of these fromer medical buildings still stand. The building longest in use by physicians was 27, where Dr. Danail March set up practice about 1880 in a house built on the site of an old school and where he was succeeded by Dr. George Mead. About the same time that Dr. March came to town, so also did Dr. Benjamin Church, whose house at 40 may be remarked not only as his home and office but also as that of his wife, Dr. Adalin Barnard Church, a physician and teacher of medicine in the Boston University School of Medicine. The Boone Building (31), built in 1902, was occupied by various physicians, as were also the buildings at numbers 38, 41-43, and 45.

It seems appropriate, therefore, for the Red Cross building to have been located in this neighborhood. However, at the time the structure now known as the Red Cross building was built, about 1922, "Doctor's Row" had changed character, and the new building itself was not designed for medical use. According to the Historical Commission's research, it was built as an office building by Charles A. Gleason. Between 1937 and 1967 it housed the Kimball Funeral Service.

The new occupant of the building, the Winchester chapter of the American Red Cross, had been operating from the Cutting House, demolished in 1969. Having been formed in 1921, the local chapter of the Red Cross was contemporaneous with the building to which it has given its name, and for about two decades, the Red Cross occupied this site. As a result of consolidation of its chapters, the Red Cross has not staffed the building for two years and serves Winchester from offices in Melrose and Peabody.

Consequently, the building is for sale. Though standing empty, it is not without interest for its many architectural details. A curious structure with its classical protico and hip roof with clay tiles, it adds a touch of whimsey to the area. It remains to be seen what further history it may add.

Hospital is meeting needs of seniors

According to a 1989 American Hospital Association Social Report, older adults — persons age 65 and above — account for 34 percent of the average hospital's admissions, 45 percent of inpatient days and nearly 50 percent of a hospital's revenue. The aging of our population has had significant impact on hospitals and this impact will become even more dramatic as the number of seniors increase to 20 percent of the U.S. population by the year 2030.

Hospitals must respond to this "age wave" by becoming more sensitive to the needs and concerns of seniors. The traditional hospital delivery system must be revised to meet the special needs of older adults. In the past, hospitals have focused on acute care with an emphasis on cure, specialization and utilization of high technology. In contrast, older patients benefit most from a comprehensive, integrated, continuing system of care which recognizes the impact of aging and chronic disease on acute illness and promotes independence.

At Winchester Hospital the special needs of seniors are being acknowledged and incorporated into the hospital's program development. Professional care providers are receiving special training in geriatrics and programs for both inpatients and outpatients are being developed which focus on the unique needs of seniors and their family caregivers.

In Winchester Hospital's Family Caregiver Program, a registered nurse helps family members learn the skills necessary to provide care to an older patient at home. In addition, the hospital will soon be initiating a special program for older patients to enhance their independence and facilitate a more rapid recuperation from their acute illness. The Recuperative Program provides a more extensive and comprehensive rehabilitative plan for acutely ill frail elders. A Gerontological Clinical Nurse Specialist — a nurse prepared with advanced education in geriatrics — has been coordinating the hospital's efforts. In addition, a Gerontological Committee, composed of representatives from all disciplines within the hospital, meets regularly to develop creative geriatric initiatives and promote high standards of care for seniors at Winchester Hospital. This committee has also developed an Advisory Board which will be convened annually to provide a forum for the hospital to receive community input in relation to senior care issues. If you would like to be a representative on the Advisory Board, contact Paula Koppel, Gerontological Clinical Nurse Specialist at 729-9000.

While hospitals are serving more and more seniors each year, it is also important to acknowledge that more and more seniors are serving the hospital. Senior volunteers provide vital services at Winchester Hospital. Seniors can be seen volunteering their time by transporting patients to tests, running errands, delivering mail, flowers and coffee to patients and assisting with clerical duties. Senior volunteers are invaluable to Winchester Hospital and are considered full members of the hospital family. If you would like to volunteer, contact Marie Johnson, Director Volunteer Services at 729-9000.

Auditor — House 150-2, rejected an amendment reducing funding for the State Auditor's office from $9.6 million to $7.7 million. Amendment supporters said this 20 percent cut will save $1.9 million without reducing the effectiveness of the office. Opponents said this account has already been cut 16 percent and said this amendment would cut another 62 people in this office which helps ferret out waste.

A Yea vote is for the $1.9 million cut. A Nay vote is against the cut.

Casey voted no.

Computers —House 120-36, approved an amendment reducing funding for the administration of the bureau of computer services, the bureau of systems services and the personnel management information systems from $12.1 million to $11.6 million and providing that at least 20 percent of the highest paid positions in this account be terminated by September 1990. Amendment supporters said this office is overstaffed with overpaid managers and claimed the cut would not affect services. Opponents said the amendment would cut services and argued the state should redesign and improve computer systems in order to get a better handle on state spending.

A Yea vote is for the $500,000 cut. A Nay vote is against the cut.

Casey voted yes.

DOR — House 104-52, rejected an amendment reducing funding for the Department of Revenue from $122 million to $108 million. Amendment supporters said this account has grown substantially and noted it makes no sense to add positions when there is less revenue to collect. Opponents said the cuts will result in a reduced ability to collect revenue and a loss of millions.

A Yea vote is for the $4 million cut. A Nay vote is against the cut.

Casey voted no.

Health Care — House 102-54, rejected an amendment striking $3 million for phase-in initiatives to provide health care for the uninsured. Amendment supporters said the universal health care law is too expensive to implement at this point and argued the pilot program should be scrapped to save $3 million. Opponents said the pilot program will be useful in getting information to find ways to make universal health care more affordable.

A Yea vote is for eliminating the $3 million pilot program. A Nay vote is for the program.

Casey voted no.

Gay Foster Care and Adoption — House 89-68, rejected an amendment to a proposed section providing that the Department of Social Services shall not place any child in the care of persons whose sexual orientation is an obstacle to the physical or psychological well-being of the child. The amendment would strike the part of the section stating that a gay or bisexual orientation shall be considered an obstacle to the psychological well-being of the child. Amendment supporters said the restriction on gays and bisexuals is a bigoted one which takes away their civil rights. They noted the amendment would water down the restriction and leave the decision up to the experts. Opponents said the amendment essentially kills the restriction and argued children should be placed with traditional families.

A Yea vote is agianst the language stating a gay or bisexual orientation is an obstacle to the psychological well-being of the child. A Nay vote is for that language.

Casey voted yes.

Tuition Waivers — House 118-33, rejected an amendment prohibiting state employees, except full-time faculty members and their immediate families, from receiving a tuition waiver at state colleges. Amendment supporters said it is time to stop free tuition for thousands of state employees. Opponents said most tuition waivers are based on seats that are already empty and claimed the current system does not cost much money and helps many people.

A Yea vote is for the amendment restricting waivers. A Nay vote is against the restriction.

Casey voted no.

NEWS NOTES

Width of Aberjona bridge to be reduced

The Metropolitan District Commission recently announced the two travel lanes on the Aberjona River Bridge, Mystic Valley Parkway, Winchester will be reduced in width from 15 feet to 11 feet. The action is necessary to reduce the weight on the outer trusses of the bridge.

MDC Central Services Division will remove current pavement markings and relocate them until complete reconstruction of the bridge takes place. No major traffic delays are expected as a result of this change.

The bridge, a three pin arch structure, was built in 1896 and is restricted to all truck traffic, as is the case with most MDC Parkways. Approximately 7,000 vehicles use the bridge on a daily basis. A design to upgrade the bridge to meet regulatory requirements is currently underway at the agency.

Deadline nears for insurance discount on anti-theft devices

Residents who own cars considered a target for car thieves could pay up to 50 percent more for fire, theft and collision insurance in 1991 — unless an approved anti-theft device is installed.

High theft car owners can avoid paying more for physical damage insurance, being denied coverage or purchasing a costly anti-theft device if they install an anti-theft device before Aug. 31.

Contact your local independent insurance agent or company for additional information about qualifying anti-theft devices.

SENIOR NEWS

Seniors strike up new season

By MARY KELLY
Special to The Star

As fall approaches, Winchester senior bowlers welcome the start of another bowling season. The Winchester Seniors Bowling League is beginning to form its teams and will be starting its first session at the Woburn Bowladrome, Montvale Avenue, Woburn, on Friday, Sept. 7, at 9:30 a.m. Now is the time for planning your weekly bowling sessions.

Anyone interested should contact Guy Santo or Guy Schipellite, president and vice president, respectively, of the bowling league which is sponsored by the Winchester Seniors Association. Both men and women are invited to join in this healthy and competitive activity, and newcomers are most welcome.

These sessions are a source of fun and socialization for the seniors involved, and there are special social events for the bowlers at Christmas and at the end of the season.

There will be a meeting of the officers and team captains, and anyone interested who may wish to attend, at the Jenks Center, on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Paquette returns

Dr. Normand Paquette, Master Calligrapher, will be teaching a special three week series on Tuesdays, at 9:30 a.m. beginning Sept. 11 and continuing on two successive Tuesdays, Sept. 18 and 25. This series will be followed by a six-week new and intermediate course in October.

Paquette would like to see all of his students back for the refresher series. This is an enjoyable exercise in lettering which brings pleasure to all who try it. Please sign up at the reception desk for one or both series.

Calling all horseshoe players

A recent announcement that seniors might like to play horseshoes has sparked some interest but, before the project can get under way, it is necessary to know just how many seniors would be interested. So, please, if you would like to join such a group, the Center would like to learn of your interest.

Both men and women are invited to share in this new activity. Equipment will be arranged for, but before this can be done, the Center must know of your interest. Please call 721-7136 and plan to get out and pitch horseshoes while the good weather is with us!

Square dancing resumes

Square Dancing will begin in a couple of weeks with Mil Dixon, our very popular caller, returning. The sessions start on Tuesday, Sept. 11, 1 to 3:30 p.m. They will be forming squares and new people are especially encouraged to come and enjoy the music and this healthy way of spending an afternoon. Come and watch, if you are uncertain about joining!

Leonor Rich and Joan Ford work on historical albums which record and preserve articles and pictures of events at the Jenks Senior Center. Leonor is the Center's Historian and her friend Joan has volunteered many hours in assisting in the completion of materials located in the Center's Library.

Trip to Burlington Mall Aug. 30

On the last Thursday of each month, the Mall Van is available for a shopping trip to the Burlington Mall, especially for seniors who would otherwise have no means of transport. Recently, the Mall Van has not been used by many different seniors and, therefore, "new" seniors are encouraged to make use of the Van in order to substantiate its use.

Call in now and sign up with the desk receptionist for the trip on Thursday, Aug. 30. The Van will leave the Jenks Center at 9:30 a.m., with return trip pick up at the Mall at 12:30 p.m. There is space for eight seniors and two wheelchairs; a person in a wheelchair must be accompanied by a friend. The Salter Health Care Group has generously made possible the use of the Van for this trip to the Mall.

Upcoming Events

Thursday, Aug. 23 — Bridge, 12:30 p.m.

Friday, Aug. 24 — exercise class, 9:30 to 10:15 a.m.; Eating Together, 12 noon; Senior After Care (SAC) Volunteers meeting, with speaker, Peg Pressman, Family Therapist, 2 p.m.

ABOUT TOWN

Senior cooperative theatre is formed

The Winchester Cooperative Theatre for Children announces the formation of Senior Coop for students in grades 6 through 8.

Cathy Alexander heads up the group, along with many familiar people from the Coop for Children. Senior Coop auditions are on Sept. 10 and 11 in the McCall Middle School Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. Meredith Willson's "Music Man" is the choice for the production to be performed Thursday, Nov. 29, Friday, Nov. 30 and two shows on Saturday, Dec. 1.

The staff is looking forward to working with older students and is sure the audiences will enjoy the fruits of their labor.

Students in grades 6 through 8 are encouraged to audition. There are many roles waiting to be filled. Keep an eye open for the Coop production which will be coming in March.

Call the school at 729-8081 or Kathi Flaherty, Director, at 729-8369 for further information. The school is located on the lower level of the First Congregational Church.

Four-year-old class has openings

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School, 21 Church St., Winchester, has three openings in the four year old afternoon program.

Hours are from 12 to 2:30 p.m., Mondays and Tuesdays. School begins September 10.

Domino's hosts safety talk

Domino's Pizza of Boston brought Lt. Pete Collins, a Mississippi state trooper, to Wellesley Middle School auditorium on Saturday, July 14, to speak to more than 300 drivers, managers, franchise owners and local public safety officials. The presentation was part of the Boston area Domino's franchisees on-going efforts to stress the importance of safety. The lieutenant's topic was safe driving, whenever one takes the wheel whether it be to deliver a pizza or to go to and from work.

In a compelling hour-long speech, Lt. Collins kept the audience alternating between laughter and tears as he re-counted his experiences in both law enforcement and in dealing with traffic fatalities.

"I've been a Mississippi state trooper for 18 years and I've walked up to 168 doors and I've knocked," said Collins. "I can tell you how your mother will scream, how your daddy will beat his fist against the wall, how he'll take your picture and sink to the floor," he said. "Because you're looking at the world's expert on heartache and dying."

Stressing the importance of driving defensively, and never under the influence of drugs or alcohol, Lt. Collins left the audience with the challenge to continue the Domino's Pizza safe driving record in Massachusetts.

Celebration

At a recent black tie extravaganza at the Grand Ballroom of the Park Plaza Hotel to celebrate Philip Priviera's graduation from Dartmouth College and Frank and Jean Priviera's 30th wedding anniversary, singer Tony Bennett and comedian/Oscar winner Red Buttons presented 30 long-stem roses to Jean Privitera. Both Bennett and Buttons performed in an all-star, after-dinner show for the Priviteras. ELECTION NEWS

Five unions support Albano

State Senator Sal R. Albano (D-Somerville) last week gained the support of five more labor unions in his bid for re-election. The Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Joint Council 10, in announcing its endorsement, cited the Senator's "impressive labor record" and "concern for the average working man and woman." The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America Local 262 said that Albano's "pro-education" positions will greatly benefit its members.

Senator Albano thanked the unions for their support. "Organized labor has worked long and hard to help all working men and women. They deserve my support in the state Senate for enforcement of the prevailing wage law, universal health care, and quality, affordable educational opportunities," he said.

Albano also received the backing of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (Local 103), Hotel and Restaurant Workers Local 26, and the Massachusetts Building Trades Council. The Massachusetts AFL—CIO, with over 400,000 members, endorsed Albano for re-election last month.

Rideout receives endorsement of union

The Committee to Elect Edward J. Rideout recently received the endorsement of the Service Employees International Union of Court Workers Local 254.

A special reception was held July 19 to offer their endorsement to the candidate for the position of State Senator from the 2nd Middlesex District. The affair was held at the V.F.W. Post 1012 on Mystic Avenue in Medford.

A spokesperson for the SEIU Local said "We need an individual of Ed Rideout's caliber to represent us in these difficult economic times. Ed will bring the type of common sense approach to the political arena that is so desperately needed."

In addressing his fellow union members, Rideout thanked them for their support and said, "I will work diligently for more government accountability and efficiency. I believe that the current spending and tax program is an unfortunate result of fiscal mismanagement."

He also guaranteed those present that with him as senator there will be careful consideration and review of all fiscal matters for their necessity and worth. "A tax dollar is our money," he said.

(Submitted by the Committee to Elect Edward J. Rideout.)

Fundraiser slated for Charlie Shannon

A sunset harbor cruise will be the first major fundraiser for Charlie Shannon, the Republican candidate for State Senate, 2nd Middlesex District. Area residents are invited to meet Shannon and join him on a scenic cruise of Boston Harbor from 7 to 10:30 p.m. Aug. 26.

Shannon is a former police officer, president of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers and former chairman of the Winchester Board of Assessors.

As a moderate Republican, Shannon offers a reasonable alternative to the current incumbent who has championed big government, big

Real Estate and You
UNDERSTANDING WHAT'S STOPPING YOU

When you decide it's time to buy a home, you will be asked to do many things to make it happen that you will want to resist doing. An important part of a realtor's job is helping you to overcome that resistance.

When you find the perfect property, a lot will have to happen over the next few hours or days to make the dream of home ownership come true. There will be the paperwork, including the financial statement and purchase agreement, and negotiations with the sellers. At each step of the way, you are likely to experience a range of emotions, from mild jitters to profound buyers' remorse. Sometimes, you just have to take a deep breath and trust the agent you're working with. Remember that everyone who's ever purchased a home has had that sinking feeling. "It's too much money, the local market will collapse completely the day after we settle. The roof will blow off and the basement will turn into a swimming pool the day after that." If it's any comfort, all buyers go through these fears, and fortunately they virtually never come true!

Fiorentino named Rotary president

Frank P. Fiorentino, a certified public accountant from Winchester, was recently installed at the 1990-91 president of the 68-year-old Wakefield Rotary Club.

Fiorentino, who is a partner in the Mahoney and Fiorentino Accounting firm at Lakeside Office Park, is an 11-year veteran of Wakefield Rotary, having joined the club after opening an accounting office in Wakefield.

Fiorentino is a native of Medford and a graduate of Boston College. He and his family have resided in Winchester since 1969. His wife Mary, mother Rose of Medford, daughter Andrea, an incoming freshman at Dartmouth College and son David, a freshman at Winchester High School, were all in attendance for the installation.

Fiorentino served on the Rotary board of directors for two terms, and last year served as club vice president. He has been the featured speaker in Wakefield and at several other Rotary clubs in the past, discussing tax accounting.

Black recognized for 25-years of service

Tyler W. Black of Winchester recently celebrated 25 years of employment with Liberty Mutual Insurance at the company's annual Quarter Century dinner, held this year at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

Liberty Mutual honored all employees who have reached 25 years of service, and those with 25 years or more who will be retiring during the coming year.

Black is currently employed in the company's West Roxbury office.

Oussayef takes part in Fulbright program

Mary-Park Oussayef of Belknap Terrace will spend the next school year teaching in Suresnes, France through the Fulbright Teacher Exchange. Previously a French teacher of 10 years at Lexington High School, Oussayef will be living in the suburb of Paris where she will teach at Lycee Paul Langevin.

The Fulbright Teacher Exchange Program provides opportunities for educators to live and work abroad and to become integral parts of their host communities through exchange teaching. Most exchanges are for one academic year and involve a direct interchange of teaching assignments by U.S. and foreign teachers.

Oussayef is looking forward to her stay in France. "Increasing my own knowledge of Europe in the 90's will allow me to enrich my language clases and give my students and my own children a more global perspective on world events," she said.

Oussayef and her husband, Kamel, have two children, Karim, age 9 and Nadia, age 6.

Saraco receives Scholarship

M/A-COM, Inc. (MAI-NYSE) recently announced Wendy Saraco, a June graduate of Woburn Senior High School, as the recipient of a $2,000 scholarship. The award was announced by Dr. Thomas A. Vanderslice, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of M/A-COM.

Saraco plans to attend the University of Massachusetts-Amherst where she will be enrolled in a pre-med honors program with a major in psychology.

A member of the National Honor Society, Saraco graduated with high honors, and has received a number of awards for academic excellence. She was a member of the student council, the math team, science team, tennis team, key club, builders's club, french club, Black and Orange Review and the "W" Girls Club.

Saraco received one of 13 grants made this year to children of M/A-COM employees. The grants are competitive and are based on the results of the Scholastic Aptitude Test taken by the students. Vanderslice stated, "We are pleased to recognize and support the academic achievement and potential of these students as they pursue their college education."

Saraco is the daughter of Michael and Jill Saraco, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. Saraco of Winchester and Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Johnson of Medford, former of Winchester. Jill is payroll clerk at M/A-COM in Burlington.

High school enacts policy changes seven 45-minute classes each day; the new one includes six 55-minute periods.

"When I was first hired, one of the main themes I heard was, the schedule hasn't been altered in years," Ritchie said. The new setup is more flexible and promotes change, he added.

Ritchie said a scheduling committee reviewed options and the decisions were made after input from faculty members.

"It's not radical. There are plenty of high schools that do this," said Ritchie. "But any change causes uncertainty."

Ritchie said he believes the change will be positive, allowing students and teachers to accomplish more in class, and also giving both a breather from each class once every seven days.

"Each day will be a little different. You get out of the rut of each day being the same," he said.

In addition, said Ritchie, "We are using this opportunity to really concentrate on teaching issues at our faculty meetings."

Reaction thus far from faculty members has been good, said Ritchie. "I'd say there was near unanimity that we needed a new schedule."

In addition to scheduling changes, Ritchie said the high school will implement a new attendance policy.

"One of the things that is really a problem is our attendance-taking," Ritchie said. However, he added, "It's not that kids are cutting classes. We were spending huge amounts of time tracking down and verifying absences that occurred days or even weeks ago."

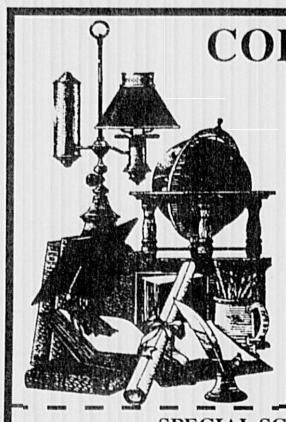

Ritchie said inefficiences in the system were the cause of the problem.

"It's going to be a stream-lined, perfectly efficient system," Ritchie said. "The only students on the daily absence sheet are those whose parents call.

"We're going to rely on parents to call," he added. Parents whose student will be absent from school can call the school and leave a message on the answering machine before 7 a.m. From 7 to 10 a.m., the receptionist handles absence calls, Ritchie said.

"Attendance is a big thing to me," Ritchie said. "This is the place where students are listened to. The bottom line is, we expect them to be in school."

Five appointed to FinCom

(From page 1A)

The three-person committee is responsible for reviewing applications for membership on the Finance Committee. Historically, the committee has been comprised of the Town Moderator, Finance Committee chairman and Board of Selectmen Chairman.

Members readily reappointed Stone since he had already filled in for a year on the board.

Sullivan suggested Krumme and McSweeney would also enhance the makeup of the Finance Committee. "Both these people have exhibited a dedicated presence [in town affairs]. They are sincere and do a lot of work in that regard," he added.

Sutton agreed. "It's important to generate as many ideas on the table as possible," she said.

Members decided to eliminate from contention two former chairmen of the Finance Committee (Chester Haskell and Gerard Polcari) in order to bring a broader base of residents into town service.

Jackson and Ross were chosen for their strong backgrounds in finance and ability to offer sufficient time to the task.

However, Powers said he felt Ross would have trouble learning the "ins and outs" of the town with only one year as a resident.

He added that several applicants had been residents for quite some time and had also served as Town Meeting members.

Sutton however, said she was appointed to the Finance Committee after being a resident for just four months. "If you want to learn the ropes fast, you can. And being a Town Meeting member doesn't qualify you to know the ropes [of the Finance Committee]," added Sutton.

Sullivan said that in addition to her "outstanding resume," Ross' contribution to the board would be three-fold. Her appointment would: bring the total number of female members to five; add a newcomer to town to the committee; and add a representative of Precinct 3 to the committee.

"Part of our job is to give balance," said Sullivan.

Sullivan noted that past finance committees appointments took several factors into account: Town Meeting membership; what precinct residency; age, sex and length of Winchester residency.

He suggested this search committee keep these factors in mind, while concentrating on finding candidates with differing opinions and solid backgrounds in financial matters.

Search committee members stressed the time commitment that is required of Finance Committee members. Sutton added that "egos and politics" are left at the door of the group's meetings. Sullivan agreed the Finance Committee has not become a political organization as in many other towns.

Search committee members also discussed the lack of applicants from Precincts 2 and 8. Neither of these precincts is currently represented on the board at this time, added members.

Krumme and Stone live in Precinct 7, Ross lives in Precinct 3 and Jackson and McSweeney are residents of Precinct 6.

A lot of hospitals promise quality care.

We offer living proof.

It's the smile on the face of a young girl. The look of confidence in a mother's eyes. It's a visible sense of well-being. The look of renewed health. It's living proof. And at New England Memorial, we believe it's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer—the stories of people like yourself who have made the right choice for so many reasons.

It's the quality of our staff. In every department of our modern facility, it's the superior nursing and physician care we provide. It's the quality of caring that touches our patients' lives in such significant ways. It's the genuine compassion that's an integral part of our approach to psychiatric care. It's the warmth and hope that enhance our fertility center. It's the hand and heart working together making our staff the right choice for so many families.

We're right where you need us most—close to home in a convenient, suburban location that eliminates the problems of parking and traffic jams.

Add to this our commitment to providing state-of-the-art medical equipment, and you start to see the whole picture. It's the picture of a mother's joy. A family's reunion. It's the picture of health. And at New England Memorial, we think that's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer. Three-family use allowed assessed as a three-family dwelling and none argued that the home had been used as a three-family for the majority of its existence.

However, Mary Pronski, sister of James Errico, opposed the petition on the grounds that the third floor had been vacant for a three-year period in the 1970s and therefore was legally "abandoned" and lost any claim to a three-family dwelling status.

Also, Pronski's attorney Robert Keane stressed that the use of the structure as a three-family dwelling has not been consistent with the town's ruling on the structure and is therefore a violation of bylaws.

"It's not easy for me to come and oppose something that a family member is requesting," added Pronski. "It has been an illegal use. If you reward this illegal [use], that's your prerogative."

ZBA Chairman Virginia Hoefling said however, that she saw the opportunity "to cure a problem in zoning" and look at the issue from a fresh perspective. She added that the original ruling was "in error."

Member Ann Matarese added that although technically the homeowners were in violation of bylaws, the owners had "dealt with [the issue] forthrightly."

A large showing of residents and abutters appeared at the hearing, several speaking in favor and several speaking against the measure. ZBA members were also presented with two petitions with opposing signatures numbering 27 and those in favor totalling 64.

However, Hoefling determined a majority of the issues raised were not relevant to the hearing on the existing structure.

Goin' head-to-head

Mark Lawson of Swiss Stone, above, takes a powerful swing in a game against Lombardi's Aug. 15. Lawson was later ejected from the game by umpire Cindy Hemenway for delay of game after he disputed a batters' box call. At left, Hemenway and Swiss Stone coach Tom Dattilo argue over a batters' box ruling that resulted in the ejection of Lawson. Swiss Stone and Lombardi's went the distance in the best-of-five series. Lombardi's took the league title in the final game.

VFW brings home title

The Winchester VFW, behind the solid defense and explosive hitting which carried the team to a 19-3 first place regular season finish, capped a three-game sweep of the B league championship series with a 9-4 victory over Ken's Sub Shop Aug. 15 at Ginn Field.

Scoring in every inning but the second, the VFW exacted revenge on Ken's, who had beaten them in each of the two regular season meetings. The VFW set the tone for the game in the first inning, when shortstop Jim McKenzie killed a Ken's rally with a spectacular, over-the-shoulder catch of a Rich Queen flair into short left field.

After providing the defense for starting pitcher Fran Doherty, the VFW bats went to work. Left fielder Tom Burgess and McKenzie hit singles, and second baseman Dave Bernardini scored Burgess with a gap single to left. Bernardini was thrown out at second trying to stretch his base hit to a double, but the VFW was on the board.

The VFW added to the lead in the third. Right fielder Mike Carney's smash down the first base bag eluded Jim Cassidy, and Burgess continued his torrid hitting, launching a two-run homer over the right center fielder's head for his second round-tripper of the series.

Finding themselves down 2-0 in games and trailing in game three, Ken's refused to die. Cassidy led off the fourth with a base hit, Queen singled him to third and shortstop Chris Morris blasted a wall double to right field, scoring Cassidy and moving Queen to third. Singles by Ben Budds and Mike MacIntosh tied it at three, and when Carney failed to come up with Jim Galipeau's sinking line drive, Budds scored and Ken's had the lead, 4-3.

In the home half of the fourth, the VFW found holes in Ken's defense, as they scored three times to go back on top, 6-4. Bernardini reached and was awarded second on a throwing error by Ken's third baseman, and Dave Tamulynas immediately cashed in the gift with an RBI double to left.

Pitcher Ken Johnson Sr. walked Jim Saunders on four pitches and the next two batters hit routine grounders that were misplayed by Ken's infielders, allowing Tamulynas to score the go-ahead run. Relief pitcher Ken Boyd then hit what looked like a double play ball, but hustling down the line, Boyd narrowly beat the throw to first allowing Saunders to score, upping the score to 6-4.

Tight defense by VFW halted a Ken's rally in the fifth, and Burgess and McKenzie teamed up to put an end to any thoughts of a Ken's comeback in the bottom of the inning. With one out, Burgess lined a single to right center, and McKenzie followed with a towering home run, his second of the series, to slam the door on Ken's.

Burgess led all hitters in the series, going 8-9 with eight RBIs and six runs scored. McKenzie had five hits, five RBIs and three runs scored, Carney and Tamulynas added four hits each, and Saunders had three hits and two walks.

Ken's left center fielder Queen was a thorn in the VFW's side throughout the series. Along with his seven hits in 11 at-bats, Queen played outstanding defense, time and time again robbing batters of sure hits. Cassidy and second baseman Jon Pooler each added four hits in the series.

Under 10s take gold medal

The Carroll Insurance 10-year-old all-stars won gold trophies in the second round medal tournament of the Bay State League.

Winchester's first opponents in the weekend medal round was Belmont on Aug. 18.

The Belmont game was a low-scoring, well-played, close game throughout. Jeff Davis pitched the first three innings. He held Belmont to two hits and one earned run, striking out four and walking only one. Nevertheless, Winchester trailed 2-1 after. The team's run came when Dan White singled, advanced all the way to third on a sacrifice by Kevin Shanahan, and scored on an infield out.

Mark Sullivan came in to pitch in the fourth inning and held Belmont scoreless through the sixth. Unfortunately, Winchester was unable to hit Belmont's pitches and could only scratch out one more run of their own through the sixth. This run scored with Mike Notar cleverly forced a run down and scored.

In the first extra frame, Belmont scored one run. This put Winchester within three outs of the end of their season. But they never said die. They came back to score two runs and win the most exciting game of the season.

Ryan "Pudge" Buchanan got Winchester going when he hit a powerful double to the gap in right center field. After Shanahan reached base, Chris DeSimone singled home Buchanan for the tie. Davis reached on an error to load the bases with one out. Mark Sullivan was then walked to force the winning run.

The gold medal game was played on Aug. 20 against a familiar East Cambridge squad. Winchester has played them three times in recent weeks and has won all three.

Once again, Eat Cambridge's nemesis was Brian "Rocket" Russo, who pitched another complete game victory against them. He gave up only three earned runs while striking out seven. Russo was also a big man with the stick, going three for four with two RBI.

After spotting East Cambridge two runs in the first inning with some sloppy fielding Winchester came back with three of their own in the bottom half of the first. After three innings the score was tied at four. While Russo held East Cambridge scoreless in the fourth and fifth innings, the Winchester offense kicked in to gear up for scoring 10 runs on 11 hits. The final score was Winchester 14, East Cambridge 6.

Others contributing on offense included Davis, who was two-for-three with three RBI, including a big fourth inning, two-RBI triple that broke the game open. Also contributing two hits to this 14 hit attack were Chris DeSimone, Joe Lang and Mark Sullivan.

This was a great team effort. It also showed the terrific comraderie that has developed among these ball players, as was evident at the post-game celebration.

Those savoring the moment included: Buchanan, Davis, d'Entremont, DeSimone, Lang, Notartomaso, Roscillo, Russo, Shanahan, Shannon, Sullivan and White as well as Coaches Davis, Lang and Notartomaso, manager John McGeehan and supportive family and friends.

By virtue of their gold medal victory, Winchester has received a seed in this week's tournament of champions which will be the culmination of this extremely successful and fun summer season.

The tournament of champions pits the best clubs around against each other in a double elimination round.

Juniors' tournament a success

By ALEX POPP
Special to the Star

With the support and cooperation of The Cambridgeport Bank the Winchester Tennis Association held its Annual Junior Tennis Tournament Aug. 13 to 16.

The tournament, which attracted a record 150 players from ages 5 to 15, was a complete success. The quality of sportsmanship, enthusiasm and athletic ability was excellent; the weather was perfect for all four days of the tournament and the Packer Courts were in their best shape ever.

In the boys 15-and-under singles, David Fiorentino defeated his doubles partner Tim Malcolm 6-4, 6-1. Fiorentino got to the finals with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Paul McGeehan, while Malcolm took out Matt Breuer 7-5, 7-5 in the other semis.

In the boys 15-and-under doubles, Fiorentino and Malcolm defeated Matt Breuer and Jeff Lucero 6-2, 6-1.

The girls 15-and-under singles found two twin sisters battling for household bragging rights. Jessica Livada defeated her sister Allyson Livada 6-4, 6-4. Jessica also won the 15-and-under girls doubles with partner Kristina Racek.

The doubles final was so long that it seemed like best of two days instead of two out of three sets. Jessica and Kristina defeated Jennifer Deering and Stephanie Deering 6-4, 7-5, 7-6. The third set tie-breaker was 7-5. The match had so many ups and downs that even after match-point, Livada and Racek had to be told by umpire Rich Rowe that they had won!

That's one of the nice qualities of junior tennis. For the most part, the kids, while they want to win, also have a good time playing. Certainly you do not see adult matches played with a dozen extra balls laying around the court or players taking a 10-minute break at 2-all in the first set. You also will not hear adults complimenting each other during a point played or talking about a movie they saw on change-overs!

In the boys 12-and-under "A" Division, Andrew Sullivan outlasted Kevin Colozzi 6-7, 6-3, 6-1 in a very well-played final. Sullivan took out Paul McGowan 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 to reach the finals while Colozzi out-duelled Justin Wright 3-6, 7-5, 7-5 in the other semi-finals.

The boys 12-and-under "B" Division title went to Mark Rowe who defeated Scott Brooks 6-0, 6-3.

In the boys 12-and-under doubles Kevin Colozzi and Billy Bing defeated Steven Cucinatti and Bobby Marrone 6-3, 6-4.

In the girls 12-and-under singles Alison Popp defended her 1989 championship with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over doubles partner Meghan Rowe. Rowe got to the finals with a 6-3, 6-1 win over Kim Bergin.

In the other semis Popp defeated Natalie Ciulla 6-1, 6-4. From the opening day 40-game round-robin and right through the finals this division produced excellent tennis enthusiasm and conduct.

Popp and Rowe teamed up in doubles to win their second straight title with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Kim Bergin and Natalie Ciulla.

The girls 12-and-under "B" Division saw Julie Rath defeat Liz Breuer 6-2, 6-4 to win the title.

The Winchester Tennis Association tips its hat to tournament directors Joe Tozza and Joe Palumbo for organizing and running the event in their usual competent manner. Many thanks to The Cambridgeport Bank for supplying t-shirts, drinks and balls. Its involvement makes it a special event on the tennis calendar. See you next year.

Carroll Insurance team is tops

The Carroll Insurance 10-year-old all stars earned a bid to the second round medal tournament by finishing in first place in their division with a record of 5 and 1.

Their final two games of the second round of the Bay State League were against East Cambridge.

On Aug. 13, East Cambridge came to Winchester. The home team seemed sluggish in this one but managed to take an early lead and tenaciously held off every East Cambridge bid to take the lead.

Going into the last inning Winchester led 6-3. They proceeded to let East Cambridge into the game. With one hit East Cambridge scored three runs. Winchester was able to dig down deep enough to stop this rally with the score tied and the bases loaded.

Mark Shannon led off the home half of the last inning with a bunt single. With some speedy, aggressive running he advanced all the way to third base on a throwing error. Shannon was alert and aggressive once again when he scored the winning run on a passed ball. Winchester won 7-6.

With this victory Winchester would now be playing for first place in the division and a certain bid to the medal tournament.

Mike Notartomaso had two hits and Chris DeSimone had three hits for Winchester.

On Aug. 15, Winchester traveled to East Cambridge with first place on the line.

The story of this game was the brilliant pitching of Brian Russo and the outstanding hitting of the whole squad.

It was a tightly played game through the first four innings with Winchester holding a 3-2 lead. Despite the close score Winchester was hitting the ball well and it was just a matter of time before they would put together a good rally. That time came in the last two innings when they scored seven runs on seven hits.

East Cambridge came back with their own mild rally, but Brian and the rest of the team weren't going to let this one get away. Winchester won 10-6. This gave them first place in their division, with a 5 and 1 record, and a bid to the second round medal tournament held on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18 and 19.

Brian pitched the complete game, giving up only two earned runs. He struck out nine batters and did not walk any.

On the offensive side, Winchester had 14 hits. Chris "The Decimater" DeSimone led the way with three hits. Brian d'Entremont and Jeff Davis both had two hits and two RBIs. Others contributing two hits to the attack were Joe Lang, Mark Sullivan, and Mike Notartomaso.

Mark Shannon made several fine plays at first base early in the game that helped keep the scoring down.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Lane receives soccer award

Tricia M. Lane received an award for participation in athletics during 1989-90 at Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill.

Lane, a member of the class of 1992, daughter of Dr. Howard and Mrs. Pamela Richter, of Wainwright Lane, a graduate of Marvelwood School, Cornwall, Conn., received an award for second-year participation in women's soccer.

Sayre plays in Scottish tournament

Recently traveling to the Carnoustie Junior Invitational Golf Tournament in Carnoustie, Scotland was Michael Sayre of Winchester. The 22 junior players on the US team, representing clubs throughout the United Sttes, were selected from low handicapped golfers aged 18 and under. Sayre was nominated by the Misquamicut Club in Watch Hill, RI where he has been Junior Club Champion in 1988 and 1989.

Among the courses played by the golfers prior to the tournament at Carnoustie, site of five former British Opens and soon to be site again, will be the Glasgow Gailes Club, The New and The Old Courses at St. Andrews, and the Taymouth Castle Golf Club.

Dunlop Sports, a major sponsor of the US Team, encourages young golfers to experience play in international settings where European players have enjoyed an advantage due to their play on more varied courses which require a higher degree of shot making than do the ultra-manicured US courses.

Vultaggio named most valuable goaltender

Phillip E. Vultaggio of Fenwick Road was named most valuable goaltender, senior division at the conclusion of a recent two-week hockey camp at Phillips Exeter Academy.

School Director and Weslyan Hockey Coach, Dave Schnieder said the award is given each year to the partcipant "who best demonstrates the attributes of excellence as a hockey player as well as a leader both on and off the ice."

Vultaggio had the best goals against average and the best score in the break away contest stopping 75 percent of the shots.

Competition is particularly tough in the senior division with players from all over the US and Canada participating. This was Vultaggio's second MVP in four years.

Inducted

Children of the late Thomas Clavin of Winchester, former football player from Villanova University, hold the plaque noting his induction into the Villanova University Varsity Club Hall of Fame at a recent campus dinner. At left is Michele Nowlan, club official, with Lt. Tom Clavin Jr., Judy and Anne Clavin. Their father was a 1950 Villanova graduate who played linebacker, quarterback and punter for coach Jordan Olivar and played in both the Great Lakes and Harbor bowls. Wildcat teams had a 28-10-2 record in his three seasons.

Pop warner has registration

Registration is still open for those wishing to participate in the Arlington Pop Warner 'A' football program.

Residents of Arlington, Belmont and Winchester are eligible to take part in the program.

The A-team is composed of players 11 to 13-years-old, who weigh less that 135 pounds and 14-year-olds who weigh less than 115 pounds.

Practice sessions are held Monday through Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. at Peirce Field in back of Arlington High School. Interested players should show up at a practice for registration information.

A pep rally will be held on Saturday, Sept. 8, at Buzzell Field and the opening games of the season are scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 9, at Somerville.

COMING EVENTS

Friends of Art sponsor day trip

Join the Winchester Friends of Art on Saturday, Sept. 15 for the "Bricbottom Box Lunch Tour." The tour will include lunch, transportation to and from Bricbottom, a gallery exhibit, and individual meetings with five artists in their studio/living space.

The day begins at 11:30 a.m. in the courtyard of the Church of the Epiphany at the corner of Church Street and Central Street. Guests will enjoy an "artfully" presented box lunch buffet and then board a bus for Bricbottom in Somerville.

Bricbottom was conceived as an artists' haven to afford reasonable work/living space convenient to downtown Boston. The group is fortunate to have five artists who share their work and provide a glimpse of the Boston art scene.

At Bricbottom, the tour begins in their gallery with an exhibition of resident artists. The group then proceeds to visit five artists' quarters: Julia Shepley, David Judelson, Jan Arabus, Phyllis Ewen, and Lea Cyr. All have exhibited widely in the Boston area galleries, museums, and outdoor public spaces. These artists have received numerous awards and grants and have taught extensively at Boston area colleges and universities.

Julia Shepley is a sculptor who carves and constructs pieces out of wood and makes preliminary colored pastel and ink drawings that stand out on their own. She will explain both the source of her imagery and how she works with materials to create a work of art.

David Judelson is a former architect turned sculptor who works in many media, including wood and ceramic. His work uses the principles of architecture and geometry to create both small scale interior work and large scale outdoor site-specific sculpture. He will discuss the commission process and show works in various stages of completion as well as finished works.

Jan Arabus is a printmaker who specializes in large scale figurative monotypes. She will show her print studio as well as complete art work.

Phyllis Ewen is a painter and sculptor who creates painted wall sculptors and colored monotypes.

Lea Cyr is a sculptor who creates painted wall relief and oil and water color monotypes.

Also available during our tour will be a chance to visit a papermaking shop where visitors can appreciate the many textures and varied composition of paper.

The bus will return to the Church of the Epiphany around 4 p.m. The tour promises to be an unusual and stimulating way to start fall. Tickets are $25 per person, and all proceeds support the Winchester School art department, serving the needs of students in Kindergarten through senior high school.

Tickets must be purchased in advance due to limited space. For tickets, or for additional information, call Barbara Potter at 729-1856 or Margaret Reuland at 721-0751.

Northeastern has open house at WHS

Winchester-area residents are invited to an open house hosted by Northeastern University, Wednesday, Sept. 5 from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Winchester High School, to celebrate the University's offering of college courses in Winchester starting this fall.

Winchester High School will become the University's 15th satellite campus for courses in its part-time undergraduate programs. Classes begin Sept. 24 for the fall academic quarter.

Guests at the open house will find information on Northeastern's part-time programs and individual courses in Business, Health, Liberal Arts, Criminal Justice, and Engineering Technology. Academic advisers will be available to help students select courses and plan programs. Information also will be available on financial aid, and on the services of Northeastern's career development and placement dept., and counseling and testing department. Students also may register for fall classes.

In addition, those interested in the bachelor's degree in nursing are invited to a special meeting at 6 p.m. during the open house.

University College, the part-time undergraduate division at Northeastern, operates under a policy of open enrollment, requiring no admission tests. It confers associate's and bachelor's degrees, and academic certificates. Students may also take individual courses without enrolling in a particular academic program.

Starting Monday, Sept. 24, the University will offer courses at the high school Monday and Wednesday evenings. The courses will include accounting, literature, earth science, marketing and marketing management, critical writing, business law, programming in BASIC, math, American history, and personnel management.

A schedule guide to courses will be available at the open house, or can be obtained directly from University College. Most classes meet once a week from 5:50 to 8 p.m. or from 8:05 to 10:15 p.m. for the 12-week fall academic quarter. Two courses are offered in special six-week sessions: Introduction to Business and Management 1 and 2, on Wednesdays from 5:50 to 10:15 p.m., from Sept. 24 to Nov. 3, and from Nov. 5 to Dec. 15, respectively.

For information on the open house, registration, and classes, students may contact University College, Northeastern University, at 437-2400.

Junior volunteers lend a hand at hospital

This summer, more than 130 teenagers from 10 surrounding communities and two European countries joined the Junior Volunteer Program at Winchester Hospital. The Juniors, as they are called, perform a wide variety of important tasks, which are normally performed by the adult volunteers during the fall, winter and spring months.

Many junior volunteers assist in the messenger service and therefore have become known as "the legs of the hospital," says Marie Johnson, director of volunteer services. The Juniors transport, admit and discharge partients, and run errands to and from all departments. It is a job which requires responsible individuals.

Juniors also staff the coffee shop, assist in offices such as medical records, social services and human resources, and help the staff on many nursing units in x-ray and physical therapy.

According to Johnson, this summer, the volunteer department has noticed a dramatic increase in the number of teenagers interested in becoming volunteers. She attributes this to a heightened consciousness among youth to "help out" as well as the downturn in summer job opportunities. "Volunteering is a good chance to meet a variety of people," says Junior Volunteer Alison McKay of Winchester. "Interacting and helping people makes me feel good about what I'm doing."

"Volunteering is a wonderful way to give back to the community," says Johnson. "It is also a great learning experience with the opportunity to explore health related careers." Several college students who are giving serious consideration to pre-med studies are involved in this summer's volunteer program.

"Junior volunteers add a cheerful note to the hospital," says the Junior Volunteer Coordinator Nancy McKersie. "Patients and staff like to see the young people helping out. It is uplifting and pleasant." Siobhan Murray, a junior volunteer from Winchester explains, "The older patients enjoy talking with us; seeing younger people seems to reassure them."

This summer, Juniors are attending informational seminars planned for them by the directors of several hospital departments.

"The sessions give the Juniors a better understanding of how a modern, innovative hospital functions," says McKersie.

Junior volunteers are prepared for their positions through orientation and training sessions, which relate to their specific volunteer tasks. To thank the Juniors for their time and good work, the administration is planning a cook-out for summer's end.

Junior volunteers from Winchester are: Amy Albert, Chrissy Battinelli, Patti Boyle, Susan Cabral, Meri Caci, Lee Clayton, Jeanette Cross, Christine DiPietro, Lauren Esposito, Karin Hofmann, Tamara Jeffrey, Kristen Johnson, Chuck Keefe, Lisa Kenvin, and Drew Lasley.

Also: Debbie Lerman, Sara Lewis, Sarah Lizotte, Michelle Massiglia, Alison McKay, Loretta McWilliams, Juli Millerick, Palah Misra, Siobhan Murray, Erin O'Neil, Alison Otis, Kristen Picariello, Zareen Poonen, Kristine Racek, and Vanessa Weeks.

Providing support

Hospice Care volunteers were recently honored for their contributions to the program. From left are Bessie Hodes and Barbara Weedon. Missing from the photo is Joanne Morgan. The volunteers provide friendship and emotional support to terminally ill patients and their families. Hospice Care, Inc. is a Medicare-certified program which provides a full range of supportive services to people in Winchester and 17 neighboring communities. Applications are now being accepted for the next training program for Hospice volunteers. For more information, call 648-3172 or writer to Hospice Care, Inc., 21 Maple St., Arlington, MA 02174.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Margaret Anne Mikita is wed to Bradley Allen Johnson

Margaret Anne Mikita, daughter of Stan and Jill Mikita of Oakbrook, Ill., and Bradley Allen Johnson, son of Roy and Joan Johnson of Arlington Street, were married July 14.

Father Doug Martis, officiating his first wedding ceremony, wed the couple in a double ring ceremony at Saint Isaac Joques Catholic Church in Hinsdale, Ill. Father Martis performed a very personal and moving ceremony during which the bride and groom faced their guests while saying their vows.

The maid of honor was Bonnie Ewing of Oakbrook, Ill. Bridesmaids were Jane Mikita, sister of the bride; Laura Johnson of Arlington Street, sister of the groom; Claudia Foster of Greenwich, Conn.; Sally Myers of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Alison Quackenbush, also from Brooklyn; and Lynne Turk of San Antonio, Texas, friends of the bride.

The best man was Kevin McGovern of Kings Park, N.Y. Ushers were Steven and Geoffrey Johnson of Arlington Street, brothers of the groom; Christopher Mikita, brother of the bride; William Cleary III of Arlington; John Harding of Weston; and William Clarkey Sayre of Pennsylvania, friends of the groom.

Mary Pinto, a friend of the bride, entertained the guests and calmed the wedding party's nerves with piano music before the ceremony. Other participants were vocal soloist Scott Mikita, brother of the bride; and readers Holly Trooboff of Boston and Martha Johnson of Boston, sister of the groom. The reception was held at the Medinah Country Club, where guests were treated to dinner and dancing in an ornate dining room.

Margaret and Bradley Johnson

The bride, a graduate of Wheelock College, is working towards her master's degree in education at Boston College. She is currently a teacher of both special and regular education in the Boston Public Schools.

The groom, a graduate of the Belmont Hill School and Hamilton College, is a claims specialist at the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company.

Following the wedding, the couple took a trip to Montreal, Canada, and currently resides in Arlington.

Michael Phelan and Andrea Cefali

Andrea Cefali is engaged to Michael R. Phelan

Mrs. Angela R. Cefali announces the engagement of her daughter Andrea to Michael R. Phelan son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Phelan of Reading.

Miss Cefali is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1987 graduate of Salem State College. She is employed by Trodella Electrical Corporation.

Mr. Phelan was a 1983 graduate of Reading High School and is attending Salem State College. He is employed by Arabian Coffee Company.

A September, 1991 wedding is planned.

Margaret Norris Perry weds Donald Allard Jr.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will live in Cambridge.

Margaret Norris Perry

Margaret Norris Perry and Donald John Allard Jr., were married on Saturday, Aug. 11, 1990 at The Annisquam Village Church in Annisquam. The Reverend Harold Sedgewick performed the ceremony.

Sarah Maria Stratton Perry was the maid of honor for her sister. Charles Lynch Allard was the best man for his brother.

Bridesmaids were Dorothy M. French, Carole L. Murko, Sarah L. Stoessel, and Victoria Thomas. Ushers were Donald E. Clark, Michael A. Cavarretta, John J. Dinneen, John Francis, Keith Perkins, and John Lyman Perry, brother of the bride.

The bride, a graduate of St. Paul's School and Smith College has a master's degree in early childhood education from Tufts University. She is a teacher at the Woodland School in Weston. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis Perry of Lincoln and Annisquam. Her father is the Henry Willard Denison Professor of Diplomatic History at the Fletcher School Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. Her mother is assistant to director of the Rowland Institute for Science in Cambridge.

The bridegroom graduated from Winchester High School, Deerfield Academy and Harvard University. He is the promotions director for Lenko Sales, a sporting goods company in Woburn. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Allard of Winchester. His father, a former New England Patriot, is the chief probation officer for the Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge. His mother is a private duty nurse. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynch and the late Mr. and Mrs. Leo Allard, all of Somerville.

Hospital seeks junior volunteers

Young people 14 years and older who are interested in helping at the Winchester Hospital as junior volunteers are encouraged to call the hospital's volunteer office now. Schedules for the fall and winter months are being arranged.

Junior volunteers are needed as messengers from 3 to 5 p.m. weekdays, and on weekends from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. or 12 to 3 p.m. Messengers transport patients and run errands. Reliability is important. There are also openings in other areas of the hospital such as physical therapy, the coffee shop and the nursing units.

Junior volunteers learn while helping. Call the volunteer office at 756-2626 for more information.

Walk-in Center services community

Judy Gray was concerned when her five-week-old daughter, Jessie, broke out in an itchy, red rash. Judy had been accustomed to visiting Choate Hospital, prior to its closing, for all her medical emergencies. The need for immediate medical attention for Jessie, prompted her to do what hundreds of other community members have been doing — she brought Jessie to the Woburn Walk-In Center, an affiliate of Winchester Hospital.

The Woburn Walk-In Center is an non-urgent medical care facility which provides general medical services and offers patients the convenience of on-site X-ray and lab facilities. "It was very convenient," comments Judy Gray, "I felt good about going there."

Mary Dever is 91 years old. Although she's a little frailer than she used to be, she gets around pretty well. Still, she's a little hard of hearing, so when her ears got blocked with wax, she needed medical attention. Her daughter, Mary Gorman, found the Woburn Walk-In Center a convenient place to take her. "She's 91 years old, and the staff was very kind to her. We didn't wait long at all. This was perfect for us."

The Woburn Walk-In Center has treated over 750 patients since its opening in May. From the very young to the elderly, this high quality urgent care center services every age. Though Woburn and surrounding community residents have lost the services of Choate Hospital since its closing in December, they have gained the comprehensive medical care of Winchester Hospital and its affiliated facilities.

Jon L. Jenkins, M.D., Chairman of Emergency Medicine at Winchester Hospital and his team of full-time emergency medicine physicians, staff the Woburn Walk-In Center, as well as another Winchester Hospital affiliate, The Regional Health Center in Wilmington. Dr. Jenkins has been the Director of Emergency Medicine at Winchester Hospital for nearly ten years. He is a 1977 graduate of the Harvard Medical School and board certified in Emergency Medicine and Internal Medicine, as are most of his staff.

As a former Registered Nurse at Choate Hospital, Mary Gorman was very particular in choosing medical attention for her elderly mother. Her confidence in the medical care offered at Winchester Hospital made her feel comfortable about visiting the hospital's affiliated urgent care facility, The Woburn Walk-In Center. "The nurses were wonderful," she said emphatically. "I will definitely go back."

New stock

Maureen Kennedy-Shanahan, left, and Pam Boerner, recently elected chairman of the Winton Club Gift Shop at Winchester Hospital, display ornamental bird houses, some of the new gifts available for sale at the shop. The shop is open Monday through Friday from 9:15 a.m. to 4 p.m., and 7 to 9 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Winton Club donates all profits from the shop to Winchester Hospital.

Hand surgeon opens local practice

William B. Ericson, Jr., M.D. has opened a practice specializing in hand surgery. His offices are located at 92 High Street, Suite 32DH, in Medford and 955 Main Street in Winchester.

Ericson received his undergraduate degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his medical degree from Harvard Medical School.

His postdoctoral training included an internship and residency in general surgery at Brigham and Women's Hospital. He completed a four-year residency in orthopedic surgery at the Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston where he served as Chief Resident in 1989. Ericson recently completed the Tufts Combined Fellowship in Hand Surgery at the New England Baptist Hospital and Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A resident of Medford, Ericson has experience in all types of hand surgery. He has also had special training in arthritic conditions affecting the hand and wrist.

Ericson was a clinical instructor in Orthopedic Surgery at Tufts University School of Medicine. He is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society and the American College of Surgeons and the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

Ericson is currently accepting new patients. For further information, call the Lawrence's Physician Referraline at 396-9250, ext. 1900.

LIBRARY NOTES

Library returns to winter hours

Beginning Sept. 4, the Winchester Public Library will be returning to its winter hours. The hours will be: Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Wednesday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and closed Friday and Sunday. The Children's Room hours will be Monday, 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Did you know that when you purchase books from the book sale table in the library lobby you are helping to support programs like the summer reading program, the Robert Legvold lecture, and the school vacation week activities? The sale of these books raises money for the Friends of the Winchester Public Library, the group that sponsors most of these programs. Now through Sept. 29, the Friends are offering a "three for the price of one" special. Hardcovers are three for 75 cents, and paperbacks are three for 35 cents. Check out the book sale table, and support the Friends.

Volunteers thanked

There are many volunteers who generously donate their time to the Winchester Public Library. This week the children's department would like to offer special appreciation to its volunteers, Margaret Adams, Prita Chatwani, and Emily Barrett.

If your children attended any of the evening family story times for two to six-year-olds during the summer you are familiar with the fine storytelling of Margaret Adams. Margaret has been volunteering as a storyteller at the library since April. A specialist in early childhood education, she is working on her PhD in child development at Tufts University. She is involved with a cooperative research project between Tufts and Harvard, studying ways of measuring children's intelligence.

Prita Chatwani is going into the ninth grade at Matignon High School in Cambridge. As a volunter, she works in the children's room twice a week. Her many jobs include putting the new books on the New book Shelf and preparing craft materials for programs. She is interested in dancing and listening to music.

Emily Barrett has been a volunteer in the Children's Room since March. She is in the seventh grade at McCall Junior High School. Emily has been a big help with putting "holiday stickers" on the children's holiday books; it was a big job involving over 750 books. In her spare time, she babysits, rides horses, and writes stories.

The Children's Department is grateful for the fine work done by these volunteers.

For information of anything mentioned in this column, call the Winchester Public Library's Community Services Librarian at 721-7171.

Protect the little critters living in the forest.

All it takes is one match. Thrown thoughtlessly in the forest. And the little critters who make the forest their playground will never play again.

Remember. Only you can prevent forest fires.

OBITUARIES

Margaret Shane

Margaret G. "Peg" Shane of Pennsylvania died Aug. 18 in Chambersburg Hospital. She was 89.

Born Jan. 14, 1901 in Wilmington, Del., she was the daughter of the late Benjamin Runyon and Esther Palmer Allmond Gulick.

She was a member of the Trinity Episcopal Church.

Her husband, Herman Edward Shane, died Oct. 26, 1972.

Her family's history includes a signer of the United States Constitution. William Blount, brother of her great-great-grandfather Major Reading Blount, signed the Constitution as a delegate from North Carolina.

She is survived by a daughter, Gloria (Mrs. Paul) Saberin of Pennsylvania; a son, John Allmond of South Hamilton; seven grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Aug. 24 at 11 a.m. in the Parish of the Epiphany Church in Winchester. Arrangements are being handled by Lane Funeral Home.

John H. Sullivan

John H. Sullivan of Stoneham, formerly of Winchester, died Aug. 18.

Born in Winchester, he was educated in Winchester schools. He was retired from Stoneham Welding, a company he owned. He was a member of the Plumbers' Union No. 12 and the Knights of Columbus Council 489 in Stoneham.

He is survived by his wife, Miriam E. (Drew) Sullivan; a son, John J. Sullivan of Louisiana; four daughters, Elizabeth A. Morris of Grand Isle, Vt., Miriam F. Kelley of East Barrington, N.H., Patricia J. Edgecomb of Stoneham and Jeanne M. Johnson of Wilmington; three brothers, Timothy and Joseph, both of Woburn, and James Sullivan of Melrose; 20 grandchildren and many great-grandchildren.

He was also the brother of the late Miriam Feeney and Richard Sullivan.

A funeral was held from the A.E. Finnegan & Son Funeral Home For Funerals in Stoneham Aug. 21, followed by a funeral Mass at St. Patrick's Church. Burial took place at Calvary Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the A.E. Finnegan & Son Funeral Home.

Mary Kennedy

Mary G. Kennedy of Middlesex Street died Aug. 20 at Winchester Hospital. She was 71.

Miss Kennedy, the daughter of the late Patrick J. and Mary A. (Judge) Kennedy, was a life-long resident of Winchester. She was an accounts receivable bookkeeper for Deland Gibson Meade Gale Inc. of Boston. She also worked for Prescott & Son of Malden and Arnold Fisher, a wholesale florist.

Miss Kennedy leaves her friends Gail Levoshko of Billerica, and Steve Shab of West Portland, Maine.

She was the sister of the late Catherine Kennedy and the friend of the late William Daily.

A funeral Mass was said at Saint Mary's Church on Aug. 22 and services were concluded with burial at Calvary Cemetery in Woburn. Arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Service of Main Street.

The Lesley Ellis School, located in East Arlington, is an early education center providing full and part-time programs for children ages 18 months through 6 years.

A full day kindergarten classroom has just recently been added to the programs being offered. The school, which was established in the early 1900s has a long history of excellence and is considered to be one of the area's model early childhood programs. The school provides a developmental curriculum which highlights each child's individual learning style. There is a strong commitment to maintaining a multicultural, multi-racial, and international student body and the curriculum is designed to support this commitment.

Faculty, student teachers, and interns facilitate and extend each child's learning through child-centered activity areas. Hands-on experiences are emphasized as the source for building skills and developing a curiosity for learning. The warmth, rapport and expertise of the staff comprise an important feature of the program. Many teachers have been with the program for more than five years and most have either an undergraduate or graduate degree in early childhood education.

Classroom openings are still available. Please call (617) 641-2424 to schedule a visit.

Business Spotlight

Always Green Landscaping

David Cranston of Always Green Landscaping puts the same effort and pride into caring for his customers' lawns as he would for his own. When mowing, for example, Cranston and his crew not only cut the grass, trim edges and clean off walkways, they carefully bundle all the clippings and take them away. The same attention to detail is also paid in carrrying out the company's other services which include lawn construction, shrub and tree work and yard clean-ups as well as fertilizing and weed control. For a free estimate on quality work performed by an experienced landscaper, call 484-3730.

- For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays

BEST BUYS
Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 4 line ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES
To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. Four lines for $13.00; $2.00 for each additional line. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT
Most classified line ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE
The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS
Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

Day care dilemmas

Financial concerns are prompting families to cut back on care, work schedules

By Maureen McLellan
STAFF WRITER

It was not too long ago that working parents were scrambling to find open day care slots for their children and then swallowing the cost of placements, relieved to have nailed down a child care plan.

But these days it is the day care providers who are doing much of the scrambling.

This is due largely to the growing financial pressures on families faced with exorbitant child care expenses, say industry specialists.

While most people can now find an infant or pre-school day care opening in a center or home setting in suburban communities, they are scrutinizing their finances more than ever to determine whether it's worth it to use day care at all, given the large bite it takes out of their incomes.

And what parents are deciding, the experts say, is that they still want day care, but they are demanding it be provided in more creative and flexible ways to reduce the financial burden.

Although day care providers generally find it easier to offer just full-time care, they are nevertheless trying to respond to individual needs.

Some people who can afford to leave their jobs are also dropping out of day care altogether, and many mothers and fathers are cutting back on their work schedules because of stress and day care costs.

Faye DiBona, director of the Bright Horizons Day Care Center in the Bay Colony Corporate Center in Waltham, said that as recently as three years ago, the vast majority of her day care slots were full-time. Now most of the infants and toddlers go to day care

Guidelines for effective delegation

By Paula Ancona
SCRIPPS HOWARD NEWS SERVICE

How do you know if you're not delegating enough?

■ Do you usually work overtime, take work home and miss deadlines?

■ Do you have little time left for planning and other management duties?

■ Has your employees' morale slipped? Have they stopped bringing ideas to you? Do they defer most decisions to you?

If you've answered yes to most of those questions, you probably aren't delegating enough. And that means you're probably not developing yourself or your subordinates.

Here are some guidelines for effective delegation:

■ Have a daily To Delegate list as well as a To Do list. Ask yourself, "Who else can do this?"

■ These tasks are easy to delegate: research, scheduling, routine tasks, report-writing.

■ Avoid delegating these tasks: performance and morale problems, praise, performance reviews, planning, coaching, assignments your boss asked you to do personally. Also, don't delegate tasks you dislike. It builds resentment.

■ Don't expect subordinates to be perfect. Even if you can do the job better than they can at first, you're not perfect either. Tell them you'll tolerate failure if they learn from it.

■ Set clear deadlines for progress reports and completion.

■ Don't let subordinates delegate work back up to you. Don't agree to solve their problems. Instead, ask for solutions.

■ Make sure employees have authority to do the task right before you delegate. Make them accountable for the results.

■ Make sure you know employees' strengths before you delegate. Pair the right person with the right task. A haphazard match sets everyone up for failure.

■ To make sure employees understand the task, ask them to repeat your directions. Don't just ask: "Do you understand?"

Toy design

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK — The need for skilled designers who understand design, production and marketing of toys and games has spawned the first toy design degree program in the United States.

The Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City is offering its first classes toward a toy design degree this fall, backed with the resources of the industry trade group, the Toy Manufacturers of America.

With annual retail sales of $12.5 billion, American toy manufacturers are targeting development of talent in the field for the next five years, according to TMA. The industry currently employs about 50,000 people.

F.I.T. says the curriculum will emphasize conceptual and technical design development, knowledge of safety and regulatory requirements, child psychology, production, packaging, and marketing. Internships among the 250 American toy and games companies will be part of the program.

Day care dilemmas

Financial concerns are prompting families to cut back on care, work schedules

Day care, From 1 part-time, she said.

"We have a much more knowledgeable consumer," DiBona said. "I've also found they're a wiser consumer ... People used to just buy full-time care. Now they come in and they know the cost, and they ask about part-time care. They're buying what they can afford."

This means more working parents are asking their employers for fewer hours or different schedules and getting them, DiBona said.

"We're definitely seeing a trend for people who can afford to, working less," said Wendy Boynton Surr, child care coordinator for the city of Newton and executive director of the Newton Child Care Fund.

"Probably in the next two years, most of the growth will be in family day care because companies are going to put day care centers on hold."

Ronna Cohen,
DAYCARE REFERRAL SERVICES

DiBona said families' budgetary concerns are heightened this year in light of the state's lackluster economy.

DiBona, who has worked in child care for 12 years, said the situation is reflected most in infant care, which is the most expensive type.

"I never thought I would have to market an infant care program as much," she said.

Ronna Cohen, president of Daycare Referral Services in Framingham, agreed affordability is the key issue for families considering or using day care nowadays.

She pointed out that full-time infant care openings average $195 to $230 for one child, while day care for two or three children can cost $9,000 to $13,000 annually.

"Massachusetts currently has the most expensive day care in the country," Cohen said.

Cohen's company has been in business since 1984 and now works with 30 companies to help their employees find appropriate day care 8 from nannies and au pairs to family day care and after-school baby sitters.

Toddlers enjoy a lunch break at Bright Horizons Day Care in Waltham. NEWS-TRANSCRIPT PHOTO BY CAROLYN HINE

She said financial pressures are leading more people to explore alternative types of care from the traditional day care center. For those with high incomes, nannies and au pairs who work in families' homes and will care for children during vacations and illnesses are often ideal.

Cohen said, however, that the majority of parents do not have this luxury.

"Most say, 'I don't have an option ... They're looking to us for creative solutions," said Cohen.

Family day care, which refers to providers who take children into their homes during the day, is a popular and often less expensive form of child care, according to Cohen.

Statistics from the Partnership Group in Lansdale, Pa., a national child care referral agency, indicate 65 percent of children in day care are in family settings, 25 percent are in day care centers, 3 percent are cared for in their own homes and 7 percent care for themselves.

In addition, Cohen said, day care specialists believe that for every licensed family day care facility, there are five such unlicensed homes.

"Probably in the next two years, most of the growth will be in family day care because companies are going to put day care centers on hold," she said.

Boynton Surr said the effects of day care costs are evident even in an affluent city like Newton.

The Child Care Fund offers $1,000 day care subsidies to families who meet income guidelines. Applications to the fund jumped 39 percent this year, Boynton Surr said, and money was not available for many of those in need.

Both Boynton Surr and DiBona noted cuts to state day care subsidies are having a devastating effect on families struggling to stay above the poverty line.

"It's sad because it's hitting women who had a job for a couple of years ... They're the ones who have had their child care subsidies cut," said DiBona.

Job Hunting STEP BY STEP

Looking for a job can be an exercise in frustration or an exciting challenge, depending on how it's approached. Planning your approach step by step can lead to a successful outcome.

1. The Resume

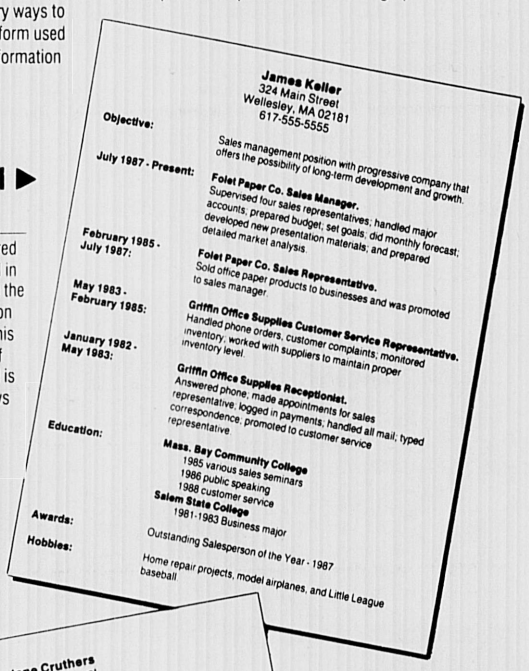

An employer will get many responses to an advertisement. He or she often will review resumes first to decide which applicants are to be interviewed.

A resume is an introduction. It should be concise (one page if possible) and easy to read. Avoid irrelevant information such as age, height, weight, family details and detailed military information (date, highest rank, and brief description of responsibilities are enough.)

There are two primary ways to prepare a resume. The form used may be based on the information to be presented.

Chronological ▶ Resume

This resume is prepared with experience listed in sequence starting with the current or last position and working back. This is especially good if the work background is consistent and shows good progression from early jobs to the present.

◀ Functional Resume

When there is a variety of unrelated job experiences or when different skill areas need to be emphasized, the best resume format to use is the functional resume. In this format, the information is presented in a way that makes it easy for the employer to pick out your area of expertise.

2. Personal Assessment

What can I do? What do I want to do? What do I do best?

These are questions that need to be answered. You can't sell yourself until you know your product well! The period between jobs is a good time to analyze strengths, weaknesses, likes and dislikes.

Here is a simple project:

List all the work duties you have had in the past. The list probably will be varied and long. That's fine. Add anything that comes to mind, no matter how small.

Now, highlight all the things on the list you really enjoy doing. Next, check all the things you were successful doing. Ideally, there will be some overlapping.

Now, list all the skills required to do the highlighted tasks.

	DUTIES	SKILLS
	order parts	use catalog/fill out forms
	deliver parts	driving/map reading
	arrange for courtesy pickups	scheduling/communication
	repair transmissions	mechanical
	greet customers	communication
	operate forklift	driving
✓	do inventory	math
✓	operate computer to monitor parts flow	math/typing
	do monthly sales totals	math
	sell additional services	communications/sales
✓	repair warehouse equipment	mechanics
	pack and ship orders	detail/manual dexterity
✓	do monthly forecast	math
	keep customer records	organizational
	prepare sales target lists	organizational
	supervise loaders	communication/leadership

What this shows you is that your favorite duties are the ones that require math skills. Your strongest areas were math and mechanics.

This understanding will make it easier to explain your strengths to an interviewer. The jobs that are geared toward using these skills would be the most suitable and satisfying.

3. Research

Knowing about the company with which you are interviewing will set you apart from most of the others being interviewed. Spending time to find out about the services, products, market area, primary concerns, focus and financial history will make you a concerned and knowledgeable applicant.

Once an interview is scheduled, find out as much as you can. There are some tools in the library that make getting information easier than you may imagine. Check:

- Standard and Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives
- The Thomas Register of American Manufacturing and Thomas Register File
- Moody's (lists more than 20,000 corporations)
- The Million Dollar Directory and The Career Guide by Dun and Bradstreet offer information on companies in alphabetical order, by career field and geographical area. On microfiche is another listing of local business. Check with your local librarian if you need help. There are many other books, magazines and even videos and a computer available for information gathering.

Another good source is the chamber of commerce. Chambers will have not only a list of all chamber members, with product and service information, but a list of manufacturers.

With the information you've accumulated, you can ask questions relevant to that company. During your interview, mention what you've learned . The interviewer will be impressed with your interest. Do your homework. It will pay off.

Job Services

There are free job services available through the Mass. Dept. of Employment and Training. Some "job centers" in this area include:

Framingham: 46 Park St. 508-875-5237.
Norwood: 17 Center St. 762-9450.
Roslindale: 980 American Legion Highway 469-4620.
Waltham: 119 School St. 899-9340.

Each office provides all or most of the following services free of charge:

- Job search workshops on interviewing and resume writing.
- Job referrals and an automated job list system. Some 25,000 companies in Massachusetts list jobs with the state.
- Use of resource office equipment for a job search, such as fax and copy machines, personal computers and telephones.
- Employment counseling, career assessment and skill transferability assessment.
- Written reference materials on jobs and industries.
- Labor market information and data on occupational trends. A reference document titled "90 jobs for the 1990s" is now available.
- Each job center also has information about career services provided by local agencies, colleges and libraries in the service area.

4. The Interview

Don't underestimate first impressions. Being properly dressed won't get you the job, but being poorly dressed can certainly cause you to lose it.

It's often hard to know exactly what is appropriate for a particular company. For a professional position, it's safe to wear a suit. For other positions, if you are familiar with the company, dress as people do in that position. If you're not sure, play it safe. Dress slightly more formally than what the position calls for. Example: When interviewing for a warehouse position that probably requires jeans, wear slacks and a nice sport shirt.

Get there early. This will allow you time to fill out an application and relax a few minutes. It also will give you a chance to visit with the receptionist. One often can get a real feeling for the office environment and its mood. Are the people cheerful? Do they seem to enjoy being there? Do you get a feeling that they are an efficient group?

When called in, stand up, smile and shake hands. YOU'RE ON! Most interviewers want you to be comfortable and will help you relax. They want you to be able to be at your best.

Now you can go into detail about the information in your resume. You've analyzed your strengths; tie them in with your accomplishments that are examples of those strengths. Personal information is OK because it gives a better picture of who you are, but keep it brief. Be positive about past jobs. You don't have to belittle others to sell yourself. If there has been a problem with a past job that needs to be discussed, do it in a factual manner and without emotion.

Interviewing actually should be an exchange of information. Just as the employer wants to know your experience and what you can bring to the company, you will want to know about the company and the position available. This exchange of information is critical if there is to be a proper fit. Use your judgment about how and when to ask questions. You don't want the interviewer to feel interrogated. You may want to ask some of the questions listed below.

Questions to ask the employer

- What is the last person who had this job doing?
- What are the job responsibilities?
- What skills are most important for the job?
- What kind of training is provided?
- What is the company's history?
- What are the company's goals?
- Where does the job lead?
- What is the salary range?
- What benefits are offered?
- Does the company have a personnel and procedures manual?
- What are the strengths and weaknesses of the supervisor? (Don't be afraid to ask.)
- What is the management style of the company?

Questions to ask yourself

- Do I understand the job responsibilities?
- Is the job location within a comfortable driving radius?
- Does the personality of the company fit with mine?
- Does the position fit with my goals?
- If moving to another location, does the change in salary fit with the difference in the cost of living?

5. Follow-up

When the interview is over, the interviewing process is still incomplete.

A thank-you note should be sent to the interviewer. You may include something you have forgotten to mention during the interview. If you don't have anything to add, restate your reason for feeling you are a good candidate for the position. Emphasize again your interest in the job.

Getting the job you want requires planning, determination and follow through. With the proper effort, the reward will be a fulfilling part of your life, a great job.

Mitsakos looks to year ahead

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

September marks the beginning of the school year, and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Charles Mitsakos is looking ahead with optimism.

"One of the exciting things about education is there is a new beginning every September," Mitsakos said. "You're influenced by the past, but you look to the future with optimism. That optimism is also influenced by the 2800 students we serve who don't look back either."

But with each passing year comes change. Mitsakos said the most significant change in the school system is the establishment of the McCall Middle School. It is a historical change in Winchester, said Mitsakos, since the town has had a long tradition of junior and senior high schools.

"Two-thirds of the students at McCall are new," he added. Mitsakos noted that staff members have participated in a number of workshops in an effort to get ready for the new school year.

"The rooms are ready, the chairs are ordered and in place, and we're ready to go," Mitsakos said. The general feeling from parents, students and teachers is a positive one, he said.

"They're ready, they're anxious and they're a little nervous, but they're excited about the move," Mitsakos added.

McCall will also have a new assistant principal this year, former assistant principal at the high school Kristine Burke. Burke is not new to the system, and has been on board at McCall for the last few weeks working with Principal Evander French to get things ready.

While there are no significant program changes in the 1990-91 school year, Mitsakos said there will be an emphasis on staff development throughout the year, particularly at the elementary level. He said the elementary science program, in place for the past 20 years, will be seriously looked at to see if variations should be made.

"There's going to be a real attempt during the year to focus on ways people can work together — collegial cooperation," he said. Teachers and administrators will address the question of team teaching and will discuss ways for teachers to "enhance a sense of professionalism and cooperation," he added.

Another newcomer to Winchester schools is recently-appointed Lincoln School Principal Bruce MacDonald. "After an emotionally difficult year, hopefully he will bring some stability of scrts to the school," Mitsakos said.

At the high school level, John Joyce will serve as the new head of the math department, while William Marks will take the helm in the science department. "They [both] bring a strong academic background as well as an understanding of the system [to their positions]," said Mitsakos.

There are also six new staff members within the school system due to resignations and retirements. They are: Jane Johnson of Burlington, an early childhood teacher at Lynch; Sally Squeglia of Somerville, a third grade teacher at Lynch; Pamela Levine of Medford, a first grade teacher at Vinson Owen; Virginia Laats of Winchester, a home economics coordinator/teacher at the high school; Deborah Kehoe of Natick, a kindergarten teacher at Lincoln; Deborah Brown of Winchester, a kindergarten teacher at Lynch; and Rebecca S. Hayden of Cambridge, a part-time German teacher at the high school.

Half-time elementary library coordinators at Vinson Owen School will include two half-time positions, filled by newcomers Patricia Malcom and Patricia DiFranco, both of Winchester.

John Donohue will lead the football team on the field this year, aided by recently appointed assistant coaches Tom Porell and Paul Manganaro.

Another change Mitsakos cited is a scheduling change at the high school. Students will attend classes based on a seven-day schedule, providing for longer class

Lunch made healthy

By LAURA JOHNSON
Special to the Star

Most parents have witnessed their kids' aversion to any food seeming even remotely good for them. But parents needn't resort to a strict diet of broccoli and Brussels sprouts to give their kids healthy meals.

By following the guidelines provided by Helen Long, a registered dietician at Winchester Hospital, students can have a healthy lunch they won't be anxious to trade for a Twinkie.

According to Long, those making lunches should try to avoid the high fat and sodium that is often found in processed foods. Bologna and salami are two meats to stay away from, and good alternatives are sliced roast beef, turkey, tuna, or lean ham, said Long. Recommended light cheeses are "Lite Line" by Bordens, Laughing Cow reduced calorie wedges, and "Solo" brand cheeses, she added.

Of course, the tried and true peanut butter and jelly sandwich is always a good choice, noted Long, and suggested that variations to try are peanut butter with bananas or raisins. Whole grain breads such as wheat bread are best for sandwiches, and jams or jellies should be mostly fruit with little sugar, she advised.

According to Long, juice or low fat milk are best bets for beverages. However, parents must be

Discounts mark five-year plan

Cable agreement close at hand

By DAVID WALSH
Special to the Star

Discounts and a shortened contract are highlights in a potential licensing agreement between the town and Continental Cablevision, say Cable Advisory Committee members.

The committee's Aug. 27 meeting was the last step in the licensing process before a scheduled public hearing by he Board of Selectmen on Sept. 10.

Committee members expressed their satisfaction with the terms of the license, and cited senior-citizen discounts, annual-payment discounts and a five-year contract as the most significant provisions.

Winchester's senior citizens age 65 and older who subscribe to cable will now be entitled to a 5-percent discount on expanded basic cable service, provided they are the head of the household and live at a permanent address.

In addition, under the terms of the new license, those senior citizens eligible for the initial 5-percent discount who receive Medicaid benefits would be entitled to receive an additional 5-percent discount from their current cable subscriber's fees.

The annual-payment discount offers cable subscribers a one-month discount for paying the year's bill in advance. According to the license, this discount is subject to any rate increases or programming charges during the year.

However, for all the benefits of the new contract, Winchester continues to find itself in a situation similar to that of other cities and towns across the country, members noted. In the past, many municipalities have been faced with unregulated, sometimes sharp, rate increases by the cable industry.

With regard to the regulation of cable subscription rates, Committee Member Arthur Di Natale asked, "Is the public aware that factors such as rates and programming are factors that are largely controlled on the federal level? I don't think most people realize that."

Asked about the ongoing evaluation of the cable industry, currently in committee in the United States Congress, Di Natale said he believes cable subscribing communities would be better served "if the people in Washington paid more attention to the needs of their constituency" with regard to this issue.

Di Natale, commenting on the lengthy negotiation process between the Cable Advisory Committee and Continental Cablevision said, "We — the committee — worked hard; the whole committee worked assiduously to come up with this contract."

The section of the contract dealing with rate increases (secion 4.4) reads: "The Issuing Authority

DPW plans to replace conveyor belt

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

The infamous "Saturday Crunch" at the transfer station may get worse for several weeks this fall during a replacement of the trash conveyor belt.

But Department of Public Works Director Anthony Celli says the updated belt will keep things moving in the future.

Celli said the construction schedule has been finalized and beginning the week of Sept. 24, the belt will be out of commission. During this time, residents are encouraged to make their way to the transfer station on weekdays to alleviate the congestion that is common on weekends, said Celli.

Also, instead of placing trash on the belt, residents will be asked to throw their trash into trucks, which will be situated in the same area. Trash will still be transported to North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC), a state-of-the-art waste-to-energy facility in North Andover.

Celli added that residents are being asked to bag any loose trash they may have before bringing it to the transfer station. Loose trash will still be accepted however, said Celli.

After a seven-week installation period, the new conveyor belt will be up and running, he added. Celli said he hopes the system will be back on-line the week of Nov. 5, the date targeted for completion.

He added that the new conveyor belt will peform the same function but will "look better and run better."

Winfred Way issue still undecided

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

School Committee members will seek the opinion of Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia before deciding whether any children who move into 45 Winfred Way will attend school in Winchester or Medford.

At the last two School Committee meetings, members have been unable to decide or gather needed information on the house that straddles the municipal border.

The home is on the market. Prospective buyers — and the sellers — are anxious to determine the home's status.

For the past 31 years, the home has had a Winchester address. The residents have registered to vote, paid motor vehicle excise tax and sent their children to school in Winchester. Building permits have also been obtained through the Winchester Building Department.

Carol Johnson of Hunneman Realty noted that the house's address is

When duty calls, radiologist will respond

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

When the temperature got a bit chilly recently, Dr. Philip E. Steeves, a radiologist at Winchester Hospital, was the last person to complain. For all Steeves knows, he could be battling the heat of Saudi Arabia before the week is out.

But duty hasn't called yet for Steeves, a Wenham resident and flight surgeon in the Massachusetts Air National Guard.

At any time during the current Middle East crisis, Steeves could be summoned by President George Bush to serve in Saudi Arabia or fill in at hospitals in the United States. And, although Steeves is packed and ready to go at a moment's notice, there's a chance, too, that he won't be called at all.

Steeves, a Foxboro native, has been at Winchester Hospital since 1976. As a flight surgeon, Steeves' military training includes treatment

What's open, what's closed on Labor Day

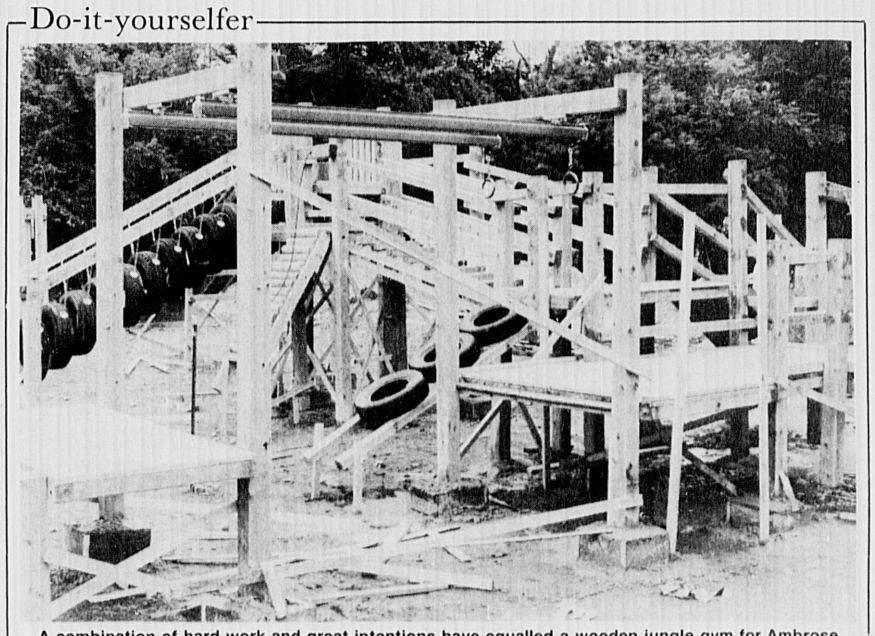

In observance of Labor Day, town offices, schools, the libraries, post offices and most businesses will be closed on Monday.

Also, because of the holiday The Star will have early deadlines. All copy for inclusion in the Sept. 6 issue of the paper must be received at the 27 Waterfield Road office by 3 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31. No late copy will be accepted.

Candidates for state offices are reminded the Sept. 6 issue is the last issue releases will be accepted before the Sept. 18 primary. The advertising deadline for The Star is 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31. The deadline for the What's Up section is Thursday, Aug. 30 at 3 p.m.

Public schools in Winchester will open Wednesday, Sept. 5. (See related story.)

Oak Knoll talks, debate continue

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Star Editor

Conservation Commissioners and planners of the Oak Knoll project are hoping to determine exactly what laws apply to a proposed subdivision on Brooks Street.

The commission continued a public hearing Monday night to discuss the proposal in an effort to come closer to a decision on whether or not the group has jurisdiction under the state Wetlands Protection Act and/or the town's bylaws. Landowner Stephen Parkhurst has proposed developing the land, which lies along Brooks Street on the southeast side of town, and borders the town forest.

According to Engineer Judith Nitsch, president of Judith Nitsch Engineering Inc. in Boston, additional surveys have been done on the land that have determined the area is a large swale. A swale is generally an elongated, gentle depression of marshy land that does not have definite banks.

Nitsch said there is wetland vegetation on the parcel, as well as a possible intermittent stream. However, Nitsch said the topography of the land is not depressed, as would be expected.

"For all intents and purposes, it's flat," Nitsch told commissioners. Nitsch also said there are no wetlands soils in this area.

When it rains, water from the 16-acre watershed in the Town Forest flows down the swale, into the intermittent stream, and down the backside of Brooks Street, said Nitsch. Neighbors had voiced concern in the past that the project would only add to the water flowing through their yards.

However, installing a proposed drainage line to route the water to the system on West Chardon Road would address that problem, Nitsch said.

Nitsch said her studies have not shown the area would be subject to state regulations. However, it may come under the town's bylaws.

Conservation Administrator Elaine Vreeland said the commission must decide whether it is isolated land subject to flooding or if it is bordering vegetated wetlands. The latter would trigger the state act.

Nitsch said the vegetated wetland has to border on a stream to be regulated under state law, and added she does not perceive this water flow to be a stream. However, there was some disagreement on this point.

Commissioner Jerome Cura questioned whether or not the water flow could be an intermittent stream. "If the commission thinks that's a stream, then the commission thinks it's bordering a vegetated wetland.

"We have hinged other cases before us on the existence of an intermittent stream," Cura said. He questioned the definition of an intermittent stream. "Must it go to a permanent body [of water]?" he asked.

While Nitsch said she understood, according to state regulations, the water had to flow "to something," commissioners agreed to consult the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commissions (MACC) on the issue of a definition. Vreeland said the state's definition is unclear.

Parkhurst, who proposes the development, said, "Our contention would be it is not an intermittent stream because there are no banks."

"If the committee decides it is a stream, I'd like the commission to help me figure out the limits of the resource area," said Nitsch.

Commissioners are expected to render a decision at their Sept. 10 meeting.

POLICE LOG

Tuesday, Aug. 28
4:55 a.m.
Officers Daniel Perenick and Carl Fuller were called to Russell Road on a report of a larceny from a motor vehicle.

On arrival the officers spoke with the owner's husband who told police the break occurred sometime after 8 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 27.

The tires, rims and stereo were stolen from the car, said police reports. An investigation continues.

Monday, Aug. 27
11:56 p.m.
Officer Arthur Houllahan was dispatched to a South Border Road home for a possible breaking and entering. The owner of the home told police he drove into the driveway and saw a red station wagon parked there.

According to police reports, when the owner entered the house, the alarm was sounding. A man then sped out of the driveway and headed south on South Border Road toward Medford. Police determined entry was gained through an upstairs window.

Medford and MDC Police were alerted.

5:51 p.m.
Officer Kurt Ellis was dispatched to Swanton Street to speak with an individual concerning a past breaking and entering.

The owner told police the break occurred in the storage area in the basement of the Parkview Condominiums. Police determined the intruder apparently pryed the steel, which secured the lock to the storage chest, and removed the padlock.

Several items were found to be missing, said police reports.

5:28 p.m.
Officer Thomas Romeo responded to a reported fight in progress on Charles Road. The two men were reportedly attacking one another with bats and machetes, said police reports.

Officers James Covino, John Guarente, James Gray, Paul Deluca and James Pierce were also dispatched to the scene.

On their arrival, the two men were separated but continued to yell at one another, reports said.

Witnesses at the scene related the incident to police. Apparently, the first man's son was banging a ball against the second man's front door, said neighbors. The boy was asked to stop and when he didn't, the second man yelled at him, according to police records.

The first man then came over to the second man's home and hit him, witnesses told police. The second man attempted to hit the first man, but he fled back to his home. When the first man reappeared, he was carrying a machete and chased the second man and his girlfriend around their home, witnesses told police.

The first man then went outside to the girlfriend's car and began to strike the vehicle with the machete, said neighbors to police.

Both men then reappeared with bats, said witnesses. Police confiscated all weapons and advised the men to stay away from each other. Both men told police they would seek complaint charges against each other.

Sunday, Aug. 26
12:38 a.m.
Officer Philip Coss was called to the scene of a one-car accident on Johnson Road.

The driver of the car, a 20-year-old Thornberry Road man, told police he had been travelling east on Johnson Road when he swerved to avoid a raccoon and struck the curb at the intersection of Johnson and Bigelow roads.

The car sustained damage to the left front fender, right rear taillight and the two left tires were blown, said police reports.

time per period, and a break from each class once every seven days.

As the town continues to address a difficult financial situation, Mitsakos said he hopes officials will "get a handle on where we are going."

As a result of the town's financial situation, School Committee members voted last spring to retain athletic fees. Each team participant will be charged a $35 transportation fee per sport. "We will maintain a full athletic program, assuming there are students to support it," said Mitsakos.

"The real overriding issue again is going to be to provide sufficient revenue to maintain the services [the town has come to expect]," he added.

As the school year begins, local teachers and secretaries are still without a contract. "Hopefully that can be resolved," Mitsakos said. A bargaining session is scheduled for tonight, Aug. 30.

One issue that has school administrators concerned is rising oil prices due to the Middle East conflict — a factor that could have an impact on the budget.

"We are monitoring it carefully," Mitsakos said. Oil tanks were topped at the end of last year in the elementary schools and McCall. Mitsakos said the school department may look into switching the high school furnace to gas. The current system has the capacity to run on oil and/or gas.

"It's like opening another show. It's a new beginning," said Mitsakos of the new school year. "There are some new kids, some new staff [members] ... If you approach it that way, it's exciting. It doesn't mean issues go away.

"You learn from the past, and you learn to take a risk and move ahead," he said.

Making lunch

wary of juice boxes because many of them contain very little actual juice. Products such as Hawaiian Punch, Hi-C, and Cool-Aid are mostly sugar or corn syrup, she said.

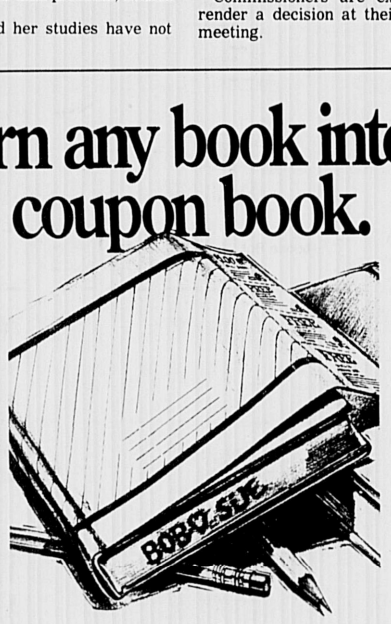

Long indicated that labels can be very helpful. Juices that list corn sweeteners, artificial sweeteners or high fructose are unlikely to be 100 percent juice, she pointed out. Steer clear of products called "fruit drink," "juice beverage" or "juice cocktail," she added.

Heaps of sugar or salt aren't necessary to satisfy a child's craving for a snack. Long recommended graham crackers, vanilla wafers, animal crackers or ginger snaps for low fat snacks. Long added that angel food cake, popcorn, cut vegetables and fresh fruits are also much healthier alternatives to Ding Dongs and Ho-Hos.

The Right Place At The Right Time?

"Some people always seem to be in the right place at the right time. They get all the lucky breaks."

This statement is a common sentiment in our society. But it isn't accurate. Life is not a series of circumstances, with some getting the breaks and others being broken. In reality, life is a series of choices, not circumstances.

Your personal success or failure comes down to the decisions you make.

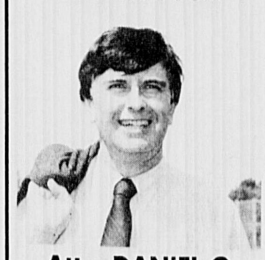

Any good strategist will tell you that right decisions require right information. We call it true perspective.

Jesus said, "When the Spirit of truth is come, He will guide you into all truth ... and He will show you things to come." (John 16:13)

The Holy Spirit has come. Now you can come to a school where He will help you gain a true perspective!

Children's Own license denied by zoning board

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Children's Own School Director Rosina Culinane will need to keep enrollment at her school to 65 students after being denied a special permit to increase that number to 79.

Culinane appeared before the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) on Aug. 21 to request an increase in the enrollment of the private school to accommodate 14 more pupils.

But ZBA members voted against relief on the grounds that Culinane had not solicited a written opinion in regards to the building's fire safety from Fire Chief Charles McNutt or a traffic safety study from Safety Officer Kevin Mawn.

The school, which has been in operation for 25 years in Winchester, has helped ease the increasing demand for pre-school education in town. Children's Own is an all-day private school for children ages three to six and operates with the Montessori philosophy.

The 14-student increase would not have changed the number of classrooms or increased the eight-person teaching staff within the school. Culinane said an increase in students was necessary to keep a balance of different age groups, in keeping with the Montessori method.

Culinane also brought her request to the ZBA in hopes of rectifying a violation at the school last year. The director admitted she had unwittingly broken health codes by enrolling 72 pupils in the 1989-90 school year.

When Culinane became aware of the problem however, she immediately went before the Board of Health to bring attention to the violation and work with the town boards.

Health Director Joseph Tabbi at that time suggested she appear before the ZBA to gain a special permit.

But ZBA members said they felt uneasy about possible safety issues with the increase in students.

"I would be more comfortable with this if I knew the Fire Chief's opinion and the Safety Officer's [opinion,]" said ZBA Chairman Virginia Hoefling.

Culinane however, said she is well aware of the school's safety responsibility and noted that the increase of cars with 14 new students would be minimal. With carpooling and families with more than one student at the school, Culinane said the increase in vehicles would be far less than 14.

She noted that parents are asked to stay in their vehicles during these times and the students are escorted out of the cars by teaching staff.

Culinane also said the school has full fire and building checks each year as well as successful fire drills several times a year. She added that the school has been accredited by the Office For Children.

ZBA members voted unanimously to deny the petition without prejudice, thereby enabling Culinane to solicit the necessary reports and refile her request.

Warrant obtained in indecent exposure case

By ELLEN FANNING
Star Assistant Editor

Police have obtained a warrant for a Norwood man in connection with two incidents of indecent exposure in Winchester.

The suspect, 40, was identified in photographs as the alleged suspect by two of the victims. In addition, his license plate matched the number memorized by one of those victims. The incidents occurred two weeks ago, according to police.

The first incident occurred Aug. 16 at 3:41 p.m. at the Palmer Street tennis courts. An 11-year-old Winchester girl and her two friends, ages nine and 10, had observed a male wearing no clothes in a parked car. When interviewed by police, the 11-year-old said the man had lifted himself from the seat to expose himself.

At the time of the incident, the girl had told her mother what happened, and the mother attempted to get the license plate number. However, the car drove away before that information was obtained. The Winchester mother told police the vehicle was a dark color.

The two other girls at the scene had since returned to their homes out of state, and could not be interviewed by police.

The second incident occurred less than two hours later on Main Street at approximately 5:30 p.m., said police reports.

A Medford woman was jogging south down Main Street when a male in a dark green car began to follow her, said reports. The woman told police that as she tried to evade the vehicle by crossing the street, the driver would turn around in the street and continue to follow her.

She told police that at one point the man exposed himself. She also told police the man followed her to her house and parked his car in front of her home for an extended period of time. This woman was able to provide police with a license plate number, which they used to track the suspect.

Both victims were able to identify the suspect from a group of photographs obtained from the Norwood Police Department. A warrant was obtained Aug. 21 from Woburn District Court.

Accident victim is released from hospital

Cambridge resident Stravoyla Hanzis has been released from Winchester Hospital after recovering from injuries she sustained in an accident on Mystic Valley Parkway last week.

According to Debbie Schrier, spokesperson for Winchester Hospital, Hanzis, 22, was discharged on Friday, Aug. 24, three days after the crash.

The accident occurred directly across from Manchester Field at approximately 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 21. Stravoyla Hanzis, the driver of the car, told police she fell asleep at the wheel. According to police records, her vehicle hit the curb and plunged into the Aberjona River.

Stravoyla Hanzis was retrieved from the vehicle by Officers Thomas Romeo and James Covino and was resuscitated at the scene. Her 26-year-old brother John Hanzis, the passenger in the car, died as a result of injuries sustained in the accident.

POLICE LOG

(From page 2A)

3:36 a.m.

Officers James Covino and Paul Austin were on patrol when they observed a young male riding a speed bike and carrying a BMX-style bike. When the boy was stopped for questioning, he admitted he had stolen the two bikes from homes on Stratford and Lewis roads, said police reports.

The Medford boy was placed under arrest for larceny of property and transported to the station with both the bikes. The youth was booked and was later released to his mother. He was scheduled to appear in Woburn District Court on Aug. 27.

Friday, Aug. 24

10:56 p.m.

Officer James Covino responded to the West Side Fire Station on a report of a drunk male who was harrassing a group of young girls.

Upon arrival, the officer identified the man as a 29-year-old Lockeland Road man and determined that he was intoxicated. The three 16-year-old Arlington girls told police the man was being belligerent and had cornered them at the fire station. The girls had called upon Fire Department personnel to aid them, said police reports.

The man was placed into protective custody and transported to the station.

11:30 a.m.

Officer Peter MacDonnell was approached by a Swanton Street man who asked what would happen to him as a result of not returning to court on the date that a judge had assigned him. The man then told the officer of the circumstances surrounding his court appearance, said police reports.

The officer told the man that a default warrant would be issued by the court and that he would be subject to arrest at anytime. Meanwhile Lieutenant James Pierce arrived at the scene and the man was arrested for default warrant of operating after suspension.

He was then transported to the station where he was booked, fingerprinted and photographed and transported to the Woburn District Court.

11 a.m.

Officer Thomas Groux was in the process of clearing from a call at Parkview Condominiums when he spotted a car entering the upper lot. Groux recognized the driver as a 22-year-old Swanton Street woman and knew she did not have a driver's license.

The officer pulled the driver over and confirmed she did not have a license. The woman was issued a citation for operating without a license.

Wednesday, Aug. 22

1 p.m.

Officer Kenneth Green was called to a Webster Street address on a cold breaking and entering. The owners had returned home and found the kitchen screen window had been knocked in.

The owners reported many items of value were missing, said police reports.

Detective Lieutenant James Pierce and Inspector Daniel McGee interviewed neighbors. One neighbor said she saw a man get out of a station wagon and knock on the door of the home. However, the man did not look suspicious and she did not alert police.

10:58 a.m.

Officer Kenneth Green was called to a Lawrence Street house for a possible breaking and entering. The owner told police he returned from a few days vacation to find the rear door open and one of the window panes from the door broken.

Police also observed the telephone wires had been cut from the outside.

The owners were asked to compile a list of missing items, said police reports.

A neighbor who was interviewed by police said she saw a van with two men in her own driveway the evening before and told the men to leave. Another neighbor told police she heard the phone ringing in the Lawrence Street house for a long period ad then her own phone rang and the caller hung up, reports said.

An investigation continues.

6:50 a.m.

Officer Paul Austin was called to a Main Street business on a report of a possible breaking and entering. The owner told police she had discovered a small square of glass on the front door that had been cut. The area was approximately three inches by five inches and was cut in jagged lines. The glass had not broken however, and entry was not gained, said police reports.

ABOUT TOWN

Senior cooperative theatre is formed

The Winchester Cooperative Theatre for Children announces the formation of Senior Coop for students in grades 6 through 8.

Cathy Alexander heads up the group, along with many familiar people from the Coop for Children. Senior Coop auditions are on Sept. 10 and 11 in the McCall Middle School Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. Meredith Willson's "Music Man" is the choice for the production to be performed Thursday, Nov. 29, Friday, Nov. 30 and two shows on Saturday, Dec. 1.

The staff is looking forward to working with older students and is sure the audiences will enjoy the fruits of their labor.

Students in grades 6 through 8 are encouraged to audition. There are many roles waiting to be filled. Keep an eye open for the Coop production which will be coming in March.

Jones exhibits work at library

"Seaside Reflections," a collection by Gordan V. Jones now on exhibit at the Winchester Art Gallery in the Winchester Public Library, displays a careful use of natural objects to create a fascinating expression of design principles and innate shoreline beauty. Seashells embedded in sand, sea glass, highly-polished driftwood, starfish, corals and semi-precious stones cradle mirrors of various shapes and sizes. But calling these 20 pieces "mirrors" simply does not do them justice.

Each piece in the collection is a unique representation of mood and color. Some are playful, such as "Chorus Line," which depicts little sea creatures of seaweed with wide eyes and kicking in unison. Some are mysterious, such as "Major, Minor," a lovely collection of sea stones and shells embedded in sand and anchored by what seems to be a single dramatic starfish, until we see its junior peeking from the top of the piece. And some are beautifully elegant with rose-colored fan coral surrounding a mirror, or twin-branches of deeply-hued driftwood joined by pearls crisscrossing their own reflection.

Jones received his education from Drew University, followed by studies at the Art Students League in New York City under George Gross and the Phoenix School of Design also in New York City. He earned a Masters in Art Education from Assumption College where he studied with Sante Gracianni. Jones spent several years teaching art within the Brattleboro, Vt. and Wilbraham school systems. He has had exhibitions in a number of places in New England.

"Seaside Reflections" will be on exhibit from Sept. 1 through 27 at the Winchester Art Gallery in the Winchester Public Library. Hours are during regular Library hours.

Winchester Kernels

Neighborhood schools foster pride

By DAN CHANE
Special to the Star

As August sweeps inexorably toward Labor Day, the lush green lawns surrounding "Waterfield Square" belie the fact that here was once the major focus of Precinct One — its own school complete with dusty playgrounds, chalky imprints of erasers clapped on the bricks by the back door — and the happy sounds of a new generation coming of age.

Washington School of 40-odd years ago would be considered hopelessly antidiluvian today — but educational mores of that time did not advance that bare wood floors, bolted down desks and chairs or rude Hartshorn shades on the windows detracted from the quality of the Winchester educational experience.

Mary Cullen's kindergarten was a fascinating place with its view across the playground to North Reservoir, a real working fireplace, sand tables, a wind-up Victrola and its own private door to the playground.

First grade, presided over by Emma Nichol, had a huge bay window — again facing the reservoir — where many young Winchester citizens gathered on primitive chairs to read from "The Elson-Gray Basic Readers or to complete exercises in their workbooks.

Miss Nichol was pretty quick with the flashcards too, and many of us today owe her our facility with numbers and our ability to sound out words phonetically. She stood rigidly before us flipping through those dog-eared flash cards like a carnival shill!

Barbara Haley, with her lovely golden hair, had a sweet voice which helped reveal to us the beauty inherent in our own voices.

Mrs. Brown, a new teacher from England, lent presence to Grade 3. It was she who electrified all of us by organizing a Maypole Dance. At the appointed day — as doting mothers crowded the lawn on Highland Avenue — Mrs. Brown cranked up the old Victrola and we, clutching different colored ribbons, bobbed and dipped around a Maple Tree until we ran out of ribbon — having woven a multi-colored pattern around the trunk of that tree. The cherished old Maple stands yet above Highland Avenue!

Louise Mathews of Grade 4 was teaching and seemed to find a unique gift within each pupil. She brought alive the customs of distant lands — and first brought significance to the many lovely passages in the Bible through morning readings.

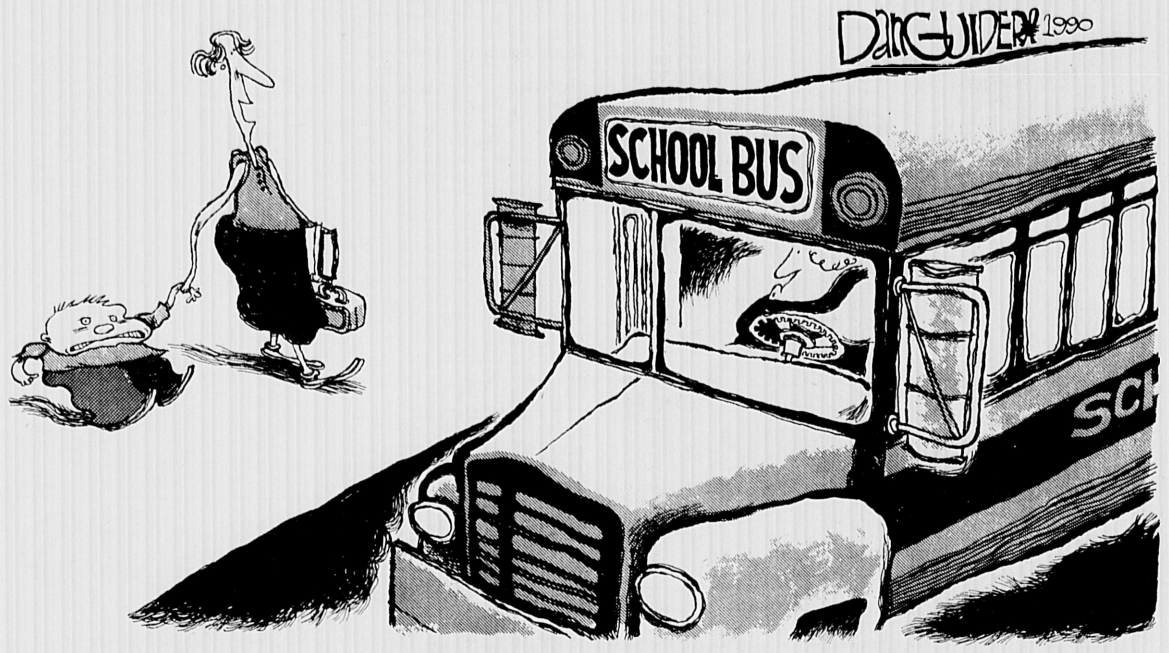

In Grade 5, Roland Nault was the unique male in an inviolately female Winchester elementary school program. He brought a fresh male levity to our lessons and was also known town-wide for his ski club held at Chandler's barn on Forest Street. Many middle-aged townies remember with affection loading skis and other gear into the train at Winchester Station — as pupils from all Winchester elementary schools journeyed to Mount Pero, the Nault's camp at Plymouth, N.H. for a weekend of winter fun — the nights being spent round the fireplace swapping ghost stories, or singing round the old upright piano.

Sixth grade was located in a new room painted all white with moveable desks and chairs. Phyllis Roberts was so proud of that room that she kept fresh paper doilies under the inkwells — and each desk grouping sported a sprightly philodendron in the center.

Principal Leonor Rich and her assistant Madeline Dolan were the catalysts who brought a life and richness into our learning which spread out into the community and sustained an active Mothers' Association and the popular Dads' Club.

Lately Winchester has been rife with debate over the neighborhood school concept.

It may be well to consider the alternatives if a system is dismantled that has served, over long years, to teach community awareness to young parents — and which has fostered love and pride of place within their children!

"I KNOW YOU HEARD ALL THOSE TERRIBLE AWFUL STORIES ABOUT CUTS AND CLOSINGS LAST SPRING, BUT EVERYTHING TURNED OUT OK, YOUR SCHOOL'S STILL THERE AND JUST WAITING TO SEE YOUR SMILING FACE"

Everything was beautiful

By TERRY MAROTTA

I remember a few years ago some enterprising gang of science types came up with a deal where you could buy a little cylinder from them which, when Your Time Came, they'd fill with — ahem — the ashy remains, then launch via rocket into permanent orbit.

There you'd be up there with all the pizza crusts and tampon dispensers the astronauts left behind, eternally and silently taking those curves like a person on the cloverleaf of a big highway that never ends.

Me, I'll take burial when I go. Under a headstone. I'll take a large tasteful chunk of granite, or obsidian maybe, or dawn-pink marble even. Maybe more of a little house-type of a thing — they only cost $20,000 — with, I think, a large sorrowful angel sitting on top, head drooped mournfully in his large stony hands. And of course all my old pals will decorate the place all the time, with Christmas wreaths and May baskets, like you sometime see, and maybe a big sad-looking Joe DiMaggio type of a guy struck by my beauty and kindness years before will come every day like Marilyn gets with a single perfect rose to lay atop the spot.

But what should I have etched on the thing, I sometimes wonder? Besides name and dates, I mean. Don't you think we really have an obligation to sort of sum things up at the end? There's a headstone in Cambridge that reads "The Father of Cheap Postage." There's one in Key West Florida that says "I Told You I was Sick."

I'm used to accomplishing a lot. Last summer I refinished six huge pieces of maple furniture in a month. Thanksgiving Day I put in a 24-pound turkey at 4 a.m., brought champagne and scones back up to the sleeping mate to give thanks with and fall back asleep after, served and cleaned up the whole dinner later that day, and, as the gang of extraneous relatives subsided burping into armchairs afterward, brought out six dining room chair cushions to staple new pieces of upholstery on. "She Got A Lot Done" came into my head a lot back then as a possible epitaph, and gave me the hint too that there was perhaps more to life than doing it.

Unless you put it in your will or something, of course, I suppose others might get to choose your epitaph for you and thus have the last word — a pretty galling concept for us married folk, I can tell you. If I go first, I can only guess what he'll engrave: "You Know She Never Cleaned Those Little Drawers At The Bottom of The Refrigerator." If it's me I'll write, "The Guy Sure Knew How To Nap."

If we go together and our kids are the ones choosing, they'll pick a joint epitaph, probably. "It Was Weird," it'll say. "Every Week They Fought Over Who'd Get The Newsweek First." I see us under there, staring up at our satin ceilings. What will we do if we can't read, or fight, or drink champagne?

There's a new interest in the afterlife these days, no doubt about it. Three movies this summer alone address the subject: "Ghost", "Ghost Dad" and "Flatliners". In "Flatliners" a lot of obnoxious medschool yuppies try to cross over for kicks. In "Ghost Dad," Bill Cosby dies, comes back in the messy suit he died in, walks through doors and melts into rugs. It's pretty funny.

"Ghost" is supposed to make you cry and it's too bad it came out after and not before the Bill Cosby flick, since it should be a serious miracle to us all, never mind a lesson in the power of love, that the densely molecular Patrick Swayze can get his sturdy pecs and chiseled deltoids to squeeze through doors made of solid oak.

Doors'll be easy; I already know that and I'm not even dead yet. I mean to time travel and swoop over skyscrapers and down into the Grand Canyon like they do in all those special effects films. It'll be OK being dead, I guess.

But I'm thinking now, maybe I'll ask for the same epitaph a character in Kurt Vonnegut story chose: "Everything Was Beautiful and Nothing Hurt," it said. OK, it's a bit of a fib, but, hey, it's grateful. When I go, just somebody write down how grateful I was for my stay here. Orbiting forever as an ashy cigar around this old Earth couldn't hold a candle to just living on her a few years.

Reardon apologizes for 'practical joke'

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to express my most humble and sincere apology to Joseph Julian and his family for a letter written by me to this paper two weeks ago.

A practical joke gone too far and a lesson learned.

John Reardon

Bailey applauds police officers for valiant efforts

TO THE EDITOR:

At a time when public budgets and public sector employees are coming in for an increased level of vitriol, criticism and scrutiny from the public at large, it is important for each of us to acknowledge instances of meritorious conduct on the part of public servants which truly are deserving of our attention.

Last Tuesday, Police Officers James Covino and Thomas Romeo did the Town of Winchester and its police department proud with their heroic efforts on the bank of the Aberjona River. While one life was tragically lost as a result of a late afternoon automobile accident, there is no question that Covino's and Romeo's timely, decisive and selfless action in response to the accident were directly responsible for the saving of a second life.

The officers' level-headed and courageous conduct at the scene of the accident not only reflects well on the caliber of our patrolmen and the quality of our police force as a whole (and provides a positive example of the product of proper training and instruction), but also speaks volumes about the dedication and courage of these fine officers.

Winchester residents should be proud of their police department and grateful that officers like James Covino and Thomas Romeo are members of its force. We should all take a moment to salute these true-life heroes.

R. Bradford Bailey

Borggaard adamant about property line

TO THE EDITOR:

My Chapman's "History of Winchester, Vol. 1" bears a Black Horse Tavern "running horse" on its cover. I take it that the Winchester Historical Society, which seems to have borrowed the Tavern's logo, must then have had something to do with its publication.

If that is true, then whatever the "History" contains would seem to have been approved by the Society.

I bring this out because one of the maps that I rely upon in my quarrel with the Society (or the Society's quarrel with me) is one I found in its introductory pages. They vouch for the map, not I! But when I try to use their own map, they disavow it and claim that it is not accurate.

However, I have another map, drawn in 1836, 200 years later, that seems to bear it out in the main, but is slightly more detailed. For instance, it indicates that there were, at that time, a total of six houses along the eastern side of Main Street between the junction of Main and Washington, with the Symmes line seeming to strike the sixth house.

"Count 'em and weep." There are six houses there today, (maybe not the same houses, but certainly the same house sites), and the line does hit the sixth house and cuts its north wall off at the same oblique angle as that of the Symmes line shown on the map.

My next letter will deal with the semantics of the matter. Therein, I think, lies the crux of the misunderstanding. Please, in the meantime, borrow a dictionary and look up the word "synecdoche." Parentheticallly, I don't expect you to pronounce it, but would like you to understand it.

Newpro all-stars say 'thank you'

TO THE EDITOR:

As the summer draws to a close and the youth baseball season finally ends, I would like to take this opportunity to say thanks.

I would like to thank Nick Cogliani for sponsoring this team and making this summer possible. Nick, without your support, there is no way we could have competed this year.

I would like to thank my coaching staff. Without your support and dedication it never would have been possible to play. You don't get much ink and you are certainly there to take grief. Thanks to Rich Lanzillo, Joe Marrone, and Bill Shields.

Thanks to Dick Tofuri and his staff for keeping the fields in shape for the entire summer. Often we are all too quick to criticize these guys. You all

This week in history

1960: 30 years ago

Second grade children who would normally attend the newly-constructed school on Johnson Road and Ridge Street were being sent to the Lincoln Elementary School for their first school days. The children would be included in a group of students to be housed at Lincoln until the completion of the new school building.

Shelley Preston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Preston of Highland Avenue was selected to represent Jordan Marsh Company as "Jody Jordan" of 1960-61. Preston had competed with more than 1,600 contestants for the honor. The contestants were judged on personality, ability to design a wardrobe for six different occasions and an original composition stating their reason for wanting to be "Jody Jordan."

A group of Winchester youths were pictured in the Winchester Star entering the new bathhouse at Leonard Pool.

E.M. Loew's in Winchester featured the films "South Pacific," H.G. Wells' "The Time Machine," "Man on a String," starring Ernest Borgnine and coming soon was "Ice Palace," "The Bell Boy" and "The Apartment."

Police Chief Joseph J. Derro sent a warning out to the teenagers who were seen hanging around Winchester Common at night making noise. Derro said these youths would face arrest for distrubing the peace if caught in the future. A number of complaints from residents spurred this action.

The Special Town Meeting scheduled that month would be asked to consider a motion by the Board of Selectmen to widen the Main Street end of Lake Street in the vicinity of the old Quigley property by 10 feet. The town would, by eminent domain, take a strip of land 10 feet wide and 500 ft. long from the property then owned by the DeVries Construction Co.

A letter to the editor that week suggested the new Johnson Road/ Ridge Street Elementary School be named after Winchester resident Samuel Walker McCall, who had served 20 years in the United States Congress.

One parking meter was uprooted and several others smashed, reported police. Winchester's "Meter Man" George Foley said eight meter glasses had been smashed and four "flags" damaged. Police suspected the vandalism was the work of teenagers.

Converse supermarket on Mt. Vernon Street and Shore Road advised shoppers to "stock up for Labor Day," offering fresh native chicken at 33 cents a pound. Boiled ham was 79 cents a pound and a 14-oz package of lobster meat was just $1.69.

The Star announced its plans to begin publishing the weekly paper on Thursday. This change would end an 80-year history of Friday publication dates. The Star editor told readers the change was decided upon due to shifts in shopping patterns. Residents seemed to shop most on Thursdays and Fridays, said the editor.

did a terrific job this summer, especially the past week when we were called upon to host part of the tournament of champions. You did a great job and the fields looked marvelous.

Thanks to the parents of the players. It was a long season for you all. I appreciate the sacrifices that were made and your steady attendance at the games. You are a great bunch.

Lastly, thanks to the players for your dedication to the game of baseball. Hard work and dedication do pay off no matter where you go. I certainly hope that we will all hear from you in the future, no matter what the endeavor may be. I enjoyed working with each and every one of you. Thanks.

Commission clarifies point

TO THE EDITOR:

The Commission would like to clarify one point in your Aug. 16 article concerning the Winchester Historical Commission's recent request to the Board of Selectmen. At issue was the creation of a study committee to consider the development of a local historic district. The Selectmen were not asked to agree "to establish a historic district commission."

Under the state law which governs local historic districts (Chapter 40C), selectmen may appoint study committees. The study committee, with input from the Planning Board, the Massachusetts Historical Commission, property owners and the public, makes recommendations to Town Meeting. Town Meeting, by a ⅔ vote, decides whether to establish a local historic district and, if it does create such a district, what its boundaries and guidelines will be.

More than 159 local historic districts have been created in 89 municipalities under Chapter 40C.

The members of the Winchester Historical Commission are happy to provide information about local historical districts. Please call 721-7146 and a Commission member will get back to you.

Thank you.

Recreation is thanked for camps

TO THE EDITOR:

Congratulations! And thank you to the Department of Recreation and Community Services for an outstanding summer day camp program. At a time when there is concern about the availability and quality of youth services in Winchester, Camp Superfriends and Camp Sachem came out as real winners in our family.

The kids got varied and fun-filled activities; and every day was well organized and run by smart, caring, enthusiastic counselors. Maura Schoen, camp director, and her staff deserve to feel very proud.

Class of 1988 makes donation

The following letter was submitted to the Star for publication.

To the Winchester High School Class of 1988:

We delayed the presentation of a class gift in order to decide upon something that the school needed and desired. We have now made the founding donation of $1000 to the new program for the beautification of the Winchester High School grounds.

A plaque will be placed in a prominent location, indicating the nature of the gift.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Beacon Hill Roll Call
Volume 17 — Report No. 33
Massachusetts House and Senate
August 24, 1990

The House and Senate — "Beacon Hill Roll Call" continues its report on local representatives' votes on previously unrecorded roll calls on amendments to the $13.4 billion fiscal 1991 state budget recently signed by Governor Dukakis.

The bill number is H 5700

Counsel Fee — House 81-71, rejected an amendment raising from $40 to $200 a proposed fee to be paid by any person provided a public defense attorney and allowing the state to take the fee from income tax refunds of persons who do not pay within six months. The amendment also requires prisoners who receive wages while on work release or furlough to pay 10 percent to the Committee on Public Counsel. Amendment supporters said these requirements are reasonable and will reduce expenses. Opponents noted many of the people are indigent and can't pay anything.

A Yea vote is for the amendment raising the fee to $200. A Nay vote is against the amendment.

Representative Paul Casey voted no.

07 Contractors — House 86-65, rejected an amendment providing that all persons supplying goods or services under contract with any state agency or department be defined as a state employee. Amendment supporters said this will include 07 contractors under the state ethics law. Opponents said these are private contractors who should not be subject to state reporting and ethics requirement. The House later 89-67 approved the same amendment with added language providing the definition apply only to people with contracts over $40,000. (Both roll calls are listed. The first is on the original amendment defeated 86-65. The second is on the $40,000 amendment approved 89-67. On both roll calls, a "Yea" vote is for the amendment. a "Nay" vote is against it.)

Casey voted yes on both.

Service Corps — House 128-22, rejected an amendment restoring $576,000 in funding for payments of stipends to the corpsmen of the commonwealth service corps in the amount of $120 monthly. Amendment supporters said this is a small amount to pay for these volunteers who work 120 hours a month on important projects like fuel assistance. Opponents said the state cannot afford this money and argued the money can be used for direct services.

A Yea vote is for the $576,000 funding. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

Off-Track Betting — House 146-2, rejected an amendment allowing establishment of off-track betting teletheatres throughout the state. The amendment sets up an application, oversight and regulation procedure under the control of the state lottery commission. Amendment supporters said this is a creative way to raise money which will be sent back to cities and towns. Opponents said the amendment does not provide for local referendum approval and argued the proposal should be part of a separate bill and subject to public hearings.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

Sale of Land — House 152-1, rejected an amendment prohibiting the state from selling any state land or buildings before January 1991. The measure exempts any sales currently under agreement between municipalities and the state. Amendment supporters said this restriction will prevent a feeding frenzy between now and the end of Governor Dukakis' term. Opponents said this would adversely affect many projects already in the pipeline.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted no.

Court Officers — House 77-60, rejected an amendment reducing funding for the payment of salaries and expenses of superior court officers from $9.5 million to $9.1 million. Amendment supporters said these cuts simply have to be made to balance the budget. Opponents said the cuts will eliminate over 100 officers and hurt the operation of courts around the state.

A Yea vote is for the $400,000 cut. A Nay vote is against the cut.

Casey voted yes.

Employees — House 107-45, approved an amendment requiring any state employee who has been transferred from one agency to another or to an authority or has been placed on an 03 account since July 1989 shall be terminated unless the transfer is approved by both Ways and Means Committees by this September. Amendment supporters, noting the transfer of many employees to the Mass. Water Resources Authority, said the amendment simply gives the legislature some oversight. Opponents said the amendment would unfairly affect the thousands of police officers and others who were transferred when agencies were consolidated to save money.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

Audit — House 131-21, approved an amendment requiring the Auditor to contract for a complete management audit of many state agencies including the Department of Revenue, MDC and Departments of Correction, Public Welfare and Social Services. Amendment supporters said this will develop a plan to cut waste and insure funds are being used responsibly. Opponents said the amendment is well-intentioned but in reality is another useless attempt to study cutting waste rather than taking action and cutting waste which clearly exists.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

Obscenity — House 98-51, approved an amendment prohibiting the Massachusetts Cultural Council from providing any money, assistance or support to any group or individual that produces, promotes or displays works of art that violate the state's obscenity laws or that depict the sexual exploitation of children. Amendment supporters said this will prevent tax dollars from being used to promotee obscene art. Some opponents said the amendment will set a bad precedent and may violate the first amendment. Others noted if the amendment is adopted, an institution which promotes a controversial show using private funds would later be denied public money for an unrelated, noncontroversial show at a later date.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Casey voted yes.

WINCHESTER PAST & PRESENT

For Coles, art was a family affair

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

In 1877, the Coles settled in Winchester. Cole built a colonial revival home and studio on Everett Avenue, near Bacon Street.

Not only residence in the community, but also family ties have related some of the artists of Winchester. Four such artists, two to be noted this week and two in a later column, were father-and-daughter pairs. The first pair, both artists of distinction, were J. Foxcroft Cole and his daughter Adelaide.

J. Foxcroft Cole arrived in Winchester in 1877 with an international reputation as an artist well established. Born in Jay, Maine, in 1837, Cole moved to Boston at age seven. After leaving school, he entered John Bufford's lithographic company, where Winslow Homer was a fellow draughtsman. He also created landscape lithographs for Louis Prang (1856-60).

In 1860 he went to Paris to study painting with Lambinet. Four years later he established his studio in Boston, adjoining those of William Morris Hunt and John LaFarge. His work was immediately popular and successful.

Cole returned to Paris in 1865 to study with Charles Jacquie, a Barbizon painter. With his wife, Belgian pianist Irma de Pelgrom, and family, he divided his time during the next 12 years between Massachusetts and France. Cole exhibited frequently at the Paris Exhibition and the Royal Academy in London and was represented in the International Exposition of 1867.

In 1877, the Coles settled in Winchester. Cole built a colonial revival home and studio on Everett Avenue, near Bacon Street, the first house built on Everett. Among the visitors to the Coles' Winchester home was Winslow Homer, who several times drew Adelaide Cole, then about 10 years old. Three Cole children attended school in Winchester, Linda (1867-1881), Adelaide (1868-1944), and a son.

Between 1885 and 1887, because of Mrs. Cole's ill health, the family lived in Southern California, but following her death, Cole returned to Winchester. He also had a studio in Boston and moved to that city about a year before his death, caused by pneumonia, in 1892. He is buried in Wildwood Cemetary. (Star obituary, 7 May 1892)

Cole was an important American representative of the Barbizon school and was one of the most influential proponents of that school in this country, introducing the works of such artists as Corot and Daubigny to Americans. In Winchester he "created some of his finest Barbizon-inspired landscapes" (Erica E. Hirshler, The Bostonians: Painters of an Elegant Age, 1870-1980). During this time he also returned to graphic arts, creating lithographs and etchings.

He is best remembered as a landscape and seascape painter. One of his paintings of Winchester itself, "The Aberjona River, Winchester," is owned by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Another version of this view and his "Farm Scene Near Bacon Hill" belongs to the Winchester Public Library's permanent collection.

When Cole died, it was reported that his daughter Adelaide was "already distinguished as an artist." After the death of her father, who was also her first art teacher, Adelaide Cole continued to pursue a career in art, as her father had encouraged. She did so in Boston rather than Winchester, for in 1892 she married Boston architect William C. Chase and settled in Boston. Three years later, she entered the Museum School. She also studied in Paris during the 1890s but returned to Boston where she had both her home and studios.

Chase was primarily a painter of portraits and decorative still lifes. She exhibited in various galleries including the Guild of Boston Artists, the Society of American Artists in New York, and the National Academy of Design to which she was elected as an associate in 1906. She won silver medals for portraiture at the 1904 St. Louis exposition and at the San Francisco exposition in 1915. She is represented in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts (MFA) collection by her portrait "The Violinist," which painting and the Aberjona view by her father were both included in the MFA's 1986 exhibition of Bostonian painters.

Integrated preschool continues this fall

Winchester Public Schools has been awarded Chapter 188 Grant monies to continue to implement an integrated preschool program. The integration will involve special needs children being integrated with non-special needs children. The program will continue to be housed at the Lynch Elementary School.

There will be two classes made up of 15 children in each class. Each class will service 51 percent of the general population, (children with no special needs) and 49 percent special needs population, (children with mild to moderate special needs, i.e. language difficulties, developmental delays, etc.).

The goal of the program is threefold: to service special needs children in an integrated preschool setting which will provide age appropaiate role models; to provide extensive individual attention to all the children by a highly trained early childhood staff of teachers and specialists; and to provide services to Winchester's 3 and 4 year olds that may not otherwise have the opportunity to attend preschool.

Three-year-olds will meet during the morning from 9 to 11:30 a.m., and four-year-olds will meet during the afternoon from 12:30 to 3 p.m.

Transportation will not be provided for the general population students. Students will be accepted on a rolling admissions basis. Final placement decisions will be made by the Early Childhood Screening team upon review of applications, parent interview and admissions criteria.

Criteria includes agency involvement, AFDC, D.S.S. WIC eligibility, financial constraints, ability to provide own transportation, screening, observation and family history. Applications for initial class enrollment must be in by Sept. 21.

For application please call the Special Education Office at 721-7005.

ABOUT TOWN

Albano co-sponsors tax relief measure

State Senator Sal R. Albano (D-Somerville) recently became a Senate co-sponsor of legislation designed to provide property tax relief to low- and moderate-income homeowners and renters. The so-called "circuit breaker" proposal would greatly aid about 120,000 households earning less than $30,000 per year by providing additional tax refunds.

The Senator called the bill "a progressive way to help those low- and moderate-income taxpayers, particularly senior citizens, who have been hard hit by rising property and income taxes in recent years."

SCHOOL NEWS

Schedule for the opening of schools

The Winchester Public Shools will open on Wednesday, Sept. 5 for students.

Elementary Schools

Grades 1 through 5 and the K-1 Transition Class will be in half session Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 5, 6 and 7, from 8:45 a.m. until 11:45 a.m. Parents of kindergarten children will be notified in an individual letter of the kindergarten schedule. The lunch program in the elementary schools will commence on Monday, Sept. 10. Parents of students in Grades 1 through 5 and the K-1 Transition Class will be given the choice of having their child or children remain in school or return home during the lunch period. If a child is to return home at lunch time, the form that will be sent home from the school must be completed and returned to the classroom teacher by Sept. 7.

School hours for Grades 1 through 5 are 8:45 a.m. to 2:50 p.m. A half-hour lunch period will be scheduled for each student and will be preceded or followed by a 15-minute, teacher-supervised recess. Those students electing to return home for lunch may use the 15-minute recess as part of their lunch period.

McCall Junior High School
7:55 a.m. to 2:25 p.m.

Students in Grade 6 will report to McCall Junior HIgh School at 7:55 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 6, for a full day of school. Students in Grade 7 will report at 7:55 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 5. Students in Grade 8 will report at 7:55 a.m. on Friday, Sept. 7. Lunch will be served to junior high school students starting Sept. 5.

Winchester High School
7:40 a.m. to 2:03 p.m.

Students in Grade 9 will report to Winchester high School at 7:40 a.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 5, for a full school day. Students in Grade 10, 11, and 12 will report at 7:40 a.m. on Thursday, Sept. 6. Lunch will served to high school students commencing on Sept. 5.

Transportation is provided for any Winchester student who resides one mile from the elementary school or two miles from the secondary school in her/his district. Bus passes will be issued on the first day of school to those students eligible for transportation.

SCHOOL BRIEFS

Local students raise money in read-a-thon

Stephen Daly of St. Mary's School and Robbie Morse and Ashley Cannon of Lincoln Elementary School were honored recently for their participation in the Multiple Sclerosis READaTHON.

The students were congratulated by John Stephens, running back of the New England Patriots, Suzanne Bates, co-anchor of WBZ-TV Channel 4's "Live on 4" and Ray Bourque, star defenseman of the Boston Bruins, honorary co-chairs of the MS READaTHON reading program. The youngsters met with the co-chairs at the READaTHON's annual Awards Party at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Natick.

These young readers, who were among the top 118 students from more than 6,000 participants, raised at least $400 each for multiple sclerois research and support services by obtaining sponsors' pledges for each book read during the program.

Saturday schools resume classes

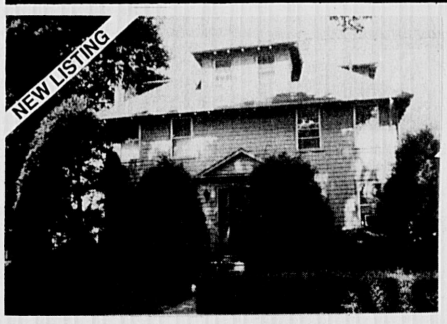

All children from Winchester are invited to enroll in the French or Spanish Saturday School. Both schools will resume classes on Saturday, Sept. 22.

Open to children from the Greater Boston area from the age of 4 years old and up, the schools are community service oriented; they offer language and culture opportunities through a wide range of material ranging from educational games to audio-visual activities. Qualified teachers are always native born.

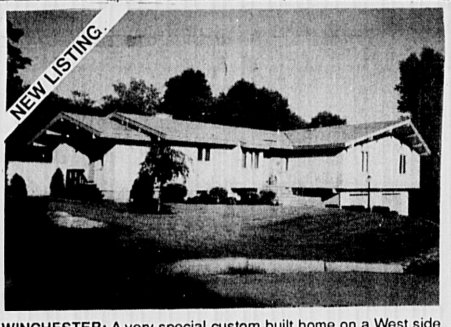

For further information, please call Dr. Day at 617-489-1240.

Boy Scout troop has organizational meeting

Boys currently in the sixth through 12 grade this school year are invited, with their parents, to attend Troop 503's meeting for new Scouts to be held on Tuesday night, Sept. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in Chidley Hall of Winchester's First Congregational Church.

Troop 503, under the direction of Scoutmaster Jeffrey Drazen, is a very active organization, holding weekly meetings at the Congregational Church and at least one overnight or weekend camping trip every month. The Troop has just returned from a Boston Harbor Island weekend and is planning a Campout at Parker Forest at the end of this month.

BUSINESS NEWS

Nicholas S. Reed, ASLA, right, landscape architect for the Hayes Square Park Restoration in Charlestown, and Lu Stubbs, collaborating artist.

Reed takes part in restoration project

NSRLA, Landscape Architects, of Winchester, announced the groundbreaking of the Hayes Square Park Restoration in Charlestown on Aug. 9. The project is funded by the E.I. Browne Trust Fund of Boston and is valued at $250,000.

The park restoration will bring a very important community-oriented green space to the neighborhood. The design will add lighting, tree and shrub planting, brick and granite paving and a 10-foot round, raised, granite and bronze sundial designed by the collaborating artist, Lu Stubbs of Sharon. The completion is anticipated by the end of the year.

This project is one of three park restoration projects by NSRLA. Thompson Square in Charlestown and Union Park in the South End of Boston are also slated for construction in 1990-91.

Men's group is good place to chat

By MARY P. KELLY
Special to The Star

The first of the fall and winter meetings of the Men's Discussion Group will take place on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 10:40 a.m., in the Jenks Center's Library. The group meets every other week with a free flowing discussion which could involve old cars, politics, foreign policy, or just a sharing of life experiences.

Many years ago a group of Winchester men met informally in the homes of the various members and, as the numbers diminished and the Jenks Center became available, the Men's Discussion Group began to meet at the Center with fresh membership enthusiasm. James Law carried over the leadership from the home meetings to the Center and coordination of the meetings was accomplished through the efforts of the late Ben Marshall. The present leadership is chaired by Stanley Osgood and Robert Oppenheimer.

This is a consistently well-attended program with friendships flourishing. Men interested in joining this lively discussion group are welcome as new members. Please contact either Stan Osgood or Bob Oppenheimer for more information.

Two calligraphy series coming up

Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 11, and continuing on two successive Tuesday, September 18 and 25, Dr. Normand Paquette, master calligrapher, will teach a special three-week refresher course in calligraphy at the Jenks Center.

This series will be followed by a six-week new and intermediate course in October. Paquette would like to see all of his students back for the refresher series.

This is an enjoyable exercise in lettering which brings pleasure to all who try it. Please sign up at the reception desk for one or both series.

Bowling under way on Sept. 7

The bowling season is with us again and the call goes out to all senior bowlers in town to come and bowl with the Winchester Seniors Bowling League.

The first session of the season will be at the Woburn Bowladrome, Montvale Avenue, Woburn, on Friday, Sept. 7, at 9:30 a.m. Make your plans now for the weekly bowling sessions. Newcomers, men and women, are welcome.

Anyone interested should contact Guy Santo or Guy Schipellite, president and vice president, respectively, of the bowling league which is sponsored by the Winchester Seniors Association.

A meeting of the officers and team captains, and anyone interested who may wish to attend, will be held at the Jenks Center, on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 10:30 a.m.

Horseshoe players sought at Jenks

A determination has yet to be made on whether horseshoe pitching is an activity seniors would enjoy. This decision must be made shortly, while the good weather is here. Therefore, if you would like to join a group to play horseshoes at the Jenks Center, call 721-7136 and advise of your interest.

Both men and women are invited to participate in this proposed new activity. Before equipment can be arranged for, the Center must know of your interest.

Living beyone loss group meets Sept. 10

The Living Beyond Loss group will hold its September meeting on Monday afternoon, Sept. 10, at 1 p.m. (note the new time).

Usually, this group meets on the first Monday of the month but, because of the Labor Day holiday, it will meet on the second Monday in September. This is a self-help group, guided by social worker Marion Anderson, for those who may be feeling the loss of a loved one.

Let the social worker know if you would like to join the discussion.

Dr. William Barone is shown, with Mary Falzano, at a recent meeting of the Italian Culture Group. Barone is a well known historian on Italian culture and spoke on the significant role of Giovanni Cabotto (John Cabot) of Genoa, Italy, in the early exploration of the new world. The first meeting of the Italian Culture Group in the new season will be held at the Jenks Center on Sept. 24.

Real Estate and You . . .
"WHY ISN'T MY HOUSE SELLING?"

Dick Murphy, Bixby & Porter

Often, when a house sits on the market unsold, its owners blame the agent, and sometimes that blame is well placed. Other times, however, the reason is related to something that is completely within the seller's control.

There are basically four factors that will determine how quickly a home sells. First, you have the listing broker's marketing efforts. Then you have the condition, price and accessibility of the property to agents who want to show it. Only the first factor is within the agent's control. If your home has not been advertised or shown to many buyers, have a heart-to-heart with your agent so you have a clear idea of just what he or she is doing to get it sold. At the same time, make sure you keep it in top showing condition. When your agent mentions a price reduction, listen and consider the possibility. Finally, make it as easy as possible for agents to show to their buyers. A successful sale comes from a close collaboration between you and your agent.

ELECTION NEWS

Rideout holds organizational meeting

The Committee to Elect Edward J. Rideout State Senator held an organizational meeting for its precinct coordinators at its Winchester campaign headquarters on Main Street.

In addressing the group of supporters the candidate promised to maintain close contact with the voters of his district after the election. He vowed to continue his fight against the "liberal spending and tax-happy approach" to fiscal matters now in evidence in our State government."

Rideout told his coordinators, "As the record demonstrates our present Legislature has shown a penchant for investing our tax dollars into any program they feel is appropriate without any regard for the constituents' concerns."

Rideout also stressed, "It has been too long that we have not seen the true representative approach to government needed to reflect the people's concerns. The goal I seek is to provide the taxpayers with a strong voice on Beacon Hill, with an emphatic no to taxes."

Submitted by the Committee to Elect Edward J. Rideout, State Senate.

Nurses, social workers support Albano

NursePLAN, the political action arm of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, this week "enthusiastically and unanimously" endorsed State Senator Sal R. Albano (D-Somerville) for re-election. The group, which numbers 17,500 members, thanked Albano "for advocating the concerns of nurses and the health care issues that will benefit the citizens of the Commonwealth."

Albano also received the backing of Massachusetts PACE/National Association of Social Workers, who said, "Your steadfast commitment to human services and to adequate funding and fair revenues for those services makes us proud to support your candidacy."

Submitted by the candidate.

HEALTH

Breastfeeding class at hospital

The decision of breastfeed or bottle feed is a topic of importance to new parents. Winchester Hospital offers a workshop, helpful to parents-to-be, which provides accurate information on this subject.

The workshop will provide a variety of information such as the pros and cons of breastfeeding, self-help measures to prevent complications, routines for bottle and breast feeding and helpful hints to mothers who work outside of the home.

For more information about the program and times of classes, call Winchester Hospital's Education Department at 756-2220.

Lifeline offered at hospital

For the elderly or disabled, it can be a very frightening or even life threatening experience to be alone when in need of medical assistance. Winchester Hospital now offers Lifeline, a personal emergency response system, to patients whose physicians are affiliated with the hospital Lifeline can help those in need, lead a more secure and independent life.

Lifeline is a small paging voice device which patients can wear around their wrist or neck. With just the press of a button, a signal is sent to Lifeline Central, a terminal in Watertown, where certified personnel are trained to receive emergency calls 24 hours a day.

Once Lifeline personnel are alerted, they will call the Lifeline subscriber at home. If the subscriber is unable to answer, a designated responder, usually a neighbor, is called. The responder will then go the subscriber's home and evaluate the situation. If the circumstance warrants, an ambulance will be sent to the subscriber's home.

"Lifeline allows the patient to feel more secure about living at home," said Joanne Artiano, Lifeline coordinator at Winchester Hospital. "Knowing they have access to a 24-hour medical response service, can make a significant difference to patients and their families."

To find out more about Lifeline, call Joanne Artiano at 729-9000, ext. 2637.

Teaching CPR to save children's lives

The national statistics on infant and childhood injuries are staggering. According to USA Today, choking and suffocating are the leading accidental killers of babies under the age of one. Appropriate pediatric and infant CPR techniques differ from those used on adults — knowing how to correctly use CPR can mean the difference between life and death.

Winchester Hospital's Health Education Department offers Pediatric and Infant CPR classes to the community. Upon successful completion of the program, participants will receive a one-year certificate from the American Heart Association.

The Pediatric and Infant CPR Course is offered in two-part classes on Sept. 13, 6 to 10 p.m. and Sept. 20, 6 to 10 p.m. at the Woburn YMCA. The course fee is $40 per person.

Persons interested in taking the course, but not for certification may attend the first class on Sept. 13 for a fee of $20 per person and $30 per couple.

To register call Winchester Hospital's Education Department.

Winchester Community Music School Suzuki violin teacher Tina Hunting instructs student Stephanie Murray age 6.

Music School expands program

The Winchester Community Music School, offering lessons and classes for ages 3 to 80, is adding Suzuki cello, guitar, violin and viola lessons to its curriculum. The Suzuki approach involves a parent or other adult in lessons and practice time. Small-sized instruments are suited to ages five and up.

Music School registration is now taking place. For information, call Corie Nichols (daytime phone: 729-7446)

Sharon Weiner, administrative fellow, and co-chairman for the United Way Fundraising Committee at Winchester Hospital, serves Richard Lawless, executive director of family counseling for The United Way a piece of a "thermometer" cake. The festive cake represented the spirit of fun in the events held during the hospital's week of fundraising activities for The United Way.

Keeping 'fun' in fundraising

A large cake in the shape of a thermometer was just one of the ways Winchester Hospital had fun promoting a week of fundraising activities for The United Way. The thermometer measured the hospital's climb towards its fundraising goal.

This year is special for Winchester Hospital since it was chosen to be a pacesetter organization in the Massachusetts Bay area. Pacesetter organizations are recognized as companies committed to the future of their community — true leaders in problem-solving efforts. As a pacesetter, Winchester Hospital is expected to "set the pace" in fundraising for other businesses and organizations.

Other fundraising events at the hospital included a raffle for donated prizes, such as a weekend night at the Burlington Marriott and gift certificates at La Mia Cucina Restaurant in Woburn. Hospital staff enjoyed making their own sundaes, with ice cream donated by Ben & Jerry's, and sampling the delectables from the employee bake sale. Richard Lawless, executive director of family counseling for The United Way, stopped by to speak to Winchester Hospital staff and enjoyed a piece of the thermometer cake.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington and The Woburn Walk-In Center, Winchester Hospital's affiliated facilities, also participated with similar events.

Winchester Hospital is committed to raising at least $10,000 in employee donations for The United Way of Massachusetts Bay, an increase of over 25 percent from last year's contribution.

Cable contract is discussed reserves the right to regulate rates for cable service to the extent such regulation is allowed at this time or hearafter under the applicable federal and state law. Licensee will endeavor to allow a period of 18 months to elapse between rate increases."

The town's ability to control cable company's "endeavors" will be strengthened by the five-year contract, said members.

"I think the five-year contract is the big thing. It's a landmark of sorts; Winchester is one of the first towns ... to get a five-year contract," said Chairman Larry Worthen.

According to Worthen, the five-year contract will allow Winchester to garner the benefits of federal regulation in the future, as well as "keep up with the latest changes and make sure that the town receives the best available technology."

In terms of service improvements residents can look forward to, Worthen said the new contract specifies a "fiberoptics upgrade of transmission lines in the next 12 months. The upgrade will result in a better signal for people on the outskirts of the system, on the Lexington and Arlington lines."

School board wants engineer's opinion officially 45 Winfred Way, Winchester, because the property's frontage is in Winchester.

But the house itself stands in Medford, and residents pay the majority of their property tax to that city.

The issue surfaced recently when a court ruled that children should attend school in the town where the majority of the home is located. Town Counsel Wade Welch has advised School Committee members that they have the authority, however, to allow the children to attend Winchester schools.

Member Edward O'Connell said the children should be allowed to attend Winchester schools without paying tuition, noting that the residents will vote in Winchester.

O'Connell added that the home's Winchester designation is approved by the Board of Selectmen and is set forth in the document known as the layout of streets.

Member Mark Lombardi countered, "I don't think it's particularly fair to the rest of the taxpayers [to allow the children to attend Winchester schools]." He said he based his decision on the court ruling as well as the the town to which the majority of the taxes are paid.

Member Alice McCarter said, "This is a mixed situation and needs to be straightened out. But not just by us granting the right to attend Winchester schools to the children." McCarter said she would be against such a measure and said she felt the status of the property should be decided, not just the immediate school question.

Member Michael Ronayne said an opinion by the Town Engineer stating that the home was indeed officially fixed in Winchester would "persuade" him to allow the children to attend school in town.

Chairman Donna Brandt Landry said that in her opinion, "where [the residents] vote is the bottom line."

Local doctor ready for duty of aviation personnel. The Air National Guard, says Steeves, has a direct link with the U.S. Air Force.

Steeves says he's proud to be a part of the Guard and has been involved in that unit for a year now.

While Steeves waits for the call however, he tries not to let the possibility of a military assignment affect his day-to-day life.

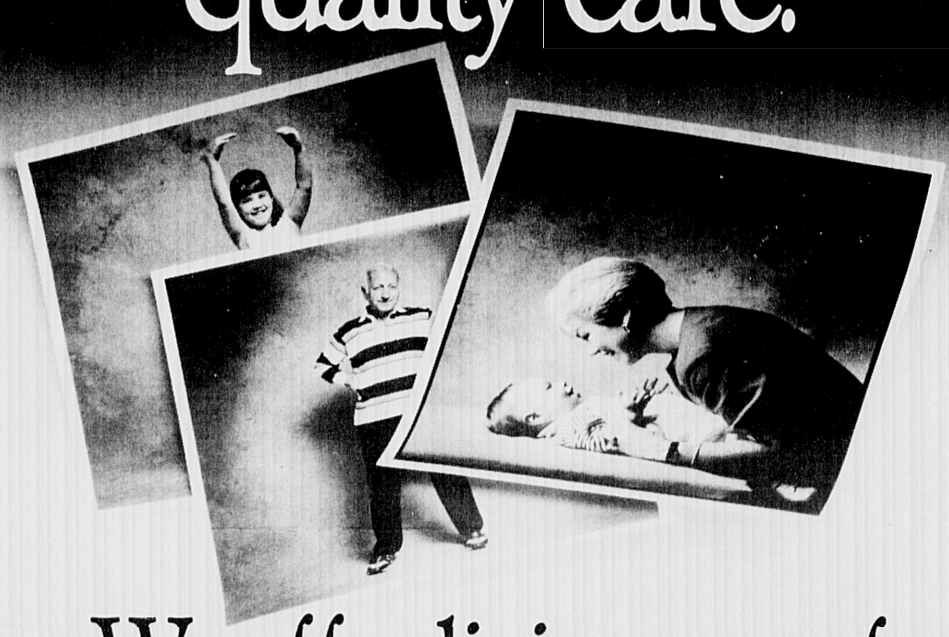

"There is a certain amount of tension because of the uncertainty," said Steeves in a recent interview. "My wife is behind me 100 percent," he added.

"Depending on how long I'm gone, we'll miss each other for a while ... But duty hasn't called yet," he said.

Steeves is a Vietnam veteran and says the difference between combat medicine and civilian medicine is like the difference between night and day. Steeves says practicing medicine during wartime involves dealing with the acutely sick, the majority are victims of trauma or infection.

And though he's had some training in chemical injuries, Steeves said his possible assignment with aviation personnel wouldn't necessarily bring him in contact with that type of injury, if indeed chemical warfare is used by Iraq.

If Steeves is called to active duty, he can expect his first stint to last 90 days. After that initial tour of duty, the president could renew National Guard members and reservists again and again at 90-day stays.

A lot of hospitals promise quality care.

We offer living proof.

It's the smile on the face of a young girl. The look of confidence in a mother's eyes. It's a visible sense of well-being. The look of renewed health. It's living proof. And at New England Memorial, we believe it's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer—the stories of people like yourself who have made the right choice for so many reasons.

It's the quality of our staff. In every department of our modern facility, it's the superior nursing and physician care we provide. It's the quality of caring that touches our patients' lives in such significant ways. It's the genuine compassion that's an integral part of our approach to psychiatric care. It's the warmth and hope that enhance our fertility center. It's the hand and heart working together making our staff the right choice for so many families.

We're right where you need us most—close to home in a convenient, suburban location that eliminates the problems of parking and traffic jams.

Add to this our commitment to providing state-of-the-art medical equipment, and you start to see the whole picture. It's the picture of a mother's joy. A family's reunion. It's the picture of health. And at New England Memorial, we think that's the best proof of quality care a hospital can offer. Tennis proves to be lifetime sport

The annual Winchester Swim & Tennis Club Member-Guest Tennis Tournament was held Aug. 18-20. The club's premier tennis event clearly demonstrated that tennis is the sport of a lifetime with participants ranging in age from 16 to 78.

The wide range in age was equally matched by extreme weather conditions from hot, hazy and humid on Friday and Saturday to a chilling rain on Sunday, driving the tournament indoors for the first time in its history.

An outstanding field of 20 women's teams and 30 men's teams made up this year's draw. The ladies chose a round-robin format with the top four teams advancing to a main flight semi-final and final rounds. The next four teams similarly advanced into a consolation semi- and final rounds.

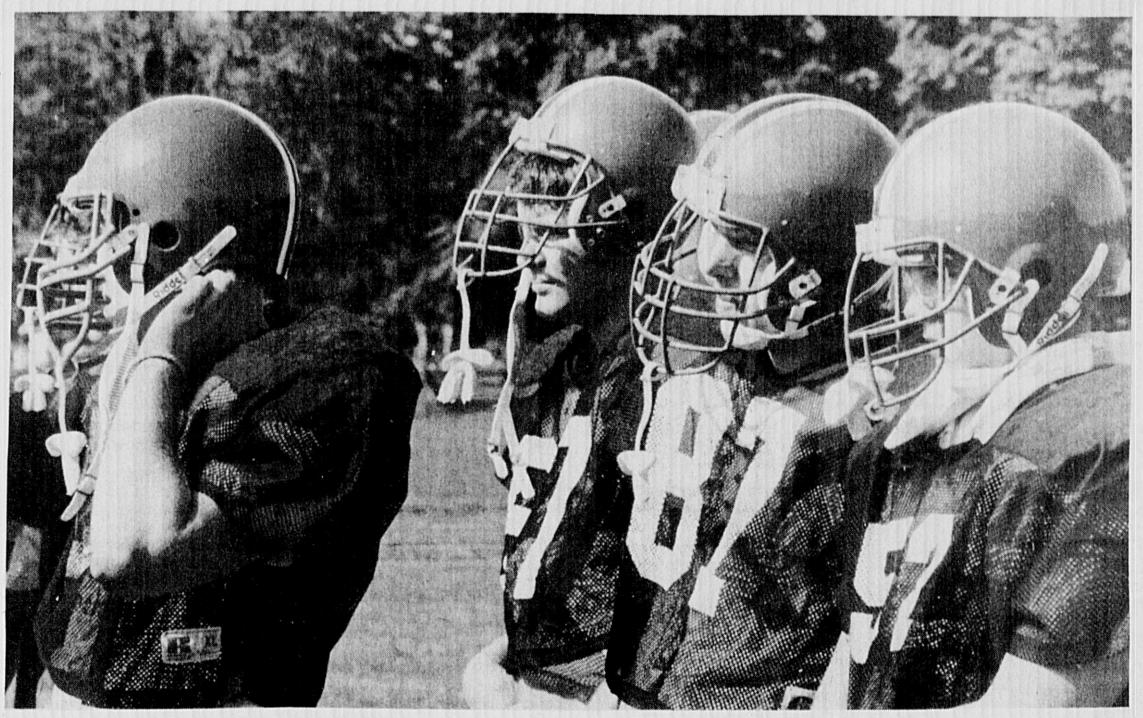

Helen Campobasso and guest Sardi Carmichael narrowly missed gaining the consolations by losing a tie-breaker match to Shauna Colozzi and Carrie Tozza. Semi-final consolation action saw Ann Palumbo and her partner Maureen Kourtz defeat Maureen Rowe and guest Sally Regan 6-4, 6-3. The other semi-final went to the hard hitting team of Colozzi/Tozza who just plain overpowered Louise Trakimas and Molly Mugler 6-1, 6-0.

In a marathon final, the young legs of Colozzi/Tozza overcame a 5-7 loss in the first set to Palumbo and Kourtz but went on to win by the score of 7-5, 7-5 in the final two sets, in what proved to be a grueling and well played match that lasted nearly three hours.

The women's main flight semi-finals, paired round robin winners Katherine Dunn and Sarah Duran against the sister team of Judi Nicholson and Linda Fuller. Dunn

High school gym to open Sept. 24

The Winchester Community Use of Schools program will begin its 17th season on Monday evening, Sept. 24. As usual the gym will be open Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. for adults only, 18 years or older.

The program is open to all residents who want to keep fit, to exercise for health reasons, to meet new townspeople, get more use out of their tax dollar or simply enjoy themselves.

The admission fee is $2 for all Winchester residents with positive identification, i.e., license and $4 for all nonresidents. Identification cards are issued to town residents to use to gain admission for $2. This is an attempt to eliminate confusion at the entrance desk, and it is hoped that with the residents cooperation this will work smoothly.

The weekend schedule will go into effect on Saturday, Dec. 1, 1990. From this date forward the gym will be open on Saturdays and Sundays from 12:30 to 4 p.m., in addition to the Monday and Thursday evening schedule. On weekends, the program is open to students in the seventh grade and up — including adults. Families are invited to use the gym, especially on Sundays. However, youngsters below the seventh grade must be accompanied by a responsible adult. The fee is $1 for all nonadults.

The program offers many features. However, the main game is basketball. No courts are reserved and all games are on a first-come, first-play basis. There is usually a volleyball group that meets regularly on Monday evenings which welcomes new faces. In addition there is an excellent weight room for those familiar with the sport.

We also offer paddleball and provide paddles, but you must bring your paddleball or tennis ball. Winter joggers often use the gym when weather conditions prohibit outdoor running; 11½ laps equals one mile.

No locker rooms or showers are available, so come dressed appropriately. The only entrance to the gym during our hours of operation is the parking lot area where you can also park. During school vacations the gym will be open its regularly scheduled hours only. If school is cancelled due to inclement weather or for any other reason, the gym is also closed.

Many people both residents and nonresidents alike have commented on how much they appreciate being able to use the gym and how they enjoy seeing a town building being fully utilized, according to Mike Marino. "We look forward to another successful year of providing a necessary service to the residents of Winchester," said Marino, thanking residents for their cooperation.

Newpro all-stars lose to Cambridge

The Newpro All Stars ended their season Saturday night in the pouring rain. The result of the game was as dismal as the weather. Winchester dropped a medal round game to Cambridge, 8-6.

The game started very quietly with both teams going in order in the first, each pitcher striking out two. Winchester pitcher, Andy Sullivan, ran into a bit of trouble in the second. He loaded the bases on two walks and a hit batter. He was able to pitch out of the trouble. Winchester answered with a threat of their own. Winchester got three walks and a base hit and were unable to score.

Cambridge reached the score board in the third on two base hits and a series of Winchester miscues. Winchester scored twice in the bottom of the third when Paul McGowan walked, Brian Caruso singled, and Andy Sullivan doubled to give Winchester the lead 2-1. The lead was short lived, however, as Cambridge tallied four times in the fourth on three hits and three walks and a whole lot of misplayed balls. Winchester went down quickly in the fourth and trailed 6-2 at this point. Cambridge went quietly in the fifth.

In the home half of the fifth, Winchester loaded the bases on three walks. With two outs, Mike McGreenery lined a double to centerfield, scoring all three runners. Bill Shields then followed with a single driving in McGreenery and tying the game at six. Momentum seemed to be shifting. Cambridge answered with two of their own in the sixth for the margin of victory and sending Cambridge on to the gold medal game against Reading.

This was an interesting season for these players. No Winchester little league team has ever played more games in the summer. It has been a new experience for the players, coaches, and parents. The boys accomplished a whole lot this summer and far surpassed the manager's expectations.

The team won the Bambino district 3 championship and earned a trip to the State Tournament. The Bay State league brought a gold medal, placement in the highest division, and a trip to the tournament of Champions where the team lost in the semi-finals. The team had a winning record for the summer and a successful one at that. A special thanks to Nick Cogliani for sponsoring this team and allowing it all to happen.

There is a lot more to the summer season than W's and L's. We all hope that these players have learned a great deal about baseball and sportsmanship and will carry this experience forward as they continue their baseball careers. The players have benefitted from the new relationships that have developed over the course of the summer, both internally and with the other towns. The season was long and hard but at least in my opinion, worth the effort.

Please remember Bambino registration for the 1991 season will be held at the McCall Junior High on Sept. 18 and 20 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. in the cafeteria and on Saturday September 22 in the cafeteria from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Previous action

The Newpro All Stars began play in the Bay State tournament of champions last week. This tournament is for the top eight teams in the 32-team league. Winchester entered this tournament seeded fifth.

Winchester was proud to be hosting a part of this tournament at West Side field. A special thanks to the Department of Public Works for putting the fields back in shape. Thanks to Joe Marrone for donating his landscaping equipment to put the finishing touches on the field and lending his expertise to the project.

The first opponent in the tournament was Brookline, the fourth seed. Winchester wasted little time in showing the higher seed they meant business. Winchester tallied five times in the top of the first. Paul McGowan lead with a double, Brian Caruso walked, Andy Sullivan singled, Bob Marrone singled, Bill Shields singled, Greg Miles singled and Mike Pacheco doubled for the five runs.

Mike McGreenery was the starting pitcher for Winchester. He struck out the side in order in the top of the first. Winchester got a hit in the second by Bob Marrone but could not score. McGreenery yielded a solid hit in the second, but no runs and struck out another Brookline batter. Winchester went quietly in the third. McGreenery yielded to straight hits to open the third and

Girls' all-stars are winners

The future of the girls softball in Winchester looks brighter as the Summer All-Star Team (age 15 and under) completed their season with a winning 8-4 record.

The team was coached for the second consecutive season by Bob McKinley, Rick Allen and Ed Russo. They played in the Middle-Essex League which featured teams from Andover, Reading, North Reading, Burlington and Melrose vying for the top spot most of the season.

"Playing against the stronger competition has been quite a challenge for our girls and they have responded very well," said McKinley. "The biggest challenge each year has been facing better pitching each game, and adding bunting and stealing to their game. We spent most of our preseason practicing these skills and the girls have gotten better and better each week," added the coach.

This year's young squad was led by catcher/infielder Karen Koenig, the only Winchester High School player who was on this year's team. She should be joined next year at Winchester High School with incoming freshman pitcher/infielder Esme Baker and Anna Betcher, along with infielder's Lauren McKinley and Jenna DeSimone, catcher Chloe Caci and outfielder's Leslie Parks, Emily McDowell and Lauren Wolfson.

Heading up the younger group of players was two year starting shortstop Julie Russo, outfielder's Janine Allen, Kristen McKinley, and Emily Davis as well as infielder's Michelle Russo and Bonnie Benson. This younger group of players will be heard from in the future, according to the team's coaching staff.

With this type of commitment from the players, coaches and the families it won't be long before Winchester becomes one of the softball contenders in the region.

Making plans

Carroll team ends season

Members of the 10-year-old Carroll Insurance all-star team are, from left, front row: bat boys Billy and David Notartomaso; second row: Mike Notartomaso, Jeff Davis, Mike Roscillo, Kevin Shanahan, Brian d'Entremont, Ryan Buchanan; third row: Dan White, Mark Shannon, Mark Sullivan, Joe Lang, Chris DeSimone, Brian Russo; and back row: Coach Paul Notartomaso, manager John McGeehan, Coaches Larry Davis and Joe Lang.

The Carroll Insurance 10 year old All Stars ended their season last week. After completing a successful regular season, in the Bay State League, they were seeded in the Tournament of Champions. This season-ending tournament seeds the top eight teams in a double elimination format.

Winchester's first opponent was the number two seed, Waltham. The game started off on a positive tone as Winchester scored three runs on three hits in the first inning. The hits came off the bats of Mike Notartomaso, Chris DeSimone, and Kevin Shanahan. The runs were scored by Jeff Davis, Chris DeSimone, and Mark Sullivan.

The tide quickly turned as Waltham scored six runs in their half of the first. Winchester knew they were in for a battle this night. They got one back in the second and forced Waltham to change pitchers in the middle of the second inning. Unfortunately, the new pitcher came in and retired the first 11 batters he faced. This had Winchester entering the sixth inning trailing 10-4.

If there was any trademark for Winchester this year it was their desire and their refusal to give up. So they dug in and put forth another fine effort. Brian d'Entremont began the sixth with a perfect bunt down the third base line. Dan White walked and Mike Roscillo reached on an error to load the bases. All three scored when Mike Notartomaso hit a sacrifice fly to left and Chris DeSimone singled to center. This is where the well ran dry and Winchester lost 10-7.

The offensive star was Chris DeSimone who had two hits and two RBI. Joe Lang led the defense by throwing out two runners stealing.

Reading

On Wednesday, Aug. 22 Winchester met the talented 10-year-olds from Reading. This was a must-win game for both teams, as a loss would mean elimination from the tournament.

Once again, Winchester scored early. Kevin Shanahan opened the game with a single and scored after Jeff Davis singled. Reading came back with four runs in the bottom of the first. The highlight of their inning was a long home run by their big first baseman.

Afetr a collision at home plate, pitcher Mark Sullivan had to come out of the game. Brad Murphy quickly got ready to take his place.

Winchester scored three in the second to tie the score 4-4. The three hits that produced these runs were by Mark Shannon, Brian Russo, and Mike Notartomaso.

Reading scored three in their half of the second to take the lead once again. But Winchester keeps battling. In the third inning singles by Brian d'Entremont, Joe Lang and Brian Russo helped produce three more runs to, once again, tie the score.

Reading scored once in the fourth inning and held an 8-7 lead going into the last inning. Thier potential really was cut short with an inning-ending catch by Ryan Buchanan. Winchester began to claw away. They managed to score two runs, by Murphy and Russo, on only one hit, by Notartomaso. Winchester led 9-8.

All Winchester needed was three outs from the hard hitting Reading team. They got what they needed with a strike out and two fine plays by Mark Sullivan, who had just reentered the game at shortstop, after his injury.

Brad Murphy earned the victory in this one after entering the game unexpectedly and pitching the rest of the way.

The offense was led by Mike Notartomaso and Brian Russo, who each had two hits and two RBI. Jeff Davis also contributed two hits. Mark Shannon played a solid defensive game at first base. Peabody

Winchester advanced to the next game on Thursday, Aug. 23 against the number three seeded team from Peabody.

For the third day in a row Winchester found itself in a real battle. This one started as a low scoring game, but by the end it

Neil Hurley and Steve Swartz, left, fell to Alex Popp and Billy Wolfe in the men's main flight match.

In the ladies' round robin, from left, Maureen Kourtz and Ann Palumbo faced Shauna Colozzi and Carrie Tozza in a consolation final. Colozzi and Tozzi won the match, 7-5, 7-5.

Janice Swartz and Donna DeDomenico, left, topped the team of Katherine Dunn and Sarah Duran in the ladies' main flight match.

and Duran were able to apply relentless pressure and won in a well-contested match 6-2, 6-2. In the other semi-final the team of Janice Swartz and Donna DeDomenico had an easy 6-0 first set against Abbie Culhane and Karen Riley but were pushed to 6-4 in the second before winning the match.

The ladies' main flight final saw a hotly contested first set go to the DeDomenico/Swartz duo 7-5. With the first set victory under their belt and their confidence riding high, they went on to defeat Dunn and Duran by the score of 6-1 in the second. This match featured hard hitting, aggressive volleys and overheads that caught everyone's attention.

The men's play began Saturday on what may have been the most oppressive day of the summer. At days end the top eight seeds had all gained entry into the quarterfinals as so accurately predicted by the seeding committee.

Quarterfinal action demonstrated the competitiveness of the teams in that three of the four matches went the three set distance. Noteworthy of mention in the quarters was the marathon match between the number two seeded team of Ralph "Yours" Bates and his partner Lou Desmarteaux, against the number seven seeds Doug Pierson and Gordon Nicholson. The score of 3-6, 7-6 (10-8), 7-6 (7-2) describes the match precisely with Bates/Desmarteaux prevailing.

Other quarterfinal action involved the number one seed and defending champions Alex Popp and Billy Wolfe playing in a highly spirited match with Chris Aronson and Frank Butara. In what can only be described as a see-saw battle (royal) Wolfe and Popp came out on top 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. As an added attraction to the spectators Billy Wolfe put on a spontaneous physical fitness demonstration by doing push-ups(?) between the second and third sets. Go figure!

In one semi-final, the team of Neil Hurley and Steve Swartz were able to further wear down Desmarteaux and Ralph's voice, which began to weaken and falter from excessive use of "yours." After a close first set win of 7-5, they breezed past the spent Bates/Desmarteaux duo 6-1 for the victory.

The other semi-final featured incredible gets and just an awesome display of shotmaking by both sides. But Wolfe and Popp were in the "zone" and would not be denied the win 6-2, 6-3 in an extremely entertaining match.

In the final Popp and Wolfe continued their torrid play with a dominating and powerful attack over Hurley and Swartz winning 6-1, 6-3 for their second straight WSTC member-quest victory. Popp was heard to comment after the match, "I wish I could package these last four sets of tennis!" (Alex, if you figure out how to do that, there are plenty of us who would be interested in a package deal!)

In the men's consolation semi-final round Bob Trakimas and John Sullivan scored a come from behind victory over Leo Lauretano and Steve Richter 6-7 (5-7), 6-0, 6-2. The other semi-final was contested by the teams of Jerry Dionne and Joe Tozza playing Al Samoiloff and Richie Rowe. Rowe/Samoiloff won handily 6-1, 6-3 to set up the final with Sullivan/Trakimas.

The final was a contrast of hard hitting by the Trakimas' team against angled placement by the Rowe/Samoiloff duo. In a close, competitive match Rowe and Samoiloff showed their many years of experience by winning 6-4, 6-4.

Although there was excellent tennis all weekend, the women's luncheon on Friday and the Saturday night dinner party under the "big-top" all combined to make this one of the most memorable weekends of the summer.

A large thank-you to Judi Nicholson and her tennis committee, John Kelley and the staff at the Swim Club, and an extra special thank you to Maureen Rowe, Marylou Colozzi and Bob Collins for their help throughout the entire season. Through the efforts of these people and many others who have volunteered their time so willingly.

Season ends for 10-year-old team heated up considerably.

Peabody scored once in the second. Winchester came right back with three in the third on hits from Davis, Sullivan, and Russo. Peabody tied the game in their half of the third.

Winchester took the lead once again in the fourth when they scored a run on hits by Notartomaso and Sullivan. The floodgates opened up for Peabody in the fourth inning. They sent 10 batters to the plate and scored six runs on three hits. Entering the last inning Winchester trailed 9-4.

Once again, Winchester needed to rally in their last at bat to extend their season. The inning started with walks to d'Entremont and Roscillo, Shannon reached on an error. All three scored as Notartomaso singled, Davis walked, and Sullivan singled, also scoring Notartomaso.

These were the last four runs for Winchester this year, as the rally fell short and Winchester was eliminated 9-8.

The offensive leader in this game was Mark Sullivan, who was four for four with three RBI. Mike Notartomaso and Jeff Davis both contributed two hits.

The Winchester Tens ended their season with an overall record of 12-9. After starting off 1-5, they won 11 of their last 15. This included a streak of six in a row that lad to a gold medal victory.

stranded them on the corners, striking out another batter along the way.

In the fourth, Winchester added a run when Bob Marrone tripled deep to left field and Jarrod Galante followed with a rocket shot for a double to left. McGreenery yielded another lead-off hit in the fourth but struck out two more and fielded a pop up himself to retire Brookline scoreless. Winchester broke the game open in the fifth tallying three more times. Bill Shields lead the inning being hit by a pitch (nice glare Bill), Eric Grant walked, Alex Racioppi sacrificed the runners to second and third perfectly, Paul McGowan singled them both in. McGowan stole second and third and scored on an Andy Sullivan base hit.

In the Brookline fifth, the lead-off batter walked and couldn't advance as McGreenery struck out two more. Winchester scored again in the sixth on three straight base hits by Bill Shields, Eric Grant and Alex Racioppi. Andy Sullivan then deposited a mamouth clout deep to centerfield for a grand slam and four runs. In the sixth, Brookline got a run on a triple and an error. McGreenery then got the next three batters to ground to shortstop Brian Caruso. Final score Winchester 13, Brookline 1.

McGreenery pitched marvelously. He had nine strike outs and one walk while scattering five hits. Winchester's offense left no base uncovered. The home team pounded out 15 hits on the way to the rout. Next up, the number one seed, Arlington.

On Wednesday night the Newpro All Stars played the number one seed in the Tournament of Champions, Arlington. This game featured superb pitching on both sides. Winchester received outstanding pitching from Eric Grant and timely hitting on the way to a 3-1 upset.

Winchester may have played their best all around game of the summer. The home team made no errors, the problem that has plagued this team since the beginning of the summer. Winchester received timely hitting from Andy Sullivan, Jarrod Galante, and 11-year-old Brian Caruso. Eric Grant has emerged as a solid pitcher with this game being his best effort of the summer.

Applications available for fall tennis tourney

Entry forms are now available for the annual Winchester Fall Tennis Tournament to be played the weekends of Sept. 8 and 9 and Sept. 15 and 16.

The applications can be picked up at the Packer Courts, the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center and the News Shop. Completed forms should be sent to Lance and Moira James, 26 Mt. Pleasant Street, no later than 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 5. Draw sheets with starting times will be posted at the Packer Courts on Friday, Sept. 7 between 5 and 7 p.m.

The 61st Annual Fall Tennis Championship is sponsored by the Winchester Tennis Association. Some changes have been made in this year's scheduling to encourage participation at all levels.

Women's singles, women's doubles and senior men's singles will be started and completed the weekend of Sept. 8 and 9. Mixed doubles will be held the weekend of Sept. 15 and 16. The men's singles and the men's doubles events will once again span both weekends.

All Winchester residents and town employees 16 years and older are eligible to play. Entrants are limited to one singles event, but may play up to three events in total. Tournament organizers are Karen and Ted Martin and Lance and Moira James.

Haskell named associate dean at Kennedy School

Chester D. Haskell has been named associate dean for degree programs at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government, Dean Robert Putnam announced today.

Haskell, currently special assistant to the dean of Harvard's Faculty of Arts and Sciences (FAS), assumed responsibility for the Kennedy School's masters and doctoral programs on May 15. He will oversee student affairs and services, work with faculty to refine the curriculum, manage the administrative and financial budgets, and direct the operations of the degree programs.

"Chet Haskell has an ideal combination of experience and insight, and we all look forward to working with him," said Putnam. "He holds advanced degrees in public administration and policy, has taught in the classroom, and is an excellent manager. He has extensive experience that is directly relevant to our goal of deepening the internationalization of the Kennedy school. And he is active in local government, which is an area of great interest to many of our students."

"I'm very excited to have the chance to work with Bob Putnam and the faculty, students and staff of the Kennedy School," said Haskell. "It's not often that one gets the opportunity to bring together one's professional interests, experiences and responsibilities in the context of an institution that promotes something in which one feels strongly. Pursuit of excellence in education and training for the public service is something in which I believe and toward which I will devote myself."

Prior to joining FAS, Haskell served for six years as chief executive officer of Harvard's Center for International Affairs (CFIA). He previously directed all administrative and teaching aspects of the University of Southern California's Washington Public Affairs Center as its associate director.

Haskell also directed the public management training component of the National Center for Urban Ethnic Affairs in Washington, D.C., and developed legal and legislative training programs for the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

Haskell, a 1969 graduate of Harvard College, earned a M.A. from the University of Virginia in 1971, and Master's (1981) and Doctorate (1986) degrees in public administration from the University of Southern California.

ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENTS

Air Force

Richard P. Haggerty, son of William P. and Lorraine Haggerty of Glenwood Avenue, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of staff sergeant.

Haggerty is a transportation support section supervisor at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio.

He graduated in 1984 from Winchester School, and received an associate degree in 1990 from the Community College of the Air Force.

Tufts

Denise D. Dewald, a 1990 graduate of Tufts University's College of Liberal Arts and Jackson, has been awarded the Durkee Scholarship.

A resident of Winchester, Dewald received the award for undertaking a research project in the field of chemistry.

The Durkee Scholarship was established by the bequest of Robert C. Brown, who graduated from Tufts in 1888, in honor of his sister, Henrietta N. Durkee, who earned three degrees from Tufts, and Durkee's husband, the late Prof. Frank W. Durkee, who received undergraduate and graduate degrees from Tufts and an honorary degree in 1921, and their children.

Smith

Lauren Christine Murray, daughter of Lawrence and Anne Murray of Olde Village Drive, was named as a First Group Scholar and was named to the dean's list at Smith College for her high academic achievement during the 1989-90 school year.

Murray graduated from Winchester High School and is majoring in English literature at Smith.

Providence

Winchester residents have been named to the dean's list at Providence College for the spring semester, 1990.

Named to the honors list were:

Marielle Bentley of Stratford Road, a french major and member of the class of 1992.

Jennifer Bush of Buckman Drive, an undeclared major and member of the class of 1993.

Daniel W. Marquardt of Johnson Road, a finance major and member of the class of 1991.

Deirdre M. Skahan of Wildwood Street, an american studies major and member of the class of 1991.

To attain dean's list status, a student must maintain a 3.25 or higher cumulative average, with no grade lower than 'C'. A grade of 'B' at the college is equal to a 3.0.

Tufts

Amy K. Hirschfeld, a 1990 graduate of Tufts University's College of Liberal Arts and Jackson, has been awarded the Marianne J. H. Witherby Prize in archaeology.

A resident of Winchester, Hirschfeld received the award in recognition of her scholastic ability, dedication to the discipline, and resourcefulness.

Northeastern

Winfred Lee of Winchester has been awarded a master's degree in business administration from Northeastern University's College of Business Administration.

The executive MBA program, offered at the Dedham executive facility, is an intensive, 18-month MBA probram designed for middle- and senior-level managers.

Lake Forest

A Winchester student graduated in May from Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill.

Sarah E. Raab, daughter of Mrs. Abigail Hurlbut, of Wildwood Street. Raab, a psychology major at LFC, is a graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover. While at Lake Forest College, Raab served on the college's Campus Entertainment Committee.

She was a member of the Alpha Pi Delta sorority and the Social Services Organization, which provides students with opportunities for community service through volunteer work. Raab spent the spring 1988 term studying in the college's program in Greece.

Rochester

Marcus John Woolcott has received bachelor of arts degrees in history and political science from the University of Rochester.

The student lives on Sheffield Road.

Two exhibit in Andover show

The Andovers Artists Guild, Inc. and The Department of Community Services invites the public to the 16th annual Art in the Park to be held on Saturday, Sept. 15 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (rain date Sunday, Sept. 16) in Central Park in Andover.

Two Winchester artists will be exhibiting in this year's show; they are: Sterling Phillips and Pat Stolte.

This Fine Arts show of more than 120 New England artists is free to the public and features paintings in all media, graphics, photography, drawings and sculpture. The artists compete for ribbons and cash awards for outstanding works in all categories.

Food concessions, free parking and rest room facilities are provided on the show grounds, located off Main Street at Chestnut and Bartlet Streets, Andover. Proceeds go to the Andovers Artists Guild's scholarship fund for student artists.

Parent-to-Parent program begins

Parent to Parent is an organization established in 1982 under the auspices of the Winchester Interagency Council, funded primarily by the EnKa Society. Programs provided include community education workshops, panel discussions, and parenting groups.

On Sept. 18, Dr. James P. Garvin, president of the National Middle School Association, will present his views on successful middle schools and the needs of middle school students. Garvin has conducted parent workshops in over 300 middle schools, and has been invited to the White House twice for his participation in a National Commission studying exemplary middle schools. Garvin's insights should prove informative and useful to parents of McCall students and parents of fifth graders interested in what lies ahead. This program, co-sponsored by the McCall Middle School Parent Association, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the McCall Cafeteria.

The first parenting group offered this year is a six-week group for parents of McCall Middle School students. Topics to be covered include enhancing communication, setting limits, collaborative problem solving, and peer relationships. Group members will have the opportunity to decide the focus of the group, learn new skills and share ideas and suggestions with other parents.

The group leader is Dr. Hillary Turkewitz, a clinical psychologist and the Coordinator of Parent to Parent. There will be from 10 to 15 participants. The fee for the six week program is $30. The first group meeting is Thursday, Oct. 11, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., in the Public Safety Building.

To register or obtain more information, contact Turkewitz at 729-7945.

'Patience' tryouts are scheduled

The Winchester Players will hold auditions for the November 1990 production, the operetta 'Patience,' by Gilbert and Sullivan, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 9, 10 and 11, at 7 p.m., in Metcalf Hall at the Winchester Unitarian Church, 478 Main Street, corner Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway.

One of the best of Gilbert and Sullivan's works, 'Patience' is the story of a naive milkmaid who is wooed by a lionized poet (Bunthorne) though she loves his rival (Grosvenor). The roles include:

Patience — the soprano lead, a young and lovely dairymaid. A demanding vocal role.

Bunthorne — The Male lead, patter baritone, an insincere port.

Grosvenor — patter baritone, "an idyllic poet."

Colonel Calverly — patter baritone, an officer of the Dragoon Guards.

Duke of Dunstable — tenor, officer of the Dragoon Guards.

Major Murgatroyd — the third officer.

Mr. Bunthorne's Solicitor — nonsinging role.

Rapturous Maidens — the ladies Angela (mezzo soprano), Saphir (soprano), Ella (soprano) and Jane (an imposing contralto.)

Chorus of Rapturous Maidens

Chorus of Dragoon Guards

'Patience' is being directed by Dr. C.V. Berney, a well-known director of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas. Performances will be in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church on Nov. 2, 3, 4, 9, 10 and 11. Rehearsals will begin on Sept. 16 at 7:15 p.m., and there will be four or five rehearsals per week. Not all characters will be required at every rehearsal.

Scripts of 'Patience' are available at the reference desk at the Library, to be read in the library only. For further information, call the co-producer Karen Barton at 729-0094.

Backstage crew members are always welcome at the Players, as are actors. 'Patience' is sponsored in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council.

Northeastern has open house at WHS

Winchester-area residents are invited to an open house hosted by Northeastern University, Wednesday, Sept. 5 from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Winchester High School, to celebrate the University's offering of college courses in Winchester starting this fall.

Winchester High School will become the University's 15th satellite campus for courses in its part-time undergraduate programs. Classes begin Sept. 24 for the fall academic quarter.

Guests at the open house will find information on Northeastern's part-time programs and individual courses in Business, Health, Liberal Arts, Criminal Justice, and Engineering Technology. Academic advisers will be available to help students select courses and plan programs. Information also will be available on financial aid, and on the services of Northeastern's career development and placement dept., and counseling and testing department. Students also may register for fall classes.

A schedule guide to courses will be available at the open house, or can be obtained directly from University College. Most classes meet once a week from 5:50 to 8 p.m. or from 8:05 to 10:15 p.m. for the 12-week fall academic quarter. Two courses are offered in special six-week sessions: Introduction to Business and Management 1 and 2, on Wednesdays from 5:50 to 10:15 p.m., from Sept. 24 to Nov. 3, and from Nov. 5 to Dec. 15, respectively.

For information on the open house, registration, and classes, students may contact University College, Northeastern University, at 437-2400.

Bottle drive set for Sept. 15

The next ABC bottle drive will be on Saturday, Sept. 15 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. The collection point is at the Sons of Italy parking lot, adjacent to the town transfer station.

All returnable bottles, cans and plastic soft-drink and beer containers will be appreciated. It would be helpful to separate by plastic, glass and cans.

Winchester's A Better Chance program is in its 20th year of providing a challenging high school education to highly motivated minority students.

Volunteers to help sort bottles are always needed and most welcome. If you can spare two hours on Sept. 15 to help, call Hal Richardson at 721-1980.

Friends of Art sponsor day trip

Join the Winchester Friends of Art on Saturday, Sept. 15 for the "Bricbottom Box Lunch Tour." The tour will include lunch, transportation to and from Bricbottom, a gallery exhibit, and individual meetings with five artists in their studio/living space.

The day begins at 11:30 a.m. in the courtyard of the Church of the Epiphany at the corner of Church Street and Central Street. Guests will enjoy an "artfully" presented box lunch buffet and then board a bus for Bricbottom in Somerville.

Bricbottom was conceived as an artists' haven to afford reasonable work/living space convenient to downtown Boston. The group is fortunate to have five artists who share their work and provide a glimpse of the Boston art scene.

At Bricbottom, the tour begins in their gallery with an exhibition of resident artists. The group then proceeds to visit five artists' quarters: Julia Shepley, David Judelson, Jan Arabus, Phyllis Ewen, and Lea Cyr. All have exhibited widely in the Boston area galleries, museums, and outdoor public spaces. These artists have received numerous awards and grants and have taught extensively at Boston area colleges and universities.

Julia Shepley is a sculptor who carves and constructs pieces out of wood and makes preliminary colored pastel and ink drawings that stand out on their own. She will explain both the source of her imagery and how she works with materials to create a work of art.

David Judelson is a former architect turned sculptor who works in many media, including wood and ceramic. His work uses the principles of architecture and geometry to create both small scale interior work and large scale outdoor site-specific sculpture. He will discuss the commission process and show works in various stages of completion as well as finished works.

Jan Arabus is a printmaker who specializes in large scale figurative monotypes. She will show her print studio as well as complete art work.

Phyllis Ewen is a painter and sculptor who creates painted wall sculptors and colored monotypes.

Lea Cyr is a sculptor who creates painted wall relief and oil and water color monotypes.

The bus will return to the Church of the Epiphany around 4 p.m. The tour promises to be an unusual and stimulating way to start fall. Tickets are $25 per person, and all proceeds support the Winchester School art department.

Tickets must be purchased in advance due to limited space. For tickets, or for additional information, call Barbara Potter at 729-1856 or Margaret Reuland at 721-0751.

LIBRARY LINES

Library holds fall story hours

The Winchester Public Library Children's Services Department has announced the schedule for fall story time programs. In order to include as many children as possible, there will be two sessions: session 1 from mid-September to mid-October, and session 2 from mid-October to mid-November. Registration for both sessions will begin on Monday, Sept. 10 in the Children's Room (no phone registration). Story programs are for Winchester residents only.

"Twos on Tuesdays" will be offered at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. during sessions 1 and 2. "Story Circle" for three-year-olds will be held on Mondays at 10 a.m. during session 1 and on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. during session 2. "Story Crafts" for four and five-year-olds will be held on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. during session 1 and Mondays at 2 p.m. during session 2.

Evening Family Story Times will be offered on two Monday evenings a month at 6:30 p.m. No registration is required. The first two programs will be held on Sept. 10 and 24.

For information on children's programs, please call the Children's Services Department at 721-7140.

Winter hours at library

The Winchester Public Library returned to its winter hours Sept. 4. These hours will be: Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The Children's Room hours will be: Monday from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The Library will be closed Friday and Saturday.

Students and other library users who use the Winchester Public Library for research should be aware of the wealth of information contained in the vertical files. These files contain the library's collection of leaflets, booklets, and clippings. One file contains the library's collection of maps, one contains information about the Town of Winchester, the third contains general information.

Among the very useful sources included in this file are the "Opposing Viewpoints" pamphlets. This series of pamphlets discusses controversal issues such as abortion, gun control, and freedom of speech. They are made up of articles that express opinions on these issues, reprinted from journals of news and opinions.

Each pamphlet includes several points of view. They are handy for students, or anyone who wants a more thorough understanding of the issues of today.

For information on anything mentioned in this column, please call the Community Services Librarian at the Winchester Public Library at 721-7171.

HARTFORD WHALERS SALUTE 1990 GORDIE HOWE SCHOLARSHIP WINNER.

Supporting area youth has always been one goal of The Hartford Whalers. That's why we are the proud sponsor of The Hartford Whalers/Gordie Howe Scholarship Award.

This annual scholarship recognizes both academic and athletic excellence in New England high school seniors.

The Hartford Whalers salute the 1990 recipient, Brian O'Connor of Arlington High School, Arlington, Mass. We all wish Brian continued success in the classroom and on the ice at West Point.

Congratulations, Brian.

HARTFORD WHALERS

PEOPLE

Chute completes travel program

Cheryl Chute of Johnson Road recently completed an intensive six and one-half week program at Travel Education Center in Cambride.

Chute is now prepared for a career in the travel industry. A 1985 graduate of Winchester High School, she received an associate's degree in retail management from Chamberlain School of Retail in Boston.

Travel Education Center is affiliated with Crimson/Heritage/Thomas Cook Travel. The school is licensed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and accredited by the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools.

Golden re-elected as alumni trustee

Attorney Maurene L. Golden of Robinson Park was recently re-elected as an alumni trustee of Tufts University. During her initial five-year term on the Board of Trustees, she served as a member of its academic affairs and development campaign for Tufts, and honorary degree committees.

Golden is a graduate of the Dana Hall School, Jackson College of Tufts University, the Tufts University Graduate School and Suffolk University Law School. She previosly served Tufts University as president of the Jackson College Association of Tufts Alumnae, chairman of the Tufts Alumni Council and as the first woman elected to be president of the Tufts University Alumni Association.

Active in numerous civic, professional and philanthropic activities, Golden has also served for many years as a corporator of the Dana Hall School of Wellesley and as a corporator of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford.

Three to enter Bates College

Three graduates of Winchester High School will be entering Bates College as first-year students this fall.

Joseph H. Armstrong, son of Joseph and Marion Armstrong of Hawthorne Road, was a member of the soccer and track teams, the National Honor Society, the Student Union and the drug and alcohol program at the high school.

Jenna-Marie Maconochie, daughter of James and Rosemary Maconochie of Pond Street, was a member of the soccer, basketball and softball teams, the Spanish Club, the Student Union and the National Honor Society.

Kurt J. Rosenberger, son of Peter and Amy Rosenberger of Cabot Street, was a member of the swim team, the band, and participated in school plays at Winchester High.

Bates College is located in Lewiston, Maine.

Simmons named tax manager

Michael A. Simmons has been promoted to manager in the tax department of the Boston office of KPMG Peat Marwick, the international accounting firm. He specializes in the taxation of multinational corporations, international executives and manufacturers.

Simmons earned his bachelor's degree in political science from Tufts University and his master's of business administration from Babson College. He joined Peat Marwick in 1985.

He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

A native of Winchester, he currently resides in Burlington with his wife Marnie and their two children.

Fitzer honored by Mount Auburn

Mrs. Susan A. Fitzer, R.N. of Robinhood Road was recently honored after 20 years of dedicated service as a staff nurse in the emergency room at Mount Auburn Hospital.

Fitzer is a graduate of Matignon High School in Cambridge, the Mount Auburn School of Nursing in Cambridge, and the University of Lowell School of Nursing.

She is the daughter of Daniel and the late Letitia Zenga of Cambridge Street. She is the sister of Dr. Daniel W. Zenga Jr., chief staff psychologist at Blue Earth County Services in Monkato, Minn.; and the late Sgt. Ronald Paul Zenga of the United States Air Force.

Fitzer and her husband Jerome are the parents of two daughters, Cynthia Marie and Kimberly Ann.

Rutherford attends ROTC advanced camp

Cadet Derek P. Rutherford, son of Paul F. and Jayne R. Rutherford of Sanborn Street, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp at Fort Bragg, N.C.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

Rutherford, a 1986 graduate of Winchester High School, is a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge.

Myers earns Army medal

First Lt. Stephen C. Myers has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal at Fort Stewart, Ga.

The achievement medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts or courage or other accomplishments.

Myers, son of Elaine J. Myers of Olde Village Drive, is a firing battery platoon leader with the 41st Field Artillery. He is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1987 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

Chen is awarded Rensselaer medal

Yu-Harn Chen of Wainwright Road was awarded the Rensselaer Medal by the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, N.Y.

Each year, Rensselaer presents the medal to high school students for outstanding achievements in the study of mathematics and science during their junior year. One junior from each of approximately 1,700 high schools is selected to receive the award.

Valeri honored for achievements

Carl Anthony Valeri of Pepper Hill Drive has been selected as an Outstanding Young Man of America for 1989.

The Outstanding Young Men of America program seeks to recognize the achievements and abilities of men between the ages of 21 and 40. These men are being honored for their outstanding civic and professional contributions to their communities, states, and their nation.

Checking it out

The opportunity to check out an authentic WWII B-24 bomber attracted many former B-24 crewmen to Hanscom Air Force Base, including Stu Bemis of Winchester, left. Bemis chats about old times with Bill Eagleson, center, and Walter Clayton of Chelmsford.

New Classified Service

Starting this week we opened our new telemarketing center designed to make placing your classified advertising faster when you call 617-729-SOLD.

Our Harte-Hanks Community Newspaper classified staff will help you place your ad and offer suggestions for making the ad even more effective.

This new service is part of our commitment to work more effectively for you.

Please bear with us should you experience any delays or inconveniences while trying to get through during our first week. We want to serve you and are intent on making the system work.

INFORMATION

OFFICE HOURS

Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DEADLINES

■ For placing classified line ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
■ For placing help wanted display ads - 12 noon Tuesdays
■ For placing real estate and automotive display ads - 4 p.m. Mondays

BEST BUYS

Best Buys cost you nothing. If you have an item for sale for $100 or less, just give us a call. We will run your 4 line ad free for one week. All we ask is that you put the price of your item in the ad. Private individuals only.

GARAGE SALES

To have a successful garage sale, just set the date and call Century Newspapers. Four lines for $13.00; $2.00 for each additional line. In addition to your ad, you'll receive a FREE garage sale kit upon request. All we ask is that you pre-pay your ad. The deadline for garage sales is 12 noon Tuesdays.

PAYMENT

Most classified line ads can be billed if you are within our billing area. For your convenience, we accept MasterCard and VISA. All display ads are prepaid unless you have established credit with us before placing your ad.

ACCEPTANCE

The publisher wants to do everything that is possible within the limits of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your product or service to the best advantage. Acceptance of an advertising order is deemed to occur only upon actual publication. However, no change will be made to your ad without your prior approval. Advertising is subject to the terms and provisions of the newspaper's official rate card.

ERRORS

Please check your ad the first week it appears. We are responsible for the first incorrect insertion of the ad, up to the actual value of space occupied by the error.

LEGAL NOTICES

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
The Trial Court
The Probate and Family Court Department
Probate of Will with/without Sureties
Middlesex Division Docket No. 90P3824E

Estate of John Arthur Mozzetta also known as John A. Mozzetta died February 19, 1990 late of Winchester in the County of Middlesex.

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that a certain instrument purporting to be the last will of said deceased may be proved and allowed and that Stephen J. Mozzetta of Bedford in the County of Middlesex be appointed executor without giving surety on his bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on September 11, 1990.

In addition you must file a written affidavit of objections to the petition, stating the specific facts and grounds upon which the objection is based, within (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

WITNESS, Sheila E. McGovern, First Justice of said Court at Cambridge, the seventh day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety.

LEGAL NOTICE
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Environmental Protection

Pursuant of M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 14(a) and the Massachusetts Contingency Plan (310 CMR 40.00), the Department of Environmental Protection announces that a Preliminary Assessment and/or Limited Site Investigation has been performed at the following location: PROPERTY, HILL STREET & ROCK AVENUE, WINCHESTER, MA No.3-0906.

This investigation has confirmed that a release of oil and/or hazardous materials has occurred at this location. Therefore, the Department has identified it as a confirmed disposal site. The Department has also determined that this site is a non-priority disposal site (as defined by M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 2). M.G.L. c. 21E, Section 3A (f) (3) requires that if feasible, permanent solutions be implemented at disposal sites. If a permanent solution is not feasible, then a temporary solution must be implemented, and a plan for achieving a permanent solution must be developed.

This site has also been granted a Waiver of Approvals by DEP. Waiver sites are non-priority disposal sites which have been granted a Waiver of Approvals by the Department, pursuant to 310 CMR 40.537. This waiver allows the person granted it to conduct remedial response actions at the disposal site without prior Department approval of these actions.

M.G.L. c. 21E and the Massachusetts Contingency Plan provide several opportunities for public notice of and involvement in decisions regarding response action at disposal sites, including: *The Chief Municipal Official and Board of Health of the community in which the site is located will be provided with notices of the results of investigations, plans for remedial responses, and field work involving the use of heavy construction equipment and/or protective clothing (310 CMR 40.202).

*Upon receipt of a petition from ten or more residents of the municipality in which the disposal site is located, or of a municipality potentially affected by a disposal site, a plan for involving the public in decisions regarding response actions at the site will be prepared and presented at a public meeting. This plan will be revised based on comments received, and will be implemented over the course of the response action (310 CMR 40.203).

For information on how to make an appointment to review the files and obtain more information on the confirmed disposal site referenced above, and the opportunities for public involvement during its remediation, please contact Karen Stromberg, DEP, Northeast Regional Office, Site Assessment and Cleanup Section, 5 Commonwealth Avenue, Woburn, MA 01801 (Telephone: 617/935-2160).

All kinds of women continue to join women's business groups

By Maureen McLellan
STAFF WRITER

Women have gained in the struggle for equality in the business world, but while they have taken spots in chamber of commerces, they still feel the need to belong to groups that are limited to their gender.

They want the sense of camaraderie with other women sharing similar experiences and difficulties making it in the market place.

Patricia Zinkowski, president-elect of the New England Women Business Owners and one of three women partners who run Flight Time Corp. — a successful Chestnut Hill-based air charter business — said she also belongs to the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"Just from my personal experience with my business, belonging to the chamber and aviation trade groups, I find my experiences have not been anywhere near as positive as those with NEWBO," said Zinkowski. "Sometimes women are intimidated when they're in a big group with men. With the women's groups, women are just so open to each other."

NEWBO's membership numbers reflect Zinkowski's feelings. She said that when she joined the regional group five years ago, it had a scant 35 members and now boasts 180 paying members who meet monthly at the Sheraton Lexington for dinner, networking and listening to speakers.

Unlike earlier days when women had relatively few choices among women's and mixed networking groups, they now often join more than one organization and switch from one to another to find those best suited to their needs and personalities.

Women are creating their own groups when they can't find a "good fit" elsewhere.

And with time and energy in short supply in women's lives, they are becoming increasingly interested in groups that meet near or in the towns

Corrections

■ A story in "Working" the week of Aug. 19 on day care needs clarification. A paragraph stating that full-time infant care openings average $195 to $230 for one child. It should also have said these prices are for day care centers in the metropolitan Boston area, but not for family day care, which costs less.

■ The "Company File" feature that week also stated incorrectly that Children's World Learning Center has 31 centers throughout the U.S. The company actually has a total of 20 centers, with 11 of them located in the Boston area.

"Working" regrets the errors.

COMPANY FILE:

New England Personnel/ New England Temps

Company headquarters: Point West Place, 111 Speen St., Framingham.

Time at that site: Harriet Kramer founded New England Personnel in 1981 in Framingham. The company was based at 5 Speen St. from 1981 to 1985, but relocated to larger offices at Point West Place in February 1985. New England Temps was founded in 1987 in response to requests from many of New England Personnel's client companies, which needed temps from a company familiar with their needs.

Size of facility: The companies occupy approximately 2,000 square feet of space in a building accessible to the Massachusetts Turnpike and all major roads.

Number of employees: New England Personnel has five people on staff and New England Temps employs about 325 people, three of whom work in-house.

Other offices: Both New England Personnel and New England Temps share one location, but have plans to expand in 1992.

Products and/or services: New England Personnel specializes in bringing together qualified applicants and potential employers. Highly trained personnel and consultants test, screen and check references to ensure the quality of employees being sent for interviews. They are also able to see potential in future employees.

New England Temps is in business to help companies find qualified employees at a moment's notice. By using a temporary employee, a company can catch up on work, hire extra employees during peak periods or replace a key person who is out sick. Both companies are equal opportunity employers.

How to apply for a job: For a temporary position, call (508) 875-1970 or (617) 431-7793. The temp company is an employer-paid service. All interviews are kept in complete confidence and early or late appointments can be arranged. Normal business hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community and/or social projects: Company employees are active in Make-A-Wish and the National Head Injury Foundation. They also work with the homeless and women who are recovering from alcohol and drug addictions. Both companies are involved in speaking to students at Natick High School and Framingham State College.

CAREERS:

Hotel and motel industry

By the Associated Press

The hotel and motel industry is a growing industry in need of help.

"There are simply not enough people to meet the requirements of a constantly expanding industry," says Roger Saunders, president of the American Hotel and Motel Association.

"Young people will find abundant openings as never before, in administration, computer technology, food and beverage, sales, room management, housekeeping, accounting — you name it," says Saunders, who is also chairman and chief executive officer of the Saunders Hotels Co., Boston.

Saunders says the travel business is now the nation's second biggest employer and "in just 10 years, by the turn of the century, travel will be the nation's No. 1 employer, with one out of every seven people in the work force."

He advises young people considering a career to look into hotel schools to prepare for the business.

But it is not a career only for young people, he says. "There are excellent income potentials for students and mothers of young children, or women whose children are grown. The same is true for senior citizens who want to work — whether 50, 60 or over 70. They are reliable, dependable workers and serve as role models for young people.

"The same is true for the handicapped who can and want to work."

Nurturing networks

All kinds of women continue to join women's business groups

Networks, From 1

where they live. These groups also respond to many women's desire to be more involved in their communities.

Groups differ not only in size and structure, but also in cost, degree of formality and focus. Some emphasize networking, while others stress mutual support.

There are also various women's groups for specific professions, such as for the arts, or for women who run businesses from their homes. The Black Women's Network also meets in Boston.

"I would like this group to be one where a woman can come in and say, 'I have a problem' and get help."

Dolores Sheehan,
BUSINESS WOMEN'S ROUNDTABLE

One of the largest groups in the Bay State, NEWBO has an executive club for women who have been members at least five years and have gone beyond the start-up phases of their businesses.

Zinkowski said the nonprofit group, now operating in the black, hopes to eventually grant women loans to start businesses.

One of the newest area groups is the Business Women's Roundtable, which held its first meeting at the Norwood Public Library last Tuesday.

Dolores Sheehan, who organized the group with Ann Patten, executive director of the United Way of Neponset Valley, said about 15 women attended the first meeting. The two are confident the group will grow steadily as more women hear about it.

Sheehan, a Norwood resident who owns the Country Touch party planning business, said she has attended many women's networking meetings but found them either too far away, too expensive or not helpful.

"Everything's in Cambridge, Boston or Lexington," she said.

Sheehan and Patten developed the idea for a Norwood group while talking one day in Sheehan's retail shop, which she has since closed. They wanted to form a group to meet informally over coffee.

"I would like this group to be one where a woman can come in and say, 'I have a problem' and get help," said Sheehan. "With all the ones I've gone to, you're almost afraid to let your guard down ... I want everyone to feel important."

Sheehan said there have been other instances where women have aggressively solicited business from her after meeting her at networking groups. She said that at the Norwood group, women will have opportunities to talk about their businesses and a membership list will explain what each woman does and how to contact her, but direct solicitation will be strictly a "no-no."

A similar group is Women West of Boston, which meets monthly at the Newton Marriott. Ellie Baker, national sales manager for a greeting card company in Lexington called The Widget Factory, is an enthusiastic member.

Baker described Women West as "very humanistic" in its approach.

"There are a lot of networks that are ultra business-oriented and self-promotional," she said. "This is so incredibly warm and supportive."

Maynard resident Nadine Yates, a marketing consultant, has also been active in Women West, through which she formed a lasting association with another member who is a writer and public relations specialist. The two still work together often on projects, though Yates is now more active with Lexington Business Women and NEWBO.

Yates said Women West offered good, general business information when she was starting out and is more "personally supportive" than other groups. But she said the Lexington group and NEWBO generate far more business leads for her.

Lexington Business Women has become a popular group in the area and is one of the few that meets through the summer months. It now has 35 to 45 members.

Financial services partners Dorothy Bickling and Sandra Bromfield started the group four years ago for women who live in Lexington or do business there.

Bickling, who lives in Acton, said she and Bromfield wanted to organize a group that would be locally oriented and convenient. Unlike many other groups, it meets early in the morning at Gallery on the Green in Lexington.

"I personally had gone to some lunch-time meetings, but they took up too much of the day," she said. "As a person with their own business, you have to be selective about where you put your time and energy.

"There has been some networking, but it's really a sense of belonging to the community that has been the strongest outcome," said Bickling of the group.

Meeting people in their communities is key for women who own home-based businesses and deal with feelings of isolation, said Erika Tauber, a member of Women Entrepreneurs Home Based.

Tauber, who owns a public relations and advertising business with twin sister Eva Glaser, said the group was founded in 1983 and meets monthly in the Belmont Public Library. But members come from numerous surrounding towns, including Watertown, Newton, Dedham, Bedford, Brighton and Acton.

She said the group does not have speakers.

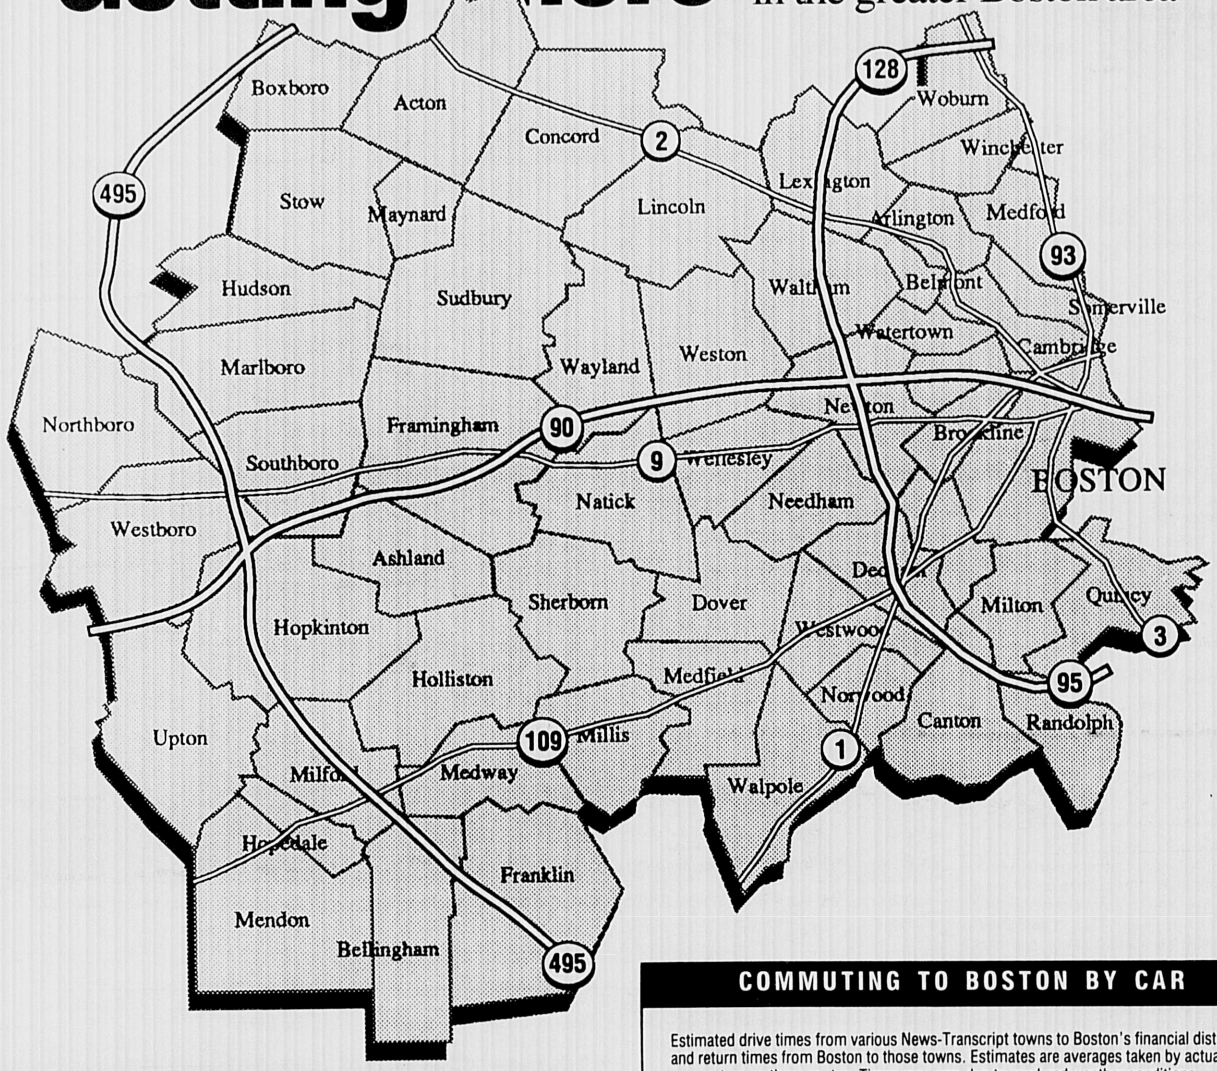

"Our strength is in support and brainstorming," said Tauber.

Marilyn Horn Claff, a computer consultant, said she was new to Wellesley a year ago when she joined the Women's Business Network, which meets there.

"I really didn't know that many people. I went to a meeting and found it to be a very friendly atmosphere," said Horn Claff. "We're not exclusionary. I think there are some groups that are like that."

From the publisher

Fall is a time of change — of meeting new challenges and new people.

It is the season for children to start a new school year and for many families to move into a new home.

That is why Century Newspapers publishes a special Community Guide every autumn. For those who are new to the area, we hope the Guide will help with the formidable task of getting to know their new neighborhood, town, state and region. And for those who have lived in the towns of Arlington, Belmont, Watertown and Winchester for a while, we hope to provide a useful tool for reference and entertainment throughout the year.

The Guide will help you understand how local government works and help you get acquainted with some of your local officials. It also has information on state laws and officials and on the arts scene in greater Boston, along with the thoughts of many prominent citizens on what the new decade holds in store.

Century strives to keep the residents of those area towns well informed throughout the year with our regular weekly publications, the Arlington Advocate, Belmont Citizen-Herald, Watertown Sun and Winchester Star.

In the coming weeks and months, we hope you will come to rely on our newspapers when you want to learn more about interesting neighbors, school events, social activities, town government, churches, local sports and the businesses in your town.

We welcome suggestions welcome all the newcomers who have chosen to make their homes in the communities we serve. We think they have made an excellent choice.

Some basic rules to remember

Whether you are new to Massachusetts or a lifelong resident, you need to know the basics of the state's laws. Here are some laws and facts about the commonwealth that should help you stay legal and safe:

- The drinking age is 21.
- The age for driving permits is 16. Anyone who has a driver education class certificate may be licensed at age 16 1/2, otherwise at age 17.
- The marriage age is 18 and a license from a Massachusetts city or town in required.
- Fishing (inland waters) and hunting licenses are required for anyone 15 and over.
- Boats with engines must be licensed with the Division of Marine and Recreational Vehicles. Trail bikes and snowmobiles must be registered at the Registry of Motor Vehicles.
- Gun owners must receive local police department permits for: firearms identification, license to carry and license to purchase. A one-year mandatory jail term is the penalty for breaking the gun law.
- Children must be enrolled in school in the calendar year in which they turn 6.
- In order to register a vehicle, its owner must have an insurance certificate. The vehicle must be inspected within seven days of purchase.
- A driver with an out-of-state license only has to take an eye test in order to get a four-year Massachusetts license.
- The Massachusetts sales and meals tax is 5 percent and has been expanded to cover many additional items this year. Call the Department of Revenue at 1-800-228-0678 to determine if a given item or service is subject to sales tax.
- The gasoline tax is 17 cents per gallon of the wholesale price and will go to 21 cents Jan. 1, 1991.
- The automobile excise tax is $25 per $1,000 value.
- The state income tax is has risen to 5.95 percent on earned income and 12 percent on unearned income. The earned-income rate will go to 6.25 percent Jan. 1, 1991.

BELMONT

From the superintendent

To Belmont citizens:

I am pleased to welcome you to the Belmont Public Schools, which serve approximately 2,800 youngsters in the Town of Belmont. Belmont takes pride in its traditions, its government, and its schools. The schools reflect that pride and are recognized for serving a community with high expectations for academic success, social development, and diverse extracurricular activities.

There are six schools in Belmont. The four elementary schools serve students from kindergarten through grade 5: Burbank, Butler, Wellington, and Winn Brook. Chenery Middle School is home for students from grades 6 through 8, and Belmont High school houses students in grades 9 through 12.

Supt. Holland

The strong academic orientation of the schools, as reflected by the SAT scores of students, results from the Massachusetts Educational Assessment Program, and the colleges and universities selected by graduates of the Belmont Public Schools.

The Belmont Public Schools offer several noteworthy programs. The METCO program brings 125 Black and Hispanic youngsters from Boston to Belmont for their regular education programs. The DARE Program, Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a collaborative effort between the Belmont Police Deparment and the schools and involves police officers and teachers working together with fifth-grade students on drug abuse prevention techniques. Belmont also hosts a Saturday Music Program for students at the elementary level. This very successful program supports the outstanding levels of music performance at the middle and high schools. Most recently, Belmont has participated in an Early Childhood Study. In addition to the Kindergarten Extended Day and After-School Care Programs, this study highlighted other areas for program development.

The Town of Belmont has been very supportive of the efforts an initiatives of the Belmont Public Schools including recent funding for the renovation of the Winn Brook School and the Burbank School. These renovations involved over $14 million in capital expenditures. In 1990, the town passed a $2.1 million override which provided additional support for town and school services. New playground equipment has been designed, purchased and installed by parent groups for the Wellington school and the area next to the Winn Brook School, and playground plans are being developed for the Burbank School.

I am pleased that you have entrusted your children to the Belmont Public Schools. For more information on programs and activities, please contact the Administration Offices: 484-4180.

Three transportation choices

Belmont residents have three public transportation choices: commuter rail, trackless trolley or bus.

Commuter Rail

The commuter rail's Belmont and Waverley stops are part of the Fitchburg-Gardner Line.

The Belmont Center station is located at the intersection of Common Street and Concord Avenue, behind the Lions Club building. The Waverley Station is below street level at the corner of Trapelo Road and Lexington Street.

In the morning (Mondays through Friday) the first train to Boston's North Station leaves Waverley Square at 6:58 a.m. and Belmont Center at 7 a.m.

Departures after 7 a.m. from Belmont Center are at 7:45, 8:31, 9:04, 9:59 and 11:35 a.m. The trains stop two minutes earlier at the Waverley station.

In the afternoon, trains for Boston leave Belmont at 2:20, 4:18, 4:45, 5:49, 7:12 and 9:14 p.m.

Belmont-bound trains leaving Boston in the morning depart from North Station at 7:25, 8:20, 9:20, and in the afternoon and evening, trains depart at 1:20, 3, 4, 4:50, 5:30, 6:15, 7:35 and 10:30 p.m. and 12:10 a.m.

Estimated time of travel from Belmont to Boston is 15 to 20 minutes.

There is no service to Belmont on weekends and holidays.

A complete schedule for the Fitchburg-Gardner Line can be obtained at the town clerk's office at Town Hall. For other commuter rail information, call 722-3200 or 227-5070.

Trackless Trolley

The trackless trolley route from Belmont's Waverley Square (Route 73) travels through Cushing Square, Benton Square and Mount Auburn Bridge. Stops are also made at the former Cambridge Social Security Building, Aberdeen Avenue, Mount Auburn Hospital and the Bennett Street Alley before the final destination of Harvard Station.

Fare is 50 cents for adults; exact change is required.

The first trolley leaves Waverley Square for Harvard Station at 5:03 a.m. Trolleys leave every 15 to 20 minutes until 6:42 a.m.

After 6:42 a.m. a trolley leaves Waverley every five minutes until 8:58 a.m., every 10 minutes until 10:11 a.m., and every 12 minutes until 2:23 p.m.

The trolleys leave regularly in the afternoon and evenings, with the last trolley leaving Waverley at 1:17 a.m.

Coming from Harvard Square, the first trolley leaves Cambridge at 4:43 a.m. The outbound schedule operates with the same frequency as the inbound schedule.

A separate schedule is in effect on weekends and holidays.

A complete schedule can be obtained from the trolley driver.

Buses

The bus between Harvard Square and Belmont Center (Route 74) makes stops at Belmont Memorial Library and Belmont High School on Concord Avenue, Sancta Maria Hospital in Cambridge, the Cambridge Armory, and the Harvard College Observatory before its final destination of Harvard Station.

Fare is 50 cents for adults; exact change is required.

The first bus leaves Belmont Center at 5:25 a.m. Buses after that leave at 5:45, 6:05, 6:21, 6:45 and 6:59 a.m. From 7 to 9:19 a.m. buses leave every 15 minutes. Then buses leave at 9:40, 10:15, 10:50 and 11:25 a.m.

In the afternoon buses leave about every 30 minutes. From 4 until 7:20 p.m. buses leave every 14 or 15 minutes and then every half hour or hour until 12:20 a.m., when the last bus leaves from Belmont Center.

The Route 74 outbound schedule operates with the same frequency as the inbound schedule.

The Route 78 bus, which runs between Arlmont Village and Harvard Station in Cambridge, cuts through part of eastern Belmont. After stopping at Park Circle in Arlington, the bus goes down the Route 2 access road, and then down Pleasant and Brighton streets and Blanchard Road in Belmont, re-entering Cambridge at Concord Avenue near Sancta Maria Hospital.

Harvard-bound Route 78 buses leave Arlmont Village at 5:42, 6:02, 6:17 and 6:32 a.m., then every 14 minutes until 9:20 a.m., then at 9:30, 10, 10:35, 11:10 and 11:45 a.m. Afternoon buses depart every 15 to 20 minutes in the afternoon and evening until 6:32 p.m. Route 78 buses after that time begin and end their route at Park Circle, Arlington.

The Route 78 outbound schedule operates with the same frequency as the inbound schedule.

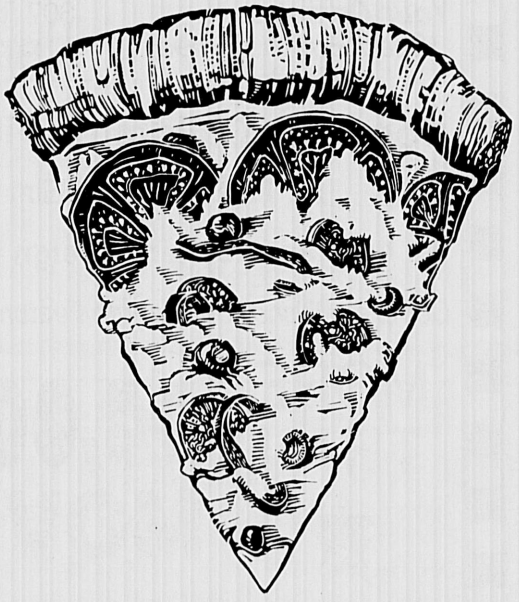

Weekends and holidays follow a separate schedule for both Routes 74 and 78.

Complete bus schedules can be obtained from one of the bus drivers, or call 722-3200 for assistance.

A message from the selectmen

Dear New Resident:

It is my pleasure to extend to you a hearty welcome to Belmont.

As chairman of the Board of Selectmen, I am privileged to extend that welcome from my colleagues on the board and from all of the residents of the town.

Our much beloved town is composed of approximately 26,000 residents and is 4.5 square miles in area. It is governed by a three-member Board of Selectmen and a representative Town Meeting (36 members from each of eight precincts). The Board of Selectmen meet regularly on Monday evenings at Town Hall.

Our outstanding school system is governed by a six-member committee which meets regularly and whose meetings are posted and noticed in the Belmont Citizen-Herald.

Presently, Belmont, like every other municipality in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, is confronted with unusual financial problems which are a direct result of serious cuts in local aid (money sent to cities and towns by the state).

However, you can be assured that although the problem is a very real one, Belmont's elected and appointed officials will deal with it effectively and efficiently. You should also be comforted by the fact that Belmont is in much better fiscal condition than most towns. We still enjoy a triple-"A" bond rating. This means, in essence, that the lending institutions place Belmont in the highest possible bracket in terms of its ability to pay its debts.

Belmont residents and their local officials have great appreciation for the quality of life and the aesthetics of our town. Belmont is known as the "town of homes."

We are also very proud of our school system. We have four excellent elementary schools. Our middle school is well administered and staffed, and provides excellent educational opportunities. Belmont High School provides a wide selection of courses and activities. Each year a number of outstanding students and student-athletes come forth.

Belmont is also well-served by Minuteman Regional Vocational High School — one of the best in the commonwealth.

The Recreation Department provides activities for all ages, from our young children to our senior citizens. Make sure you check it out.

Our seniors also enjoy the services and activities provided by the offices of the Council on Aging.

As you become better acquainted, you will find that the town of Belmont is well-served, not only by those elected and appointed officials who work hard to keep Belmont as you like it, but also the many volunteers who give unstintingly of their time and labor. If you have the time and the disposition to become involved, stop by Town Hall and explore how you can become involved in the many activities and functions which take place in your town.

Place a call to Town Hall (489-8200) and inquire about any concerns you may have. You will find a public servant eager to be of help.

Welcome to Belmont!

Very truly yours,
Walter A. Flewelling Jr.

BELMONT

Belmont a bedroom community

Perched on steep hills just beyond the Boston-Cambridge metropolis, Belmont is a commuter-oriented suburb that provides a retreat for its residents at the end of a long work day in the city.

Many of Belmont's 27,000 residents take pride in calling their home town a "bedroom community," and they want to keep it that way.

Highly residential, 20th-century Belmont has virtually no industry, although it built its 19th-century economy by retrieving winter ice from Little Pond and its neighbor, Spy Pond in Arlington.

Today, a large percentage of Belmont residents work in Boston or Cambridge or in the Route 128 high-tech area. There is also a high concentration of elderly residents.

Belmont's small retail businesses are confined to four commercial centers, three of which are along and near Trapelo Road: Waverley Square, Cushing Square and Harvard Lawn.

Although the Leonard Street area had many vacant storefronts a couple of summers ago, the merchants and the town have been working together to revitalize the downtown and new specialty stores have been springing up.

Belmont, which has been termed a "land-poor" town, has very little land left on which new housing can be built.

Some of the comparatively small open spaces left in Belmont have been developed for environmental and recreational purposes, such as the Habitat Institute for the Environment on Juniper Road and the state-owned Beaver Brook Reservation on the Belmont-Waltham line.

Besides lack of land, the town is struggling with traffic problems caused by devleopment in neighboring Cambridge.

Opening of the MBTA Alewife Red Line station near the Cambridge-Belmont-Arlington line has brought Belmont improved commuting access to Boston, but with it comes increased traffic as commuters cut through Belmont to avoid congestion on Route 2's Alewife Brook Parkway section. Ways to alleviate the traffic problems have been debated for some 15 years.

Belmont has four elementary schools, one middle school and one high school. Despite declining enrollment, Belmontians generally consider their school system very good, and take pride that 80 to 90 percent of Belmont High School graduates go on to higher education.

The high school building off Concord Avenue opened in the early 1970s after a 1967 fire gutted the old high school on Orchard Street. A large addition was built onto the remains of the high school and the resulting facility serves as the Roger Wellington Elementary School.

The Winn Brook and Burbank elementary schools recently went through a $14 million renovation project to give them new gymnasiums and more classroom space. The Daniel Butler School, near Waverley Square, was rehabilitated in 1980.

The elementary schools serve kindergarten through grade five. Grades six through eight are housed at the Chenery Middle School, an aging facility at the corner of Oakley Road and Washington Street.

Belmont has a representative Town Meeting form of government with a three-member board of selectmen and a six-member school committee. Belmont's state representative, Mary Jane Gibson, is assistant majority whip of the House.

Belmont braces for new decade

By ALICIA KIRK
Special to the Citizen-Herald

The 90s

Many things changed for Belmont during the 1980s, and many things stayed the same.

The town's population changed slightly. The average price of a single-family home changed a lot. The Belmont Citizen and Belmont Herald newspapers merged to form the Belmont Citizen-Herald. The Josiah S. Kendall Grammar School changed to the Kendall School for the Arts.

Belmont's superintendent of schools and Council on Aging director changed, while the town clerk and the police chief stayed the same. The Belmont Music School changed to Powers Music School. Edgar's Flowers changed locations. The Payson Pharmacy changed into a dress shop. The Ben Franklin store stayed the same.

As Belmontians enter the last decade of the 20th century, many are wondering what might be instore for the town during the 1990s. The Citizen-Herald asked some town officials and longtime residents to share their perspectives on what life in Belmont will be like as the 1990s progress.

Louis Mercuri, Belmont's Town Planner, reports that the amount of new development in the town has been low in recent years, and will continue to be low in the 1990s. "The town is pretty much built-out," he says, except for a few commercial areas such as the proposed Star Market in Waverley Square which he views as "a healthy addition," offering jobs and services to town residents.

Belmont's population has stabilized to just over 26,000 in the last 10 years, and Mercuri expects it to remain close to that level. One segment which will continue to grow, he predicts, is the elderly population, already responsible for a larger percentage of Belmont's total population that the average for this area.

Ben Adler, director of the Belmont Council on Aging, believes that the quality of life for Belmont's elderly citizens will continue to improve in the 1990s as they become a more politically and socially educated and active group.

As Belmont Town Clerk Ann Cresine Wilson ponders the town's future, she laughingly refers to a cartoon that appeared in the Citizen-Herald recently, saying that it may contain more truth than people realize. In the cartoon, a young couple speaks of running off to Belmont to get a marraige license for only $10, suggesting that there might be a drive-through window for such purposes.

"The individual contact that we're used to may have to be decreased in the future," she says, "but the services will continue."

With less money to work with due to cuts in state aid to cities and towns, Wilson joins other town officials in predicting that some innovative ways will be found to provide services with fewer resources.

Selectmen Ann Paulsen and William Monahan both expect that increased creativity on the part of town officials and citizens will allow the current high standards of services and education to continue. Paulsen predicts that more residents will volunteer to serve on boards and committees, such as the town's newest advisory group, the Recycling Committee.

Monahan calls for "creative financial planning," adding that Belmont's small commercial tax base puts in at a particular disadvantage and makes it "available remedies" more limited that in some other towns.

Ralph Burns, town resident for more than 80 years, former Warrant Committee chairman, and "oldest living Town Meeting member in captivity," agrees that expenses will have to be cut in the 1990s. Aside from choosing the site of an additional cemetery for the town, an issue that has fueled some recent controversy, Burns finds it difficult to project the issues that will come before the Belmont Town Meeting in the next decade.

"One thing that is sure to remain true about Belmont," he remarks, "is that we can disagree and have some hot battles, but we always respect each others' opinions."

Superintendent of Belmont Public Schools Dr. Peter Holland says that the town's six public schools will continue to provide a "solid, comprehensive and exciting program of studies" with enrollments increasing only slightly in the new decade. Plans for the future, he says, include the extension of efforts begun in the 1980s, such as the Regular Education Initiative to further integrate regular and special education activities; strong emphasis on curriculum and staff development and communication skills; increased computer access; academic and administrative restructuring; and a concentrated and educated focus on drug and alcohol abuse through the city-wide Belmont Commission of Substance Abuse and Project DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) in collaboration with the Belmont Police Department.

An integrated effort at coordinating all planning, goals, objectives, and time lines in grades K-12, the

Many recreation opportunities

Newcomers to Belmont will find the Belmont Recreation Department provides plenty of opportunities for each of the town's residents to participate in enjoyable activities during their leisure time. The department-sponsored programs are selected, organized and staffed with the objective of providing appealing programs to satisfy the diverse interests of Belmont residents.

The department provides a comprehensive and balanced recreation program by offering public programs for all ages, maintaining public playground and recreation areas and facilities, sponsoring special event and special interest programs, and assisting community groups in recreation oriented activities.

The Recreation Department sponsors three indoor facilities for public use. The Higginbottom Pool, which is located inside of Belmont High School, the Mel Wenner Fieldhouse, which is also located inside the high school and the public skating facility on Concord Avenue — a Jesse Barfield stone's throw from the high school.

The Higginbottom Pool offers kids a chance to frolic about and to learn how to swim while it gives adult residents a chance to relax or do laps after a hard day on the job. Special times are set aside Monday through Thursday evenings and on weekends for family and adult only swim sessions.

In addition, the department sponsors swim lessons for children, adults and special needs residents. The children's swim lessons range from beginner to advanced lifesaving while there are beginner and advanced levels for adults. Those kids who have reached the intermediate level can participate on the children's swim team which features two teams; one for 10-year-olds and under and one for 11-year-olds and older.

The Higginbottom Pool is scheduled to be re-opened to the public Oct. 9 and will remain open until mid-June 1991. Registration for swim lessons will take place late in September. Consult the Belmont Citizen-Herald for registration and pool schedule updates.

During the summer, the outdoor Underwood Pool provides the same services, and is open until Sept 2.

The Wenner Fieldhouse opens to the public in late October and remains open until late April. The facilities may be used for individual activity or department sponsored programs Monday through Thursday night. The program schedule includes fitness and aerobics classes as well as volleyball and a men's basketball league. Family nights are held on the first Thursday of every month. Children are not allowed to use the fieldhouse on any other night. Special fieldhouse events include handball, paddleball, volleyball, badminton, track, a basketball league and use of the weight room.

The adult programs offered at the fieldhouse include a men's basketball league which is held on Tuesday nights and co-ed volleyball on Thursday nights. The weight room is open Monday through Thursday and offers a Universal weight machine. Fitness and aerobic classes are held in the upper gym on Monday and Wednesday evenings and is taught by a certified aerobics and fitness specialist.

The department also sponsors women's jazzerobics on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and senior aerobic dancing on Mondays and Fridays; locations will be announced in future editions of the Citizen-Herald.

(Please see page 9)

BELMONT

Recreation opportunities abound

(From page 8)
There is also the Belmont Ladies' Bowling League which meets on Wednesday mornings at Lanes & Games, Concord Turnpike, Cambridge. The senior aerobic dancing and the ladies' bowling league run from September to May.

Golf lessons are also available at the fieldhouse from March to April. Practice golf balls and mats are utilized to create conditions similar to those of a real golf course indoors at the upper gym.

Children's programs at the fieldhouse include the highly successful Belmont Youth Basketball Association (BYBA) and gymnastics. The BYBA is a league for both boys and girls which is co-sponsored by the Belmont Youth Basketball Association and the Belmont Recreation Department. A comprehensive program of instruction and competition featuring many different leagues for grades three through eight highlights this program. The BYBA graduates have gone on to make the Belmont High basketball programs one of the most successful in the Middlesex League.

Basic instruction is given in all types of gymnastics for children ages 6-and-up. This program is held on Saturdays in the upper gym at the fieldhouse from March to April.

Other children's activities include the spring time Pee-Wee T-Ball and Conley League baseball and softball programs. Pee-Wee T-Ball is an instructional program for boys and girls, ages 6 and 7, held in the early evening hours twice a week. Batting special balls from tees is utilized to teach the basic fundamentals of hitting. Conley League baseball and softball is designed for children who do not play in the Little League and provides an opportunity for every child age 8-12 to play ball. No players sit on the bench in this league as everyone plays in all of their team's games, weeknights only, beginning at 6 p.m. at the various playgrounds.

The Belmont Skating Rink gives children and adults a chance to skate, play hockey or figure skate. The facility is open seven days a week with special times set aside for public skating, pre-school and adult skating, skating and figureskating lessons and all levels of hockey for both boys and girls, and is open November to March.

The skating lesson levels include pre-school, children's beginner, children's advanced beginner, children's figure skating and adult. The hockey programs include beginner's, elementary boys, girls middle school and high school, junior high and adult. The Belmont Skating Rink is also available at certain hours of the week for rental.

The passport to all the previously mentioned activities is the School Year Membership Tag. The tags allow you access to all three facilities and can be purchased at the Recreation Department at the Town Hall Annex. Most of the programs require a small fee in addition to the membership tags. The cost of the memberships vary, with senior citizens receiving them free of charge.

Other activities in Belmont include adult tennis instruction which is offered at beginner and intermediate levels. Instruction is offered on various weekday mornings in the fall and spring at the Indoor Tennis Facility on Concord Avenue. The indoor facility is also available for recreational use. The facility is free of charge during the day but a small fee is required at night. Outdoor courts are also available for use and they are located at Belmont High (10 courts), Grove St. (4), Pequossette Field (4), Washington Street (4), and Winn Brook (4). Reservations are requested.

The Belmont Recreation Department also offers programs for senior citizens and special needs residents. Guided tours to places of interest each month from March through November are held for the seniors. An annual holiday party is held in Deember. Special overnight group vacation tours are provided throughout the year.

The Recreation Department Special Needs program is called S.P.O.R.T. (Special Programs Organized for Recreation Time). Included in the S.P.O.R.T. activities are the following programs: Camp Willow, ages 4-21 (Saturdays); Friday Night Socials, ages 13-adult; Swimming Instruction, all ages; Ceramics, ages 15-over; Creative Gym, ages 4-7; Floor Hockey, ages 8-adult; Ice Skating, all ages; Karate, ages 6-18; Recreational Sports, ages 7-12; and Soccer, ages 12-over.

S.P.O.R.T. programs are open to all special needs people in the Belmont area and are geared to all ages. The staff of professionally qualified people has expertise in both special needs and their specialty.

The following youth organizations are run privately in the town: Little League, Babe Ruth Baseball, Police Athletic League (PAL), Ranger Youth Hockey, Senior Baseball, Youth Basketball, Youth Soccer. Further information on who to contact for further details on any of these programs can be obtained by calling the Recreation office at 4894-8245.

New decade

Education Improvement Plan, was begun last year and is in the process of being updated for this school year, Holland says.

Parent involvement and community outreach will be increasingly vital factors in maintaining Belmont's high educational standards as fiscal constraints continue to be a major concern, he predicts.

An increased emphasis on education is also part of the Belmont Police Department's outlook for the 1990s, according to Lt. Joseph Griffin, the department's administrative officer."

Further enhancement of automated record-keeping systems will continue to reduce the amount of time spent on paperwork and increase morale on the 52-member force, which, with an average age currently in the mid-40s, will undergo a 50-60 percent turnover in the next decade, he adds.

Enhanced technology may create some new problems at the Belmont Public Library in the next decade, says Barbara Powell, library director as more and more information will become available for citizens.

"The public and social issue will be whether we will continue to provide it publicly, or whether costs will be transferred to the users," she said.

McLean Hospital world renowned

Although McLean Hospital in Belmont is one of the world's leading centers for treatment, research, and education focusing on psychiatric disorders, according to Shervert H. Frazier, M.D., the facility's most compelling mission is to "illuminate the dark corners of misperception about mental illness."

At McLean, one of the goals is to share its wealth of knowledge with the surrounding community.

"We want the hospital to be accessible to people in the surrounding community, as well as elsewhere," said Steven M. Mirin, general director and acting psychiatristin chief at McLean.

McLean was New England's first psychiatric hospital when it was begun in Somerville in 1811 as part of Massachusetts General Hospital. Today McLean, which is located on 240 acres of land in Belmont, is an affiliate of the Massachusetts General Hospital and is a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School.

McLean offers specialty programs for treatment of the mentally ill, plus treatment units, an accredited high school, a medical clinic, and a wide range of outpatient and community residential treatment services. Among the treatment units at McLean are the Adolescent and Family Treatment and Study Center, the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Center, the Behavior Therapy Unit, and the Depression Treatment Unit.

The hospital is equipped with more than 300 beds for psychiatric patients.

In addition to a large staff of paid medical professionals, McLean also relies on a large pool of volunteers. Currently, McLean has more than 200 volunteers. Anyone interested in finding out more about the volunteer program can call 855-2118.

Arlington looking ahead to year 2,000

The 90s

What kind of a town will Arlington be by the year 2000? Town officals, community members and business leaders are trying to bring that picture into sharp focus.

With the recent financial troubles at the state level and a slowing of the economy — following a decade of unprecendented growth — people locally have been looking to find a way to take control of Arlington's future.

The most formal of the actions in the area is coming from the Board of Selectmen who have initiated work on a long-range plan for Arlington. The management plan and a proposed summit of town officials this fall is being dubbed: "Vision 2020".

A steering committee of town officials has been meeting to to begin discussions. The first order business, said Town Manager Donald R. Marquis, is to hire a consultant to help the town with the planning process. Bids will be solicited this month, a firm is expected to be chosen in September, and by October the steering committee expects to call for the first summit of all town officials.

Out of the meetings and planning, the town hopes to come away with a clear picture of where the town will be in 30 years.

"This is not a one-shot deal," said Marquis. "I was very pleased with the [initial] meeting. I think things will continue to move in a positive direction."

Once the 40 or more town officials from all departments begin to meet, the discussion will include all aspects of the town. The community's input will also be solicited during the process, Marquis said.

The steering committee — made up of the manager, a selectman, member of the School Committee, the chairmen of those two boards, the superintendent of schools, the chairman of the Finance Committee, the director of planning, and a Town Meeting member — will continue to exist.

While there are currently no specifics on the agenda, Marquis said the process will continue to evolve. "We want to have a discussion here. There is nothing set. This is the selectmen's idea, it is the selectmen's vision to have a plan. I think it's appropriate that the policy making board of the town is taking this initiative," said Marquis.

One thing the town will gain from the discussion is a long-range plan, Marquis said. "You have to react from day to day, but hopefully we can react with some long-range goals in mind."

The cost of the consultant for the long-range planning is being paid for through Community Development Block Grant funds, which were allocated specifically for this project by the selectmen this spring.

In other areas, the town has been working on a number of projects to take the town into the next decade and the next century.

As 1990 comes to a close, so too, does a massive reconstruction project in Arlington Center, which rekindles the town's past and makes it part of Arlington's future.

The project included the rebuilding of the main parking lot and sidewalks, and the moving of the historic Jefferson Cutter House to the new town common in Arlington Center.

Although the town is almost completely developed, there are some projects in the works that should be completed in the next few years.

The Minuteman Bikeway, an 11.2-mile commuter bikeway, has been in the planning stages for 12 years, was stymied by numerous obstacles, including lack of funding and a dispute that prevented the removal of the railroad ties.

With a price tag of approximately $3 million, the bikeway will extend from the Alewife train station in Cambridge through Arlington and Lexington to the Bedford town line and run along the route of the old Boston & Maine Railroad tracks, now out of use for many years.

The project faced a major obstacle two years ago when all transportation projects were put on hold because the state had no money, said Alan McClennen Jr., the town's director of planning and community development.

With the recent passage of the gas tax, all projects under the transportation bond issue, including the Minuteman Bikeway project, were freed up to go out to bid.

The bikeway has been designed and ready to go out to bid for some time, McClennen said. Weather permitting, the project could be completed by next fall. With some delays, it could be finished in two years.

Arlington offers a variety of delights

The original name of Arlington was Menotomy, which means "swift-running water," and was named for the brooks and rivers that run through it. Much of the town's natural beauty, which attracted Arlington's early trades of farming and milling still remains, although it is mostly residential now.

Despite being overshadowed in some versions of America's history, Arlington played and important part in the Revolutionary War (the most men lost on the first day of the war were lost at the site of the Jason Russell House — now a museum — in Arlington Center). It is also the birth place of Samuel Wilson, better known as Uncle Sam.

Wilson ran a meat-packing operation in Troy, N.Y., which supplied the meat for the American army. But the use of the initials "U.S." for United States was so new at the time that one of the packers took them to signify "Uncle Sam," for that was Wilson's nickname. The story spread until the name Uncle Sam came to signify the federal government.

Arlington town hall

Spy Pond is perhaps the town's most beautiful natural resource. A spring-fed pond, it was carved out by the great glaciers of the ice age. Some people say that in places it reaches a depth of more than 250 feet. The pond offers good sailing and windsurfing and along the shoreline, peaceful walking and thinking-about-nothing, especially on a cloudy, misty day.

The origin of the pond's name is unclear. Some believe that the name came from its role in the Revolutionary War. However, the name was recorded long before that war was fought.

In recent years, one section near Linwood Street has become an informal beach, with a number of swimmers each summer. The area has also become a favorite for surfboarders. It's not recommended to swim there — in fact, it's not allowed in all sections of the pond — not because of water quality, but because of the unusual nature of the pond. In some areas, swimmers can get caught among the weeds and drown; in others, there are strong temperature changes and no measurable depth because of the springs.

In the winter, cross-country skiers and ice skaters take over, but caution is advised here, too. Unless one knows where the underground springs and therefore areas of thin ice are, it can be dangerous or even fatal.

A safer idea is to go to Hills Pond at Menotomy Rocks Park. Surrounded by the hills of the park, skaters are in a picturesque setting encircled by a ring of pine and oak trees. The town is currently involved in a project to clean up the pond.

In the gold and russet of autumn, the walking paths of Menotomy Rocks Park give a gracious respite from the outside world.

Another lovely park is Robbins Garden on Mass. Avenue, in the middle of town. On spring weekends, brides have formal photographs taken here among flowering apple and cherry trees. Also in this park is the statue, Indian Hunter, created by Arlington sculptor Cyrus Dallin.

Some of Dallin's other, better-known works include Appeal to the Great Spirit in front of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, Paul Revere in Boston's North End, and the angel Moroni atop the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City. A committee, appointed by the Board of Selectmen, is currently raising funds to restore Dallin's works. Their work and that of others is being incorporated into this year's Town Day celebration.

The streets offer good jogging for the enthusiast. Whether running two miles or six, one can enjoy flat, tree-lined streets, run along Mystic River near the Medford line, or by Spy Pond away from traffic. Arlington is also one of a few communities that will be benefiting from the planned construction of a commuter bikeway, which will run along the old Boston and Maine Railroad line and will connect many of Arlington's parks from the Alewife area to the Reservoir.

Situated seven miles northwest of Boston, Arlington is a special blend of city and suburban life. With a population of nearly 49,000 people living in an area about five square miles, Arlington is one of the most densely populated municipality in Massachusetts. Yet Arlington strives to maintain the sense of community normally seen in a much smaller town.

There are parades on most major holidays, fireworks for Town Day. The annual Town Day (this year on Sept. 22-24) includes games, food crafts, live music, dancing and more. It is a general atmosphere of fun and celebration with Mass. Avenue, from Pleasant Street to Mill Street, turned into a fairground of booths, entertainment and more.

But Arlington isn't turned in on itself. For about 10 years, Arlington has sponsored an international summer exchange program with Japan and is a sister city to Nagoakakyo. Last year the town added another sister city, Teosinte, a tiny village in El Salvador.

(Please see page 12)

Town finances

Running a town the size of Arlington is not a cheap proposition. And in times of the state's economic difficulties it isn't easy either.

The town's operating budget — larger than many national companies — totals nearly $60 million and comes to the town through local and state receipts, local real estate taxes and other sources.

Although the town's budgets were set — which is normal procedure — last spring for the current fiscal year, a reduction of local aid and the negotiations of union contracts will require a Special Town Meeting this fall.

Arlington's money is used to send its students to school, have police patrol the streets, trash picked up and roads paved.

More than $32 million will be raised for this fiscal year from local property taxes. About $25 million will come from state receipts, state aid, local receipts, free cash and other available funds.

The town's departmental budgets account for about 50 percent of the revenue pie, with the school department using about 32 percent of the finances. (Some school costs including insurance, data processing and some building and field maintenance are including in the town's side of the budgets.)

The town must also pay its share — about 3 percent of the total budget — for the Minuteman Regional Technical School and about 5 percent of state and county costs.

The new tax rate will be set this fall.

ARLINGTON

Arlington offers a variety of delights

(From page 11)

There are more than 150 charitable, civic, cultural and special-interest groups in town — from Arlingtonians for the Protection of the Mystic Valley Amphipods to the Zonta Club of Arlington. Newcomers who wish to become involved will certainly find an organization that suits them.

Arlington has a strong commitment to education. More than 75 percent of AHS graduates go on to four-year colleges and other programs.

Arlington's public schools include seven elementary schools, one combined junior high school, and a four-year high school. These schools serve a student population of about 4,100. Arlington is the largest member of the Minuteman Regional Vocational School District, which has a vocational-technical high school in Lexington.

Private schools include St. Agnes School, a parochial elementary school; Arlington Catholic High School; Germaine Lawrence School; and, Ecole Bilingue. There is a list of nursery schools and day-care centers at the information desk at the Robbins Library in Arlington Center.

Here are some of the highlights of Arlington's history: In the early 1600s, Tahattawan, the Squaw Sachem, who was the widow of the chief of the tribe that lived in this area, controlled most of what is Middlesex County today. In 1638, she sold it to the colonial government for about 10 pounds and a guarantee of a coat every winter for the rest of her life.

Most people are familiar with the events of April 19, 1775, but not many realize that the heaviest fighting and the bloodiest skirmishes were not in Lexington and Concord, but here in Menotomy.

Until 1807, this area was part of Cambridge. It became the town of West Cambridge, later to become Arlington. During the 1800s, the town was noted for market gardening, greenhouses and the famous ice houses of Spy Pond, whose workers, in the days before refrigeration, cut blocks of ice for shipment around the world.

The Schwamb Mill, built in 1860 on the site of an older grist mill, is the oldest picture- and mirror-frame maker in the United States. It is a working museum, open to the public for tours and classes by appointment and sales. This fall is the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Schwamb Mill Preservation Trust, a citizens group that ultimately saved the then-threatened mill.

In the last 100 years, with the advent of trolley cars and the automobile, the town gained easier access to the city and began its change from a farming town to a residential town for commuters.

Today, commuting to Boston is relatively easy from Arlington via public transportation. The Red Line runs all the way out to East Arlington at Alewife, making for a quick, convenient commute to downtown Boston.

About Arlington's schools

Welcome from the school board

Welcome to Arlington and the Public Schools.

The Arlington Public Schools have a long and proud history. The first school was constructed in 1693, near the old burying ground. From its historical start, today's school system has 4,100 students housed in seven neighborhood elementary schools, grades K-6, one junior high school, grades 7 and 8, and one comprehensive high school, grades 9 to 12. All our schools have active parental and community involvement.

The schools are staffed by dedicated and experienced professionals. The elementary schools serve their respective neighborhoods. Students have the opportunity to enroll in any elementary school, space permitting, and every school provides programs for students in need of specialized help.

Prior to enrollment in kindergarten a screening process helps to establish each child's readiness to begin his/her learning.

The elementary schools provide a very nuturing environment for a young child's learning experiences. Students are well-grounded in basic subject matter before leaving the sixth grade, and are exposed to a variety of cultural and social opportunities that are offered both during and after school.

At the junior high school, students have the valuable chance to meet others from all parts of the town. In addition to a challenging academic program, students are also offered hands-on experience in occupational fields.

At the high school, students can choose from a varied selection of course subjects and academic levels, from general courses to advanced placement course work. An alternative education program is also offered in a regular high school environment. Through the guidance department, assistance is available to both students and parents to assure the best placement.

There are many areas open to the student for further educational opportunities through the language and computer clubs, the Honor Society, the newspaper, literary magazine, drama, student government, and athletics.

Arlington schools are competitive in the educational field, with more than 80 percent of the student body continuing in post secondary education. This percentage has increased over the years, reflecting both the changing needs of society and this community.

The schools are ably administered by Superintendent Walter Devine and have nine elected school committee members. The school committee meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month throughout the school year.

Again, we welcome you to our school system and encourage you to become an active and involved individual.

ARLINGTON

An overview of who's who in Arlington town government

In Arlington, there are about 28 boards and committees that oversee and govern town affairs.

The selectmen, assessors, School Committee and Housing Authority are chosen by the voters in public elections.

The Board of Selectmen chooses members for the Zoning Board of Appeals, Board of Registrar of Voters, Arlington Arts Council/ Arlington Alive, Historic District Commission, Fair Housing Advisory Committee, and the Council on Alcohol Education.

The town manager, with approval of the selectmen, appoints the members of the Redevelopment Board, Board of Health, Historical Commission, Library Trustees, Park and Recreation Commission, Board of Youth Services, Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, Council on Aging, Conservation Commission, Cemetery Commissioners, Trust Fund Commissioners, Board of Examiners and Constables.

All meeting notices are posted prior to the meeting dates on the bulletin board next to the clerk's office on the second floor of town hall.

Some of the regular meetings include:

Selectmen, every Monday, 7:15 p.m., in the Selectmen's board room, second floor, town hall.

School Committee, 7:30 p.m., second and fourth Tuesday, School Committee room, sixth floor, Arlington High School.

Assessors, every Monday, 7 p.m., Assessor's room, first floor, town hall.

Conservation Commission, first and third Thursday, 7:30 p.m., Planning Department room, first floor, town hall annex.

Zoning Board of Appeals, second and fourth Tuesday, 7:45 p.m., Selectmen's hearing room, second floor, town hall.

Housing Authority, second Tuesday, 7 p.m., board room, 4 Winslow St.

Redevelopment Board, Mondays when needed, 8 p.m., board room, town hall annex.

Chamber represents businesses

Nearly 50 years old, the Arlington Chamber of Commerce represents local businesses and acts as a lobbyist for the concerns of the business person.

Recently relocated in the historic Jefferson Cutter House, 1 Whittemore Park, the chamber represents nearly 250 local businesses.

Second Vice President Bill Sovie says the business group has two sides, "reactive" and "proactive." The reactive side comes into force when something within the community affects businesses, he said.

The chamber also meets with Alan McClennen Jr., town director of planning and community development, once a year to discuss new businesses, investments and redevelopment plans. In turn, chamber officials react to the town's information and bring up their own plans and concerns.

On the active side, the organization does positive things for the town and businesses it represents. Kathie Salipante is the secretary.

One year during the 1970s energy crisis, the town did not have the funds to put up Christmas lights, Sovie said. Since then, the chamber has taken over the $10,000 a year lighting program.

The Chamber of Commerce also services as a help to residents, new and old, who have questions about local businesses. Often residents will call looking for a reliable business and the chamber will give recommendations.

"We're much like a better business bureau," said Sovie.

He said the organization also holds an annual awards banquet to honor local citizens and businesses.

There are no qualifications for belonging to the chamber other than annual dues.

After the first year, dues are prorated to the number of employees a business has. Business owners interested in joining the chamber should contact the chamber at 643-4600.

Another feature of the chamber is a program offering health and discount group life insurance from Blue Cross and Blue Shield, and several health maintenance organizations.

This feature is especially beneficial to very small businesses that could not otherwise afford insurance plans.

Businesses outside Arlington in the metro west area also join the chamber, Smith said. Including businesses outside Arlington, the organization registers nearly 500 members.

The chamber is headed by president Leonard Talkov. It also has two vice presidents, a clerk, a treasurer and a board of 12 to 14 members. All positions are held by local business people.

Incorporated in 1919, the organization was originally called the Arlington Businessmen's Association. The name was changed to the Arlington Chamber of Commerce in 1936.

Recently the chamber also joined forces with the Arlington Center Merchants Assocation to promote business in the Center district.

Welcome note from selectmen

Dear New Arlingtonian,

We welcome you to our town that has a rich 354-year history. Starting from farming and mill roots, our town has evloved into a suburban community with pride in its ethnic and cultural diversity. Simply stated, "Arlington has something for everyone."

There are recreational facilities, convenient public transportation, excellent schools, outstanding libraries, responsive public services and numerous chruches. Moreover, there are countless opportunities for community involvement in town government, social and civic clubs and community volunteering. Our human services and concern for the elderly are strong public commitments.

The Arlington Boys and Girls Club, Fidelity House and the Choate-Symmes Hospital provide additional local community facilities. Our informational needs are met by the local newspaper, The Arlington Advocate, and the town cable company, Continental Cablevision.

Despite our small and densely populated area (two by three miles,) we still have open space at our attractive parks and playgrounds. Recently, the Arlington business community has undertaken an extensive renovations program and is trying to be responsive to changing consumer needs.

Yet more commendable than all of its tangible assets is the fact that Arlington is a caring community. It consists of friendly neighbors who are willing to help others and to become involved in the life of the town. Now you are part of Arlington. We encourage you to take an active role; we stand ready to help.

Sincerely,
Arlington Town Selectmen

School closings

When Arlington schools are closed because of snow or other emergencies, announcements are made starting at 6:30 a.m. on WHDH, WEEL and WBZ.

Signals are also sent out through the local fire stations. A 2-2 horn signal repeated four times at 7 a.m., means no school.

The 2-2 signal sounded at 7:45 a.m., signals no morning sessions for elementary schools, and the 2-2 signal at 11:30 a.m. is for no afternoon session for elementary schools.

A sports-oriented community

A sports-oriented town? It certainly is.

Arlington is well known for its outstanding sports amd recreation programs and facilities, not only in this section of Massachusetts, but throughout the commonwealth, New England, the Northeast, and in some cases throughout the United States and Canada.

A newcomer, traveling easterly along Summer Street can obtain a birds-eye view of a few of the more than 30 excellent athletic and recreational facilities in the community.

On the south side of Summer Street is what is commonly called the Sports Center.

Centering the area is the Veterans Memorial Skating Rink, and the headquarters for the Arlington Recreation Department, where programs of this organization are dispatched throughout the town during the year.

The larger section of the structure houses an area used for skating through the fall and into the early spring, and by Recreation for a variety of activities

The skating rink is used by youngsters who try on their skates for the first time at the winter activities programs at a young age, and then continue through the outstanding programs carried on by the Arlington-Menotomy Hockey Club and the championship high school teams of Arlington High and Arlington Catholic.

The Arlington-Menotomy hockey program begins in September and contines through the early spring with most of the activity centered at "the rink" on Summer Street.

There are in-house programs and road teams and tournaments in New England, the Mid-West, and Canada, in which Arlington youngsters at various levels compete.

Flanking the building on the western side is the Summer Street Playground area, a lighted field, used for night baseball and softball, the Arlington Catholic baseball team and by the Arlington High field hockey squad.

To the east of the Center building is the newly renovated Buck Field, utilized for Little League and Recreation programs.

Another field, beyond the Buck Field area is also being worked on, and is expected to be ready sometime in the future.

Continuing easterly on Summer Street, the viewer can look to the right toward Arlington High School, and see the athletic complex in back of the school (Peirce Field).

Centering this area (Peirce Field) is the football field surrounded by a modern outdoor track.

To the east of this field is an area utilized for girls' softball, Little League, and by the Athletic Department for in-school programs at Arlington High.

To the west and south of the football field is a practice area for football, which is also utilized by the Arlington High freshman baseball team.

Adjacent to the softball field are basketball courts, which are used by Arlington Recreation, and for "pick-up" basketball and street hockey games.

The football field is utilized by Arlington High, Arlington Catholic and Pop Warner teams for their home games.

The newcomer now heads toward the intersection of Mystic Street (Route 60) and Mystic Valley Parkway, where there are additional fields.

Located on the south side of Summer Street is Buzzell Field, with its two baseball/softball diamonds, used by Little League and Arlington High.

This area is also equipped with lights, and there is a basketball court at the location.

Just to the east of Buzzell Field is the Arlington Catholic field, which is used by the ACHS football and softball teams.

Heading southerly along Route 60, the newcomer can see Arlington Catholic High and St. Anges Church on the left.

The School fronts on Medford street, and on the opposite side of Medford Street is Fidelity House, the youth center where recreational activities for youngters are held all year long.

Fidelity House is also the center from which those in various programs take field trips and travel to summer camp, utilizing the campus at Minuteman Techincal High School in Lexington.

The shores of Spy Pond

Crossing Mass. Avenue, the newcomer can travel several side streets off Pleasant Street (Route 60) and Mass. Avenue to another hub of activitiy at Spy Pond Field and the Arlington Boys and Girls Club, along the shores of Spy Pond.

In the immediate foreground driving from Pleasant Street is Spy Pond Field, used for summer baseball and by the Arlington High baseball team in the spring.

The outdoor area is also used for soccer games in the fall.

The concrete grandstand behind the infield diamond was recently renovated.

East of the Boys and Girls Club, and along the shores of Spy Pond is Scannell Field, the location for a number of Little League activities.

Swinging back westerly along Mass. Avenue, the newcomer can reach another large lighted complex at Hurd Field, adjacent to the Lexington line and the Drake Village elderly housing area. There are two baseball/softball fields at this location.

Heading back the other way on the southerly side of Mass. Avenue with access from that street and Lake Street is the Thorndike/Magnolia complex.

Thorndike Field is visible from from Route 2, while on the other side of the parking lot in the area is Magnolia Field, the newest of the two areas. Both fields are utilized mostly for soccer in the spring and in the fall.

In Arlington Heights, near the water tower is Robbins Farm, located on Eastern Avenue, which is used for baseball and recreational purposes. There is also a large tot lot in the area, and the location is popular in the winter for sledding and skiing.

Arlington also has some warm-weather swimming facilities.

One is located at the Reservoir, under the direction of the Arlington Recreation Department in the western part of town, with access from Hurd Field on one side and Lowell Street on the other.

Thousands of youngsters take advantage of the swimming, picnic, and playground facilities at this location from June until early September.

For year-round swimming there is the modern pool at the Arlington Boys and Girls Club, where many (Please see page 17) youngsters and adults take advantage of swim programs throughout the year.

The Arlington High swim team also practices at this location and holds some of its seasonal meets there.

In addition there is a wading pool set up for youngsters during the summer months at the Thompson School in East Arlington.

For tennis enthusiasts there are courts at the Crosby School in East Arlington, the Wellington Courts on Grove Street, the Spy Pond Field Courts, and the courts at the athletic complex at Poet's Corner.

The Arlington High and Arlington Catholic tennis teams utilize these facilities.

Poet's corner is located off Route 2 in Arlington Heights.

Another popular area in town is Menotomy Rocks Park with access off Jason Street. Cars must park on the street and those using the area muust walk in to the location.

There is a playground, picnic areas and a cross country running area.

The running area is utilized by the local high school track teams, while Arlington Recreation uses the area for programs during the summer months.

More programs

There are also recreational areas at the elementary schools and non-school locations in the community, some of which are used by the schools, and some, such as Bishop School Field, which is utilized for some Arlington Catholic sports.

The Fidelity House, the Boys and Girls Club and Arlington Recreation offer residents of the community a wide-range of recreational programs year-round.

There are programs for tots and youngsters of all ages throughout the school year at each of the locations, while in the summer months there are all types of outdoor activities, including day camps.

A boating program is also offered at the Boys and Girls Club during the summer months.

Basketball is a popular program at each of the recreational facilities throughout the year, starting at a young age, through an adult program for men and women.

Arlington also has a special needs programs available and programs for senior citizens.

Arlington High and Arlington Catholic have athletic programs at the junior varsity and varsity levels, and some outstanding boys' and girls' teams have carried their banners through the years, in a wide range of sports in season.

There is also a women's softball league during the summer months, and Arlington Recreation has a 32-team league during the same time.

The pop Warner football program has reached new heights in popularity in Arlington, with four teams, representing four age levels, competing throughout four levels.

The girls' Pop Warner cheerleading program has attracted large squads at each of the same levels as the teams.

Arlington Catholic and Arlington High each have cheerleading squads which particpate through the sports seasons.

In addition to the sports already mentioned at the high school level, Arlington Catholic and Arlington High also have volleyball and golf teams.

There are also jazzercise programs available through the recreation groups.

Soccer has become a spring and fall sport in Arlington, with the Arlington Soccer Club sponsoring one season and Arlington Recreation and the Soccer Club the other.

The baseball program, other than at the high school level, has been coordinated into a large program, known as the Arlington Baseball Association.

Activities begin at the instructional level, continue through the Little League levels, and on into the Babe Ruth programs.

There are also teams at the 16-18-year-old age group.

The Holovak/Coughlin-baseball team represents Arlington in the Intercity Baseball League, while the Arlington American Legion Post team has long been a factor in Legion baseball in this area.

(Additional detailed information on the various recreation and sports activities in Arlington, and their locations and times are available from the groups, schools and organizations, and through the pages of The Arlington Advocate.

Anyone with questions about sports is invited to contact the sports department of The Advocate. We will do out best to answer such questions or refer the caller to someone who can answer them.)

Transportation

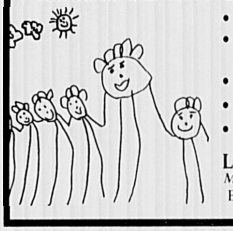

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority operates five bus routes in town.

An extension of the MBTA's Red Line runs to Alewife station near Routes 2 and 16, at the Cambridge-Arlington line. Alewife cars run from 5:15 a.m. to 12:40 a.m.

For information concerning the bus and subway lines call 722-3200, TTY 722-5146. For information about the MBTA's lift bus service call 1-800-LIFT-BUS.

WINCHESTER

Winchester girds for the 90s

By KAREN BUCKLEY

As the first year of the new decade enters its fourth quarter, local officials technology and fiscal issues will play important roles in running Winchester.

Whether it be in education or municipal operations, changes will doubtless occur as Winchester embarks on the last decade of the century.

For Superintendent Dr. Charles Mitsakos, though many of the goals have remained constant, the nature of education has changed, and will continue to do so.

According to Mitsakos, the next 10 years will see changes in three areas: technology, teaching approach, and involvement.

Looking ahead, Mitsakos says computers will likely play an even more important role in education as the techonological world grows. Computers help students work through projects, and in Winchester, some students have already begun comparing data in projects with that from students in other towns.

"Technology is being used to connect kids around the Globe," said Mitsakos. "Computers will continue to play a very critical role."

Today, students write most of their papers on computers, and some students perform advanced projects in a variety of disciplines with the help of advanced computer software.

"I wouldn't be surprised if in 10 years, we have lap-top computers no larger than textbooks," Mitsakos said. "My guess is technology is moving. Computers are being used at every level."

Television may also play a greater role in the classroom in the coming years. By hooking up to schools in neighboring towns through two-way, interactive video, classes with smaller enrollments could be taught at more than one school by one teacher. Winchester is currently tied into a collaborative with Arlington, Woburn and Lexington to work on such a program.

"With the technology, we could be linked in the next year," said Mitsakos.

"It's not the same as being there, but if the choice is not having it at all, we'd rather do it [through interactive video]," he added.

The way teachers teach may also change in the coming years, according to Mitsakos. "Teachers will try to find ways to deal with the fact kids approach learning differently," he said. With increasing research into the way students learn, Mitsakos said local teachers have begun experimenting with cooperative learning, where both the individual's achievement and the group's achievement are highlighted.

"I think we're going to see a lot more cooperative learning," he said.

Mitsakos also predicts a continued focus on early childhood learning, where the developmental needs of three- to five-year olds are addressed.

As for the community's involvement in education, Mitsakos said he believes "empowerment" will become increasingly evident.

The 90s

"Kids will play an active role in learning and in what they do," he said. "I think we'll find the same thing with teachers," with more school-based management.

Teachers, parents and students will become more involved in decisions about areas such as curriculum, how schools are organized and how they are run.

"Parents will be empowered further. Changes have already occurred in the last decade," he said. "I think they'll want to be involved in school improvement activities, as well as a follow-up of what goes on in school, at home."

In the next 10 years, Mitsakos said there will likely be an 8 to 10 percent growth in student population, up to between 900 and 950 from its current population of less than 800 pupils.

However, he added, "The growth will not be all that dramatic. I think there will be some measured growth."

Mitsakos said the school system may have to address issues such as childcare for faculty and staff in the future. In addition, he said he believes a large number of students from Winchester will continue to go on to two- or four-year colleges. Currently, about 86 percent of Winchester High School's graduating seniors attend college.

"I don't see the community changing that much," he added.

Municipal outlook

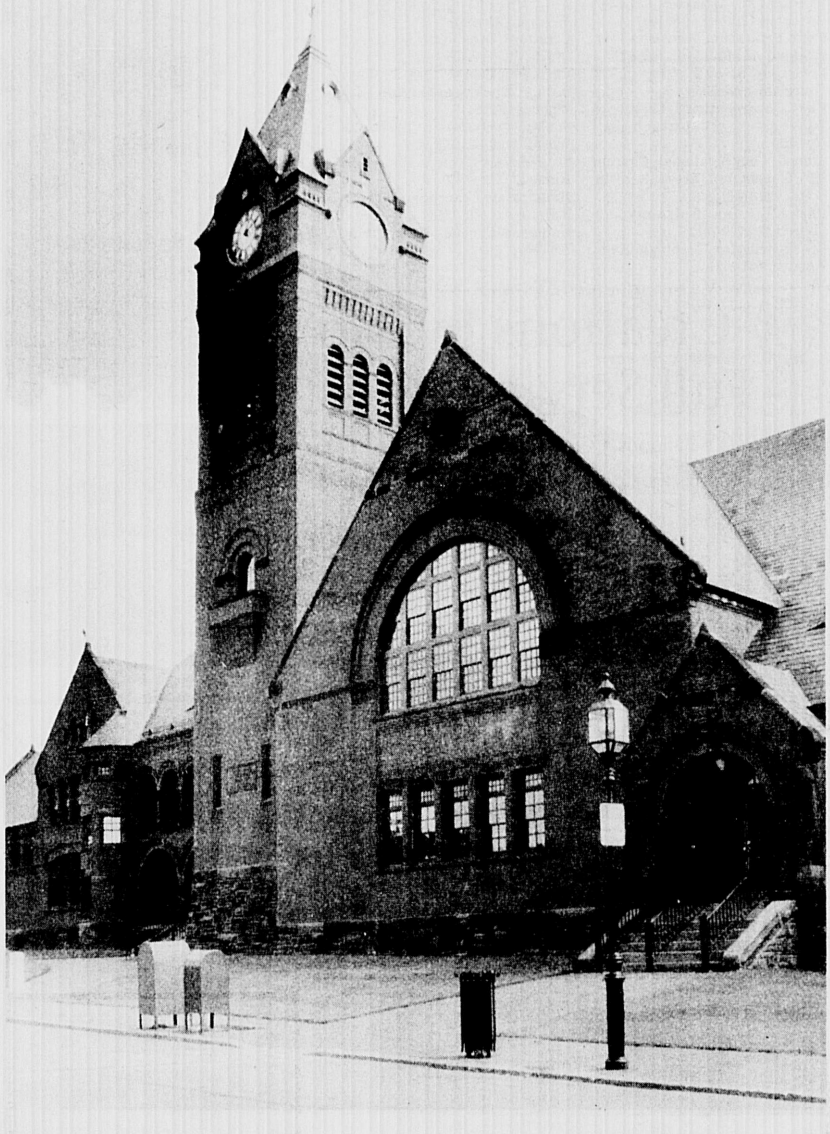

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer predicts a continued fiscal challenge in the coming years as Winchester officials try to maintain services at the level residents have come to expect.

"Though some [residents] would like us to come up with a solution that would fix everything for ever and ever, the nature of the way we operate precludes that," Maurer said. But, he added, "There's nothing wrong with that — that's how democracy is established."

Maurer said in the coming years, communities like Winchester may have to reexamine just how business is done — particularly through looking at consolidating departments and municipal functions.

"I don't see how much additional consolidation we could do and maintain the same level [of services] We're going to have to look to intra-town cooperation, particularly in the area of public safety," Maurer said.

Maurer cited as an example the mutual aid pact between fire departments in Winchester and surround ing communities. When a town's force needs back-up, it can turn to other communities for aid in dealing with emergencies.

Winchester's renovated Town Hall

"Each community in and of itself doesn't have the resources to maintain every [service]," Maurer said. He added that increasing federal and state regulations regarding response to hazardous waste emergencies will also be a major factor in protecting public safety. Each fire department must have at least one person on a regional team to respond to such occurrences.

"I think we have to look on a more regional basis as to how to share our resources," he said.

Maurer said public works departments may also need to look toward regionalizing certain functions as the 1990s progress. Massachusetts, he said, is interesting in that so many functions are performed on a town-by-town basis.

"The attitude of 'do it on our own' has to break down," he added. "There are far more efficient ways of operating government, as demonstrated in other parts of the country." As examples, Maurer cited regional school districts, and towns in the western part of the state that share administrative positions.

However, he said, "It will only work if people want to cooperate over boundaries. Local government in Massachusetts is not the most efficient form of government in the country.

"If there are efficiencies to be gained that way, it should be looked at. For example, divide by population. Do we need to have, in Massachusetts, 351 fire chiefs? The same is true with police chiefs, public works [directors] ... things can be done on a regional basis."

Other issues

In the coming years, Maurer predicts recycling regulations by the state will increase. Winchester has realized significant savings through an employee incentive program for recycling at the transfer station, but Maurer said he thinks increased state regulations will require cities and towns to do more.

In addition, Maurer said he thinks the town should examine how it has operated since the Town Charter was enacted in 1975. "I think the town should make a concerted effort to evaluate how the town is working — see if it is as efficient as it thought it would be in 1995," the 20th anniversary of the enactment of the Charter.

Maurer also predicts the town will be faced with continued increases in water and sewer rates, particularly with the planned improvements to Boston Harbor and the water system — improvements he said are "long overdue."

"The MWRA [Massachusetts Water Resources Authority] has made a concerted effort to keep cost increases as low as possible," Maurer said. When the MWRA first took over the water and sewer system from the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), Maurer said MWRA officials made dramatic predictions of water costs.

"People expected great increases. Even though the rates have gone up, they have not gone up as much as was originally projected. That's a credit to the people who run the MWRA," he said.

Winchester's water system will have continued improvements in the coming years as well, particularly in the sewer system and in water filtration.

Another major capital expenditure Maurer said will take place in the 1990s is improvement of the physical condition of school buildings. "We know we have to do it. It's just [a matter of] when we come up to the plate and do it," he added.

In the five years since he began his tenure as Winchester's town manager, Maurer said he has observed many local traditions which he believes will continue in the years to come, such as Town Day and public participation in town government.

"[Town Day] helps create a sense of community and community spirit," he said. "It would be too bad if some of the traditions started fading and people lost interest.

"Public participation in the town is great, and that's a tradition you don't want to see die," Maurer said. Although many divergent views come forward as a result of public participation, Maurer said, "The end result is positive."

Maurer said he also believes the tradition of quality town employees will continue. "It's a credit to the community that the town has homegrown people who become the leaders of the town years after their [local] education [is done]," he said.

W. Chadwick Maurer

Welcome from Town Manager

Dear Winchester Resident:

Welcome to the Town of Winchester.

I hope your move into our community will be a positive experience, and that you will truly enjoy Winchester with its many amenities, fine municipal services and its dedicated citizens.

Winchester has had a long tradition of citizen involvement in town government. Whether or not you have been involved in government or in community activities where you previously lived we urge you to participate in Winchester's government. We have many committees and activities needing volunteers.

Feel free to call the offices listed or visit any office to obtain information or register your concerns regarding municipal services.

Best wishes and good luck!

Sincerely
W. Chadwick Maurer

Winchester offers comfortable lifestyle

Winchester combines easy access to Boston with a suburban lifestyle. It is one of the most affluent towns in Massachusetts.

The area known as Winchester was created in 1850 from parts of Medford, Woburn and West Cambridge (now Arlington), and was named after Col. William E. Winchester, a Watertown resident. The Winchester area was originally settled in 1640 and was successively called Waterfield, Woburngates, South Woburn and Blackhorse Village.

Today Winchester is a tree-lined, bedroom community just a 13-minute train ride from downtown Boston. It encompasses 21,000 people and 6 square miles of land.

Winchester's population is white-collar and highly educated. Of those who work, almost half are managers or professionals. Many work in Boston because of the convenient access provided by the Boston-to-Lowell train. The train has passed through Winchester since the inception of the Boston-to-Lowell route in 1835.

Winchester is conservative by Massachusetts standards. Roughly 40 percent of the town's registered voters are Democrats, while 26 percent are registered Republicans. The remaining one-third of the registered voters are Independent. Town government takes the form of a representative town meeting.

Irish people outnumber other ethnic groups in Winchester, comprising 30 percent of the population. People of Italian descent represent some 25 percent, while the people of English ancestry are approximately 18 percent of the total.

Winchester is heavily residential, as more than three-quarters of the dwellings in town are single-family units. Approximately half the dwellings in town were built in 1950 or earlier.

Winchester has comparatively little industry, but a considerable service economy. On the retail side, Winchester has undergone considerable revitaliztion in recent years.

Plenty of recreation opportunities

By LAURA JOHNSON

Any idle resident can easily find entertainment this fall by turning to Winchester's Community Services and Recreation Department.

The early fall term begins the week of Sept. 17, and includes a variety of special events for all ages. A trip to New York City to see the Radio City Christmas Show is planned for the coming holiday season, and a Newport excursion is planned for Oct. 14. The Winchester Concert Series will present three chamber music concerts this year, when the poems of E.E. Cummings will be set to music in live performances. The sixth annual ski swap takes place on Nov. 3. Residents are invited to bring down skate and ski equipment to sell at the sale. A portion of the proceeds benefits the department.

For teens, the Youth Center game room located in the auditorium wing of McCall Middle School is open for students in grades 6-9. In addition, "Dear Ashley At The Movies" will take place on selected Friday nights throughout the school year.

For those students looking for work or residents seeking help with jobs at home or in their businesses, the Job Bank Referral Service can help out. Students in junior and senior high school are invited to fill out an application form, and will be contacted if a job becomes available. Employers are also required to fill out a form. For more information, call the department.

For children, there will be a Halloween parade on Oct. 28, a Sesame Street performance at the North Shore Music Circus, and a trip to the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus. There are two programs available for children with special needs: the Clubhouse Integrated After School Program, and "Celebrate" — a collaborative recreation program.

There are 16 different programs involving dance, music, fitness, arts, and science. For pre-school children, the following programs are available: Happy Feet 1; Kidsong; and Tumblin Tots. For elementary school-aged children, the department offers: Happy Feet 2; Beginner Ballet and Tap; Ballet and Tap 1 and 2; Beginning and Advanced Beginning Funky Feet; Drama Workshop; Fit For Kids; Fur, Feathers & Scales; Gymnastics; Ice Skating; Painting & Drawing for Kids; and Science & The Sounds of Music.

A myriad of community education classes are being offered in cooperation with the Winchester Public Schools. Four business and finance courses are available. They are: College Funding & Financial Aid; Financial Planning- How It Works For You; Living (Loving) Trusts & Financial Management; and Retirement & Estate Planning.

Courses dealing with awareness and communication are: Raising Good Kids In Hard Times; Reading Between The Lines In Palmistry; and Self-Hypnosis For Personal Success.

Computer classes being offered include: Introduction To The Macintosh; and Pascal Programming.

Creative arts and hobbies classes given through the department are: Basketry; Bow Making; Creativity Workshop For Parents; Drawing Into Painting; Flatter Your Figure; Floral Wall Basket; Grapevine Christmas Tree; Large Eucalyptus Sprays; Mini Gifts; Oriental Rug Making; Paper Tole; beginning and advanced Quilting; Style Analysis; and Your Best Colors.

Dance classes are: Ballroom Dance 1 and 2; Modern Jazz; and Tap Dancing.

Health and fitness courses are: Co-Ed Volleyball; Autumn Walkabouts; E-Z Robics; Jazzerobics; Walkin' Aerobics; Golf; Weight Loss Without Dieting; Winchester Trails; and Yoga.

Home and garden classes include: Fundamentals of Interior Design; Gifts From Your Kitchen; Gingerbread Houses; Healthy "Heart Start" For Children; Herbs- Myth, Magic and Modern Uses; Holiday Menus; Landscape It — Yourself!; and Meals In Minutes.

Language classes are: Advanced Beginner Sign Language; Conversational Spanish; and English As A Second Language.

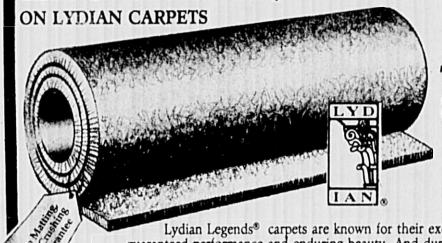

Music and literature courses will include: The Marriage Of Figaro; The Art Of Song — A Celebration Of Poetry & Music; and Poems Of E.E. Cummings.

In addition, a skill enhancement course, Beginning Typing and Keyboarding; and the Amity S.A.T. Review will be offered.

Where are home prices going?

The 90s

The trend in home buying in the 90s is back to basics, say some local real estate agents. As a result, home buyers are more informed and increasingly selective as they head off to make their purchases.

In many communities, the number of home sales is down, but prices are constant — and real estate agents are hopeful.

"The number of sales is way off," according to Arlington's Director of Assessments Robert Greeley. "I think it will be a while before we see appreciation again."

The Boston area still remains the fifth most expensive region in the country, median sale prices have dropped dramatically over the year — from $186,200 in 1988 to $176,200 during 1989, according to figures from the Greater Boston Real Estate Board (GBREB).

Arlington housing prices (single-family, two-family, and condominiums) tripled from 1980 to 1989, according to Greeley. In 1980, the average price of a single-family home was $72,793, and last year it was $215,270.

According to GBREB, the dip in housing sale prices is not a sign of collapse, but a balancing out, bringing Boston-area prices more into line with the rest of the country.

In order for Greater Boston and eastern Massachusetts to be more economically competitive with the rest of the country, it has become crucial that our housing prices become more moderate, the experts say.

Arlington realtor Jan Cusack, of Keenan & Cusack, agrees.

"I see houses that are priced properly being sold," said Cusack. "If the seller is listening to the professionals then the houses are being sold quickly."

Winchester realtor Ann Blackham also said she believes when confidence is restored in the Massachusetts economy — in particulary when the state elects a new governor — home sales will improve again.

"If we have steady growth, I think you will see people realizing real estate is your best investment," Blackham said.

The quick rise in housing prices during the last decade may be part of the perceived problem, Greeley said. Area residents got used to seeing the rapid 20 percent yearly rise that occurred from about 1984 to early 1988, so the current, more normal 5 percent rise seems like a slump.

Blackham said she does not believe the rate of appreciation on homes will be as high as it has in the past.

Winchester realtor Helen Poftak, manager of Carlson Real Estate, attributes an increase in first-time homebuyers to the slowing rate of appreciation. "It's letting people into the market that wouldn't be able to get in otherwise," Poftak said.

Blackham agreed. "Most people who are looking right now are people who want to get into owning a home. They're mostly first-time buyers," she said, adding that she believes it is the tail end of the "baby boom".

While GBREB Greater Boston median prices have fallen during the last year, Arlington's average prices fell only slightly during 1989, from $215,774 to $215,270, according to Greeley's figures.

Many agree that there is a housing slump in the area, but, Cusack says, Arlington is probably doing better than abutter communities.

"We are a bedroom community, and we have the MBTA," Cusack said. "We are near all the major routes, and access is important."

Both Greeley and Cusack say that there are many factors governing a housing price slump or a comeback — from the upcoming elections to the war in Kuwait.

One of the draws to Arlington, both said, has been its central location, easily accessible to public transportation and major roadways.

Greeley notes that if there is an oil shortage again, Arlington will be more appealing because of its accessibility to public transportation.

Neither could predict what will happen to prices in the coming years.

"We've seen poor markets before and we've bounced back," Cusack said. "Life goes on. Everyday life filled with ups and downs, one day it rains and shines the next."

Realtor Patrick Fortin, owner of Realty World, said he thinks prices have stabilized in Winchester. However, he is quick to point out that some of the hype relating to the slowness of the market is, he believes, unfounded.

"In Winchester, Arlington, Belmont and Lexington, the market is a lot better than it's made out to be," said Fortin.

According to Watertown's West Realty Sales Manager Lesley Kantor, the market for house sales in Watertown is quite good. "The biggest problem with the home buyer's market today is overcoming the public perception that the prices are so high," she said.

Although the market is not heading for a crash according to Kantor, she did say that fewer and fewer out-of-state homebuyers are moving to Massachusetts, and the entire northeastern part of the country, because of the declining economic situation.

"There are still plenty of people who want to buy a house if they can," said Kantor, "and there are several 'hidden' neighborhoods in Watertown which are well worth checking into."

Ken Conti, of Belmont's Conti Realtors, said, "people can expect a downward trend for at least the next couple of years."

According to Conti, the increase in unemployment in Massachusetts, along with the current oil crisis situation is leading to a 20 percent decrease in the house buying market in Belmont.

"While only a few years ago a house went for $275,000, the same house could be asking $317,000 today," said Conti.

Conti says he has noticed a trend among many out-of-state movers, such as professors from MIT and Harvard, who are renting rather than buying because of the relative safety in the rental market today.

Conti believes the decline will bottom out, and said although 1991 may also be a tough year for those wishing to purchase a house in Massachusetts, he has high expectations for 1992.

Belmont realtor Fred Pizzi of Lawndale Realty, agreed with Conti on some points, but seemed to have more hope for the current situation.

"The situation has more or less bottomed out," said Pizzi. "If the houses are priced right, they'll sell. People are expecting too much of today's market, one should plan for four to six months before going out to buy a house in Massachusetts."

Pizzi, as well as Conti, agreed the tax situation in the state could be a factor in scaring away out-of-state buyers. Pizzi said that unless the interest rates drop suddenly, he sees a fairly stable plateau in the house market.

"Once people come to the state and rent, they realze after a while that the prices are not so bad after all," said Conti.

Fortin also said buyers are more selective, a trend he expects will continue as the 1990s unfold. "People are looking more for a specific house rather than [expecting] to make $20,000 in a year ... People are looking at houses more as a long-term think than they would five years ago," he said.

Poftak agreed. "I think the outlook in the 90's is definitely a change in how we look at real estate."

Poftak said buyers used to look toward real estate as security rather than investment. But then, in the 1980s, economic growth resulted in high appreciation of homes.

In addition, buyers are more educated when they approach the real estate market, Poftak said. "The buyer today is a tremendously sophisticated buyer. They have researched every property on the market. When they come to Winchester, they have looked into all the surrounding towns, at SAT scores, at the number of pupils who go on to college ... They come to us very well informed."

Fortin said pricing is the key to selling a house quickly, particularly in today's market. "If [a house] shows well and you're serious about pricing ... you can sell if you want to sell." This, he added, does not mean selling $50,000 below the market price.

Because buyers are more educated, Poftak said they know which houses are "correctly priced."

As for the 90s, Fortin said he has hope for the market. "Real estate has always been cyclical, and it always will be," he said.

Poftak calls the current market a "weeding out process" for realtors. "We can not do business the same way." In a good market, Poftak said realtors are "order takers." However, she stressed that realtors must be more service-oriented now and in the future in order to survive in the business.

"I think real estate will always be a good investment, but I don't think we'll see the galloping appreciation we saw in the mid-80s," she said.

Recycling efforts gaining new momentum in Winchester

As the 1990s get underway, cities and towns across the state are faced with the question of how to cut costs.

In Winchester, one cost saving measure that also saves the environment is recycling. Although the effort has been in place for some time, it got a big push in the last two years thanks to a program at the Winchester Recycling and Disposal Facility — also known as the transfer station.

The Employee Incentive Program has helped Winchester increase the amount of waste recycled each year, and has provided transfer station employees with an incentive to make sure residents are recycling.

The incentive program was created to encourage employees to help reduce the amount of waste sent to the North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC) co-generation plant in North Andover where trash is burned and converted to energy. The amount of waste sent to the NESWC plant is reduced by selling recyclable materials such as newsprint, glass, cans and plastics to merchants of these materials. Because it costs Winchester $67 a ton to send waste to the NESWC plant, recycling reduces Winchester's waste bill.

According to Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer, transfer station employees receive 10 percent of the money the town saves as a result of recycling. Through cost avoidance, employees get a break, and Winchester's NESWC bill isn't quite so high.

Employees encourage residents to use the recycling bins at the Transfer Station. In addition, they pull recyclable materials off the conveyor belt at the Transfer Station. According to Maurer, "Employees make a greater effort to ensure waste is deposited in the proper spot."

Each quarter the Department of Pulic Works determines how much Winchester has saved by recycling. This is determined by comparing the tonnage sent to the NESWC plant for the current quarter with the amount sent in the same quarter the previous year. For example, according to Public Works Director Anthony Celli, Winchester's tonnage sent to the NESWC plant for the fourth quarter (October to December) of 1989 was 341.66 less than the tonnage sent to the NESWC plant in the fourth quarter of 1988. This saved the town $21,353.75, and an employee incentive bonus of $2,135.38 was divided among the five transfer station employees for that quarter.

Maurer said the idea of the employee incentive program originated in Winchester and has been successful in increasing recycling in Winchester. However, he added that the program would not be applicable to towns that have curb-side pick-up. Because Winchester has a transfer station, Maurer said disposal costs are considerably lower than towns with a curbside pick-up system.

WATERTOWN

Town attractive to businesses

By DENISE LYMPERIS
Sun Correspondent

The 90s

As we move into the 90s, many business people in Massachusetts are finding it increasingly difficult to set up or expand their companies in Boston. High rents and lack of space have become prohibitive, and mounting traffic congestion has created a commuter hell for potential employees.

Alternatively, several companies are now looking to suburbs like Watertown to set up shop. Watertown, a community of some 35,000 residents, barely covers four square miles. But despite its small size, more and more business people are finding it a prime location once they learn what the town has to offer.

"In the past few years, Watertown has been 'discovered,'" says Hope Tsacoyeanes, Executive Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce here. She believes the town's strategic location is one of the major attractions for businesses. "It's right near the Mass. Pike, so it's an easy commute," she says.

Despite the state's ailing economy, many businesses continue to flourish here, says Tsacoyeanes. "We've been lucky to have a fairly healthy economy in Watertown. (These businesses) are an investment in the community. It's also great for the town to have a variety of businesses so people don't have to commute."

Most of the companies that come into Watertown nowadays are service-oriented rather than industrial, says Tsacoyeanes. Such changes in this one-time manufacturing community, however, reflect the business trends evolving in the state as a whole.

The recently renovated Riverbend Office Park, which opened in 1987, serves as a prime example of the migration of businesses into Watertown, says Tsacoyeanes. Once the home of Lewandos, the largest cleansing and dyeing business in the country, the building is now chockfull of relatively small, service-type companies.

"We have a mixed bag of tenants," says Kate Mercer, Riverbend's project manager. "Our tenant list is very akin to a tenant list you might find in Cambridge." Riverbend is home to a few entrepreneurs, a dentist, a restaurant, and a federally-funded, not-for-profit agency, just to name some examples.

"Everybody has been very impressed by the building's location," says Mercer. Location, however, is not always initially a factor in a tenant's decision to lease space at Riverbend, she explains. But once they realize the benefits of the town, they never want to leave.

"You can go to out to lunch or run over to the drugstore to buy a postcard," says Mercer. "You can do all that in less than five minutes. It's very convenient."

Riverbend itself is service-oriented, says Mercer. Having an on-site maintenance staff helps put tenants at ease. "Your tenant," Mercer explains, "first and foremost wants to be comfortable."

Despite the influx of companies offering services, several bastions of industry in town expect to continue to thrive here well into the next century. Ionics, Inc., located on Grove Street, remains one of the town's largest and most successful companies.

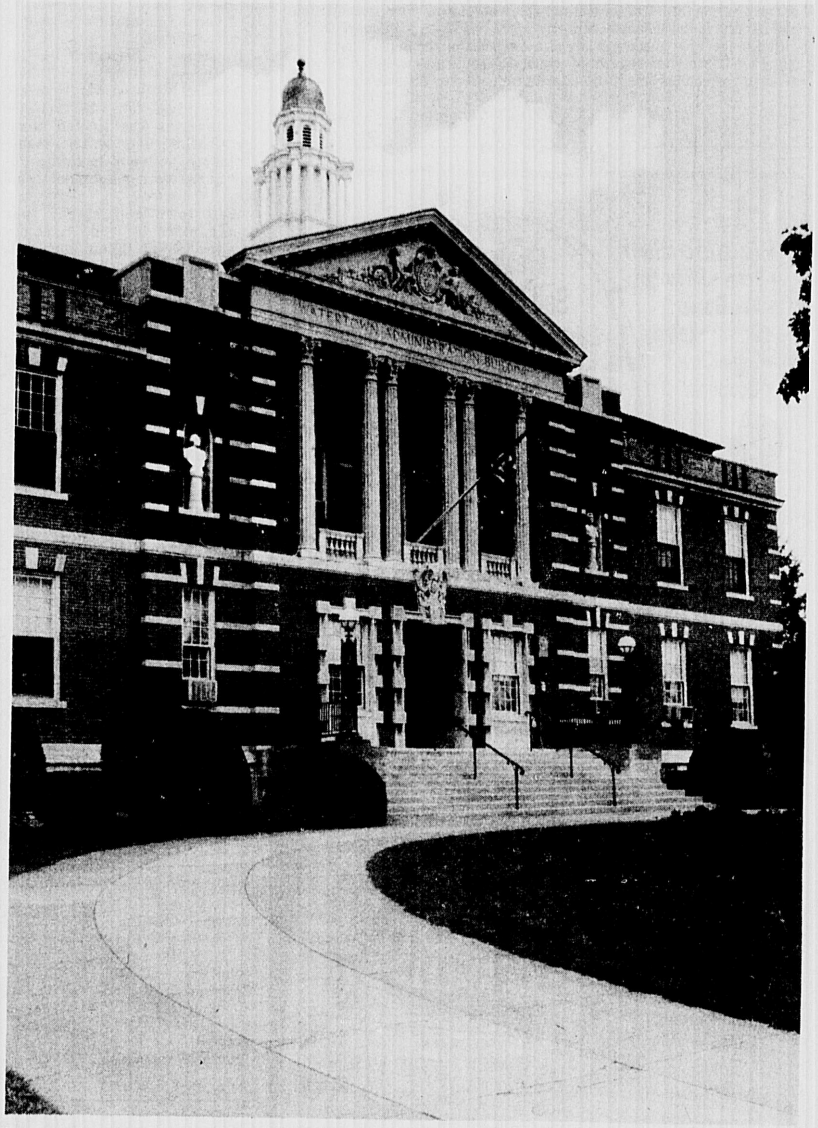

Ionics was founded in 1948 by a group of Harvard and MIT graduates who invented the ion exchange membrane. This development revolutionized the field of separations technology: these membranes made it possible to take the salt out of water without boiling it.

The impact of this discovery brought Ionics to the forefront of the water purification industry. Initially, the company found industrial applications for its breakthrough discovery. Then, about five years ago, it entered the bottled water market. This industry, which is the largest consumer water market segment in the U.S., rakes in some $2.5 billion each year. Since it expanded into this market, Ionics' yearly revenues jumped from roughly $70 million to $108 million in 1989.

According to Ted Papastavros, Ionics' Vice-President of Strategic Planning and Treasurer, the company's move to Watertown was mainly just a coincidence. But he does admit that the Watertown location did benefit the company to some degree. "The fact that a lot of our people are from MIT and Harvard allowed us to build our group," he says.

General Scanning, Inc., another successful industrial business, began as a single-room operation in Watertown in 1968. The company manufactures optical scanners and systems. These devices basically work by positioning a laser beam to perform various tasks such as writing and scribing. They are also used to move the laser beams in laser light shows. More recently, the company has been expanding into a technology known as stereo lithography. This process involves moving a laser beam along a vat of resin to harden it into prototypes for various industrial uses.

The company's two founders, also MIT graduates, lived nearby in Brookline and Belmont. "They probably came to Watertown because they didn't want to commute," surmises Cynthia Nyary, the company's communications manager. "The location is great," she says of the Arsenal Street plant. "We're right on a major thoroughfare."

Watertown's Town Hall

Lifeline Systems, Inc., a relative newcomer to the Watertown industrial scene, began in Watertown in 1974. Located at the Arsenal Marketplace since 1985, the company manufactures personal response systems (PRSs), and markets them in the U.S. and Canada. PRSs are communications devices that allow aging, disabled, and ill persons to live independently at home with access to 24-hour help at the push of a button. PRSs make up a $60 million industry, with more than 20 manufacturers competing for market share. Lifeline, the leader in the industry, supplies 70 percent of the systems in use today through more than 2,000 healthcare facilities.

Betsy Richardson, vice president for marketing, expects the company's success to continue well beyond the next decade, with the potential to expand into a world market. PRSs are particularly vital to people over 65, who are forming an increasingly larger segment of society.

"This is a way of keeping people in their homes and in their lifestyles longer," says Richardson.

"In the past few years, Watertown has been 'discovered.'"

Watertown oldest in the county

Incorporated in 1630, Watertown is the oldest community in Middlesex County. It is home for a diverse population of some 32,000 people.

Watertown experienced the Industrial Revolution early, aided by natural water power from the Charles River falls. In 1816, the U.S. Arsenal was located along the Charles. Considerable manufacturing activity continues today alongside a substantial retail base.

Watertown consists of four square miles of land. It enjoys easy access to Boston thanks to the nearby Massachusetts Turnpike, Soldiers Field Road and Fresh Pond Parkway.

Demographically, Watertown reflects incomes and occupational levels consistent with Greater Boston. A typical household earns over $36,000, while almost a third are employed in executive and professional occupations. more than half the dwellings are owner-occupied.

Politically, the town is heavily Democratic. More than 60 percent of the voting population are registered Democrats. The town is run by a town council/town manager form of government.

Much of the town's retail activity occurs along Arsenal St., where the Watertown Mall and the newer Arsenal Mall compete for retail business. Manufacturing firms employ twice as many people as retailers, however; the total employment is more than 6,000. Many local companies are engaged in high technology and related enterprises.

Looking to the future, Watertown is unlikely to experience population growth. In fact, the town population appears to have peaked around 1960, when it approached 40,000.
